PENNY INCREASE IN FARE GRANTED UNITED RAILWAYS; TWO TOKENS, 15C

Temporary Change Is Based on Tentative Valuation of $52,024,000 — Huge Claims Denied.

NEW RATES INTO EFFECT JULY 5

Order Will Be Operative for at Least Six Months — Yearly Revenue Raised $1,466,000.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 25.—Street car riders in St. Louis, beginning July 5, will be required to pay an 8-cent car fare, though two tokens will be sold for 15 cents for at least six months, as a result of an order today by the Missouri Public Service Commission. The increase is intended to provide the company with an earning of 7.1 per cent on a physical valuation fixed by the commission in the same order at $52,024,192.

The fare increase was specified by the commission to continue for 6 months and until such later time as it was terminated or acted upon by the commission, and was justified by an official statement that the evidence so far heard in the application of the receiver of the United Railways for permission to charge an 8-cent fare, showed that the 7-cent fare did not yield reasonable compensation.

Children's Fare Unchanged.

The three-cent children's fare will remain unchanged. The United Railways early this year put in effect the eight-cent fare with 4 tokens for 25 cents, but was forced by the Public Service Commission to discontinue that rate. The two-for-fifteen rate applies only to buyers of tokens, and 15 cents cash does not pay two fares.

Of particular importance in the commission's order was the fixing of the tentative valuation of the company's property at approximately $52,000,000, as the valuation is the factor determining the rate of car fare. The amount found tentatively is approximately one-half the amount demanded by the Newman Reorganization Committee's representatives at a recent hearing before the commission in the rate application of the receiver.

Ready to Agree on $60,000,000.

Though the demand was for $80,000,000 valuation, it was general knowledge that its advocates had no expectation of an allowance in excess of $70,000,000, and were ready to agree on $60,000,000 if given a new 30-year franchise by the city.

Mayor Miller virtually had agreed with the reorganizers on the $60,000,000 valuation, but the franchise ordinance had not been presented before adjournment of the Board of Aldermen for the summer because of a failure of the Mayor and the Newman group to agree on a rate of return, the reorganizers insisting upon 7 per cent and Mayor standing for 6 per cent. Before the Commission the railway interests asked an 8 per cent return.

In its action today, the Commission might be said to have met the terms of a plan discussed by the Mayor and Stanley Clarke, attorney for the reorganizers, a month ago, when it practically was agreed that the Commission would be asked to fix a rate of return in advance of the submission of the franchise ordinance. The formal request had not been made, however.

Based on 1919 Valuation.

The $52,000,000 valuation was fixed as of Dec. 31, 1926, and was arrived at by the Commission on the basis of the valuation fixed as of Jan. 1, 1919, in a Commission order in 1922, plus additions to property since that time.

The 1919 valuation was $51,781,-000. To this the Commission added $6,425,843, which was found to have been the amount expended for additions and betterments, making a total of $58,207,291. This, it was held, was subject to deductions in arriving at the 1926 value. It was pointed out in the opinion that by setting aside $1,500,000 a year for depreciation reserve from 1919 to 1926, the receiver had taken from earnings for the depreciation reserve $12,380,357, but had charged against this reserve only $10,917,258.

In effect the Commission held that the amount set aside for depreciation should be approximately the amount needed, and refused to allow as capital the full depreciation reserve. It deducted from the $58,207,291 the difference between

TROTZKY AND ZINOVIEFF TOTTERING TO A FALL

Control Committee Recommends Their Dismissal From Moscow Central Committee.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 25.—The dismissal for violation of party discipline of Leon Trotzky and Gregory Zinovieff from the central committee of the All-Russian communist party was recommended today by the praesidium of the central control committee.

Both Trotzky and Zinovieff were censured last month by the communist International for having criticised Russia's policy in China. This was considered a breach of party discipline. They have been heading an opposition movement against the soviet government, which is controlled by the Stalin faction.

Trotzky was Commissar for War and Marine under Lenine, whose death marked the beginning of Trotzky's eclipse.

Zinovieff was president of the Third (Moscow) International, and as such was in conflict with several foreign countries which objected to his propaganda activities.

MRS. M'LEAN FLIES TO DERBY

Flight From Washington to Cincinnati Made by Publisher's Wife.

CINCINNATI, O., June 25.—An air trip from Washington to Cincinnati was made today by Mrs. Edward B. McLean, wife of the publisher. Mrs. McLean flew in a three-motored Fokker passenger airplane. She was accompanied by her maid and chauffeur.

The plane attracted attention as it flew over the eastern part of Cincinnati and alighted at the Lunken Airport. After a trip or six hours, Mrs. McLean came to join her husband and to witness the Derby at Latonia, Ky. McLean had two horses entered in the Derby, Jock and War Eagle. War Eagle finished third.

SKATED 215 OF 400 MILES

Mother and Daughter Reach Havana, Ill., From Kansas City.

PEORIA, Ill., June 25. — Mrs. Henry Pfetzing and her daughter, Anna Catherine, who started from Kansas City, Mo., Wednesday on roller skates, arrived in Havana, near here, late yesterday to conclude a 400-mile trip.

The pair said they skated 215 miles of the journey. In some towns they were barred from skating through and several times they were forced to abandon their skates on account of dirt roads and bad weather. Mrs. Pfetzing injured her shoulder and nose when she slipped and fell while trying to get out of the way of a truck between Springfield, Ill., and Petersburg.

WAGE INCREASE DENIED 65,000 RAIL WORKERS

Conductors and Trainmen on 55 Western Roads Had Asked for Advance of $1 a Day.

YARDMEN GIVEN 7 1-2 PER CENT MORE

Decision Follows 2 Months' Consideration by U. S. Board of Arbitration, Holds for 1 Year.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Trainmen and conductors on 55 Western railroads were denied an increase in wages while yardmen were granted an increase of 7½ per cent in an award by a United States Board of Arbitration, announced today.

The opinion, reached after two months' consideration of a petition for an increase of $1 a day, was signed by four members of the board, including Dr. W. M. W Splawn, chairman, president of the University of Texas.

E. P. Curtis, general secretary-treasurer of the Order of Railway Conductors, and J. A. Farquharson, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trackmen, representatives of the employes on the board, declined to sign the award and declared they will file a dissenting opinion.

Under the Parker-Watson law, creating the board of wage arbitration, decisions are final. The trainmen and conductors, however, have the right to appeal to the federal courts. The Parker-Watson act, passed by the last Congress, has not been tested in the courts.

Ruling Holds One Year.

Neither party to today's award can bring their grievance to the mediation board within a year.

Virtually 65,000 employes are involved in the decision, and all of the Class A roads west of Chicago.

While holding that the trainmen of Western roads now are receiving a higher wage than employes in similar service of Eastern and Southeastern railroads, the board also took into considerations the earnings of the carriers in the three sections.

Testimony showed, the majority of the board held, that Eastern roads earned last year 5.47 per cent on their investments, Southeastern roads 6.23 per cent, while lines in the West earned only 4.36 per cent. The increase in revenue per ton-mile last year over 1915 was for Eastern carriers 69.15 per cent, 41 per cent for those in the Southeast district and 35.19 per cent for Western railroads, the opinion continued.

Granting a 7½ per cent raise to yardmen will tend to equalize their earnings with those of yardmen in other districts and other employes in similar service, the majority explained.

The yardmen's award is retroactive to March 1, 1927.

"After this increase of 7½ per cent in the standard daily rate paid to yardmen, the trainmen will continue to earn, judging future by past earnings more than the yardmen, enough more, the board believes, to compensate for away-from-home expenses incurred by trainmen."

The new rate of pay in yard service shall be as follows: Car retarder operators, per day, $7.94; foreman, per day, $7.42; helpers, per day, $6.62; switch tenders, per day, $5.07.

Decision Will Tend to Destroy Arbitration, Trainmen Say.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., June 25.—The decision of the rail arbitration board to refuse the wage boost to conductors and trainmen west of Chicago will "tend only to destroy arbitration," William G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen said here today.

"The decision is an unfortunate one," said Lee. "It means conductors and trainmen on roads in the East and South will get more money for the same work than conductors and trainmen in the West."

He expressed satisfaction with the action of the board which gives a 7½ per cent wage increase to yardmen, explaining that he believed the same should be done for the conductors and trainmen if they are dealt with justly.

AIR LINE RIVALRY SAID TO INVOLVE LINDBERGH PLANS

Leaders Believe Administration Wants Flyer to Join National Air Transport Instead of Rival.

LEVINE UNDER FIRE OF U. S. OFFICIALS

Control of Commercial Aviation Reported at Stake in Efforts of Two Concerns to Sign Up Hero.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Aviation authorities here envisage a bitter struggle for domination of commercial aviation between the group now seeking to sign up Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and the interests represented by Charles A. Levine.

As the situation is viewed here by aeronautical leaders not connected with the Government, strong administration influence is being used to align Col. Lindbergh with the National Air Transport, Inc., as opposed to the commercial aviation enterprise Levine has announced he would launch.

The National Air Transport wrested the Chicago-New York air mail contract from the Levine company, although the latter's bid was lower. Charges were made that Postmaster-General New had shown favoritism. His answer was a denunciation of Levine, followed by another attack on him when he carried canceled air mail stamps, allegedly irregularly, to Berlin.

The rivalry between the two groups now has taken on new aspects. During his two-day stay here this week, Col. Lindbergh, it now appears, was solicited by Administration officials to identify himself with the National Air Transport.

Ex-Official Figures in Concern.

The head of this company is Howard Coffin, automobile maker and engineer. Its executive is Paul Henderson, Second Assistant Postmaster-General under Mr. New and son-in-law of Martin B. Madden of Illinois, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, one of the most influential of administration leaders.

Col. Lindbergh, it is said, was called here for conferences with the National Air Transport representatives, at the instance of William P. McCracken, Assistant Secretary of Commerce in charge of all commercial aviation activities in the United States. Mr. McCracken formerly was attorney for the National Air Transport, and represented them here nearly a year prior to his appointment.

It had been rumored repeatedly that the National Air Transport had spent large sums without getting the expected return on its original air mail contracts, and that the award of the Chicago-New York service was influenced somewhat by Postmaster General New's desire to grant a compensating contract.

The situation now developing is seen as one in which Administration officials having jurisdiction over air mail and commercial flying are even more pronouncedly supporting the National Air Transport against the threatened rivalry of the Levine project.

Lack of Funds Reported.

The phase of the matter being talked of here is whether this influence will be sufficient to offset the reported disparity in financial resources available to the two groups. The National Air Transport is said to lack the extensive financial means necessary to embark upon the ambitious nation-wide commercial air program which its officers proposed to Col. Lindbergh.

Whether stocks or bonds would be floated, if the concern succeeds in signing up Lindbergh, is not known. But either that method or reliance on banking interests, presumably to be approached in New York, is assumed by authorities here to be inevitable.

The Levine group, on the other hand, is regarded as having ample means available. Reduced to the simplest terms, as the situation is foreseen here, the outcome will hinge almost entirely on whether Col. Lindbergh can be induced to cast his fortunes with the National Air Transport. He is regarded as so great an asset that aviation interests here think he would open up virtually unlimited avenues of cash or credit to any concern with which he was affiliated.

GAS VICTIM BEGINS 13TH WEEK OF COMA

Physicians Predict Death of Fresno (Cal.) Woman, but Husband Remains Hopeful.

By the Associated Press.

FRESNO, Cal., June 25.—Mrs. Clara Drummond, 20 years old, today entered her thirteenth week of coma. Her condition has not changed since April 4 when she was discovered unconscious in a gas-filled room at her home here.

By her bedside watches her husband, W. E. Drummond, a sailor on a liner to China at the time his wife entered her strange sleep. He did not hear what had befallen her until he returned to Seattle and read a newspaper dispatch concerning her condition. He hopes in the face of the predictions of death by attending physicians that his vigil will be rewarded by some sign of life.

Medical science has done all in its power to break the strange coma. At the County General Hospital Mrs. Drummond lies inert, breathing, but that is all. Physicians are certain she is suffering from gas poisoning.

Mrs. Drummond is unable to eat, speak, hear, see, move her limbs or body, and is unmindful of pain. She is forcibly fed through the nostrils with peptonized milk and orange juice. Her eyes remain open in the day time, but do not see. At night they close.

Gas poisoning, physicians say, destroys the nerve center of the brain controlling speech, locomotion and co-ordination of muscles, but does not affect the basic functions of life—respiration, digestion and circulation.

ARMY MEN AT SAN FRANCISCO READY FOR HAWAIIAN FLIGHT

Maitland and Hegenberger Expect to Take Off in Few Days for Honolulu.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25—The tri-motored Fokker monoplane, piloted by Lieut. Lester J. Maitland and Lieut. Albert F. Hegenberger arrived here at 2:34 p. m. today from San Diego. The army flyers expect to hop off in a few days for Honolulu.

Maitland and Hegenberger made the flight from San Diego in five hours and 54 minutes.

They swung over San Francisco Bay toward the Oakland municipal air port where they expect to take off for their Honolulu flight. Twice they circled the field and then dipped to within a few feet of the 7000-foot runway and roared along it from the starting point to its end, as though to "get the feel" of the place. Then they crossed the bay to Crissy Field on the Presidio reservation of the army in San Francisco, where they landed.

Planes intending to make the Honolulu flight are planning to use the Oakland airport, which is the only flying field with a runway of sufficient length for the take-off of heavily loaded machines. The runway is of gravel. Its length is 7000 feet and its width is from 200 to 500 feet. There are no searchlights to aid planes to hop off in night hours.

FOUR BADLY HURT IN INTERURBAN CRASH

Limited Hits Workmen's Car on Siding at Oak Hill, Ill.

Four young men were seriously injured at 5:30 p. m. yesterday when a limited car of the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway, bound from St. Louis to Lebanon, Ill., crashed into a special carrying workmen on a siding at Oak Hill, 10 miles east of East St. Louis. In addition 12 men were treated for bruises and minor cuts.

The rear wheels of the limited car took the siding, though the front truck had passed it, going at about 30 miles an hour. The rear of the limited smashed into the special, tearing away one end. A defective switch appears to have caused the accident.

The seriously injured were taken to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis. They are:

Jonathan Kiesling, 18, fractured skull.

Edward Miller, 20, injured back and possible internal injuries.

Charles Meyer, 18, bruises and cuts, and his brother, George, 16, broken left arm and cuts.

All the injured were employes of the Eureka Steel Range Co., at Willis Station, one mile East of O'Fallon, en route to their homes in Lebanon.

The special, in charge of Motorman Roy Alexander of O'Fallon, had stopped on the sidetrack to let the Limited pass. The Limited was in charge of Motorman Arthur Schackman of O'Fallon.

PENNSYLVANIA SUPREME COURT FORBIDS SUNDAY BASEBALL

Upholds by Vote of 5 to 2 Blue Law of 1794 Against "Worldly Employment."

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Professional baseball is worldly employment and, if played on Sunday in Pennsylvania, is a violation of the blue laws of 1794, The State Supreme Court decided today.

The decision is the result of a test game played last Aug. 22 between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox.

Only three cities in the major leagues do not play Sunday baseball—Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Boston.

Five of the seven Justices agreed in the majority opinion. The other two, while agreeing that Sunday baseball violated the law, dissented from the majority in the method of stopping it.

King Alfonso Arrives in London.

LONDON, June 25.—King Alfonso of Spain arrived here from Dover this evening, accompanied by the Duke of Miranda. He was met by King George, the Prince of Wales, Prince George and members of the Spanish colony. After official greetings, King Alfonso proceeded to a hotel.

TOO MUCH MAGIC IN KEY THAT OPENED 3 LOCKS

J. M. Kelly and Merchants in Dispute Over Award of Auto as Prize.

Twenty Cherokee street merchants, who devised the plan of awarding prizes to the holders of "magic keys" that would open locks chained to telephone poles in front of their stores, reckoned without J. M. Kelly of 3916 Arsenal street.

Kelly yesterday registered a complaint with the Better Business Bureau of St. Louis, charging that he held a key that opened three prize-winning locks, including one for an automobile, but that the merchants refused to turn over the machine.

An investigation by a representative of the Better Business Bureau following Kelly's complaint to that organization and the Post-Dispatch, brought the declaration from the 20 merchants that Kelly's key is an expert piece of locksmithing, but does not entitle him to the automobile. The merchants say the prize-winning locks must be opened with a "magic key" given with a dollar purchase.

Kelly declares the key he used to open the lock entitling him to the automobile was given him at a neighborhood theater in the Cherokee district. Close examination of the key led K. G. Hood of the Better Business Bureau to believe that the key had been altered. Although the Better Business Bureau frowns on lotteries, Hood found nothing in connection with the controversy requiring his further services, and left Kelly and the merchants to compose their dispute. The merchants have presented a hat to Mrs. Kelly and a box of candy, won by opening two locks, but decline to turn over the automobile because of the alleged alteration of the key used in opening that particular lock.

Kelly is seeking legal advice, and is still hopeful of riding in the automobile.

Representatives of the Cherokee Business Men's Association told Hood that the organization had condemned the "magic key" contest, although some of the merchants fostering it are members of the association. Last November the association got into difficulties with the Humane Society over a proposal to use stray cats in an advertising novelty.

WOMAN AND TWO OTHERS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Owner, Pilot and Passenger Die in Accident on Outskirts of Winner, S. D.

WINNER, S. D., June 25.—Three persons were killed when an airplane fell 2000 feet on the outskirts of Winner this evening.

The dead are H. G. Moorehead of Wasta, S. D., owner of the plane; H. H. Hansen of Platte, the pilot, and Miss Lulu Lawrence of Winner, a passenger.

Dog Saves Four of Five Boys.

BRAMPTON, Ont., June 25.—When a sand bank near Fletcher's Creek caved in today five boys and a dog were buried alive. The dog cleared the sand in such a way as to admit air to all the boys except his owner, Fred Warr, 12. This boy was beyond recovery when taken out a few minutes later. The four other boys were soon revived.

TAKE-OFF SET FOR 4 A. M. UNLESS WIND CHANGES

Fueling of Plane Speeded Up Under Glare of Army Searchlight as Starting Plans Are Given.

FLYING CONDITIONS ARE NOT IDEAL

Reports of Clearing Weather Over Atlantic Hastens Decision to Begin Flight; Crew Sleeps.

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 26 (Sunday)—The monoplane "America," carrying Commander Richard E. Byrd and three companions, will hop off for France between 4 and 6 o'clock this morning if there is not a cross wind on the field at that time.

Shortly before 1 o'clock, Grover Whalen, vice-president of the America Trans-Oceanic Co., announced that a take-off had been positively decided on if the wind swings around to make leaving the runway possible.

Wind Swinging to West.

At that time the wind was southwest and would have to swing almost to due west to give the plane the headwind it needs to take the air.

A cross wind makes a hop-off impossible. The wind during the night had been swinging in the right direction and it was believed it would be in excellent position by dawn.

"We have decided to go," Whalen said. "Conditions are not ideal but we have never asked that."

"They are good and if this local wind gets right to let the ship into the air it will start as soon as it's all loaded."

Plan Take-Off at 4 A. M.

He set the earliest possible moment for a take-off at 4 o'clock and said that if the wind was not right then they would stand by until 6. If the wind should not come around by then, he said, the flight would be put off another day, as an early morning take-off is deemed advisable.

James H. Kimball, weather bureau meteorologist, reached on the telephone by newspaper men at the hanger, said one storm was brewing in Pennsylvania and another was sweeping over from Lake Erie.

"In my opinion," he said, "It would take fancy navigating for the 'America' to get off at 4 o'clock."

Four o'clock in the morning, Commander Byrd has said, is the best time for a take-off as the air has better lift at that time and by leaving at t at time daylight is assured over the first leg of the flight to Newfoundland.

At Whalen's statement activity was redoubled about the great plane, where it squatted in the glare of an army searchlight at the top of the runway.

The men who had been pumping gasoline into the great tanks for the past hour accelerated their motions, and mechanics oiled and greased and tested stays and bolts as though racing against time.

Food for the flyers was packed away in the cabin, two roast chickens, 20 sandwiches, coffee and tea.

Byrd and Crew Rest.

Commander Byrd and his three associates, Bert Acosta, Lieutenants George Noville and Bernt Balchen, continued to rest, or try to rest, at their hotel in Garden City, as the final preparations were made for their flight.

Shortly after Whalen made his statement, the breeze, which had been blowing briskly, suddenly died.

The flag atop the hangar, which had been snapping in the wind all evening, hung limply straight down.

Such remaining wind as was still recorded on instruments, however, indicated a continuing swing to the west, auguring well for a 4 o'clock take-off.

With the dying of the wind a fine drizzle started falling but it was not believed this would develop enough to do any damage.

AMERICAN LIFE BEST ON EARTH, SAYS COOLIDGE

Tells South Dakota Legislators Highest Plane of Existence Is to Be Found in U. S.

SHAKES HANDS OF 400 VISITORS

Guests Travel 200 Miles to Summer White House—Dispense With All Formality.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
RAPID CITY, S. D., June 25.—President Coolidge told members of the South Dakota Legislature this afternoon that life in America, no matter in what sphere of activity, afforded the highest plane of existence in the world.

He received the Legislators on the lawn at the State Game Lodge this afternoon. They had come from Pierre, 200 miles away, on a special train to Rapid City and by motor to the lodge. The President and Mrs. Coolidge stood on the lawn and shook hands with each of the 400 men, women and children in the party before the President delivered his brief address of welcome.

There are 130 members of the Legislature, but most of them brought their entire families to see the distinguished Black Hills vacationist.

Dispenses With Formality.

"We may dispense with all formality," the President said, addressing them. "I can scarcely let an occasion like this go by without expressing my sincere appreciation to you for the cordial invitation sent to me by your Governor and Legislature to spend the summer here.

"We find this location exceedingly acceptable to us. It reminds me very much of my native hills of Vermont, except they are not on so large a scale.

"We are reminded of them by the people here. The hills here are like the ones where I was brought up. Some of the fish do not look quite natural. They are a little larger than some in the streams I fished as a boy. That is just an example that things are on a larger scale here.

"The hills are higher here; people are more plentiful; the plains are wider; there are more cattle roaming in the fields, more brood mares with their foals; more sheep than in my native Vermont hills. They are of the same type and variety and they make me feel exceedingly at home.

Life Best Under American Flag.

"But, here as there, we are under the same flag. Let me leave this thought with you. Anyone who has an occupation, or, as they say on the street, a job under that flag, no matter whether industry, agriculture or commerce, that person may be assured he has the best occupation or job of anyone on earth. That is what the American flag means.

"While, of course, it is natural that we should all want to better our condition, that is the American ideal. It is also well to remember that wherever we are in America, we are in a station better than anyone else on earth.

"Again I want to express my appreciation to your Governor and the officers of your Legislature for coming here and to express to you my deep appreciation of the hospitality shown us throughout South Dakota."

Gathering Typical of Northwest.

It was a gathering typical in every way of the Northwest. There was Tom Berry, representative from Mellett County, who relieves himself from the cares of state by spinning a lariat, to the envy of the more urbane members from Sioux Falls, Mitchell and Huron. There was the cowboy senator from the northwestern part of the State whose constituency includes a county without railroad and telephones.

Well to the fore were the lawyers, bankers and a few merchants as well dressed and poised as Mr. Coolidge himself, and in back of them some farmer members with the sunburned countenance of the corn and wheat fields. It was an assemblage from the country where East meets West—lawyers, bankers, merchants, farmers, miners, ranchers and cowboys.

When Mr. Coolidge had concluded his informal talk, a husky-voiced member called out:

"Let's hear from the First Lady, too."

Mrs. Coolidge waved a greeting and turned to leave with the President, who smiled broadly. A real Western "Hip Hip, Hooray!" was then given for Mr. Coolidge and the party set out for Lookout Mountain, 10 miles away, whose name was changed yesterday by the Legislature to Mount Coolidge.

The party of legislators and their families were swelled considerably by natives and tourists anxious to shake the President's hand. As the file was passing, a shrill voice was heard to address the President.

"I saw you fishing today, Mr. Coolidge. How was your luck?"

The President smiled down on a youth about 8 years old, Robert Carpenter, of Clark, S. D.

"I caught three," Mr. Coolidge replied, and the boy went happily on his way.

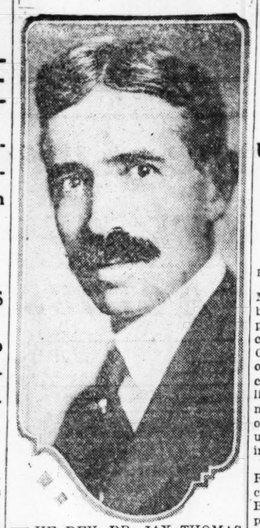
NEW PASTOR OF PILGRIM CHURCH



THE REV. DR. JAY THOMAS Stocking will become pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church here Oct. 1, succeeding the Rev. Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, who goes to Boston to take the pastorate of historic old South Church. Dr. Stocking is 57 years old and has been pastor of Union Congregational Church, Upper Montclair, N. J., since 1916. He is the author of several books, including "The Dearest Spot on Earth," "The City That Never Was Reached" and "Mr. Friend o' Man."

FRENCH ROYALIST IS FREED BY HOAX

Leon Daudet, an Associate, and a Communist Walk Out of Prison.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, June 25.—Premier Poincare called a Cabinet meeting tonight to consider the startling hoax by which the Royalist leader, Leon Daudet, was released from Sante prison today. Director Catry of the Sente prison, victim of the hoax, was suspended and ordered tried by a disciplinary board for releasing prisoners without order.

Daudet was serving a five-month sentence for libel. Two other prisoners, M. Delest, an associate of Daudet, and Secretary General Semard of the Communist party, also were permitted to walk out. Their whereabouts remained unknown tonight.

Called by Telephone.

Shortly after noon today Catry received a telephone call. "Catry," a voice told him, "I am speaking for the Minister of the Interior. The Cabinet decided this morning to release Daudet, his lieutenant Delest and the Communist leader Semard. Get busy, let them out before the news becomes public, as there may be manifestations." M. Catry hesitated about releasing the prisoners without the usual papers. He called up the Ministry of the Interior and asked for confirmation of the order. The reply was sharp and instant.

"What are you waiting for to execute the orders of the minister?" exclaimed the voice at the ministry. "You are going to get me into trouble. Go ahead. Release Daudet, Delest and Semard."

Accordingly, M. Catry went into the gallery of the building where political prisoners are confined and told Daudet: "I have good news."

"Indeed," replied the Royalist leader. "If so, it is the first that I have received from official sources in a long time." Then the director told Daudet he was free and added: "Get your belongings ready to leave the prison in 15 minutes."

Hustled Away in Car.

Obediently, Daudet came out, apparently without knowledge of what had happened. Immediately he was taken in charge by friends who hustled him into a car in which Mme. Daudet was waiting and he was whisked away.

According to an account given out by L'Action Francaise, Daudet's newspaper, the releases were affected by the Camelots du roi, "King's henchmen," an organization of Daudet's supporters.

There are 12 telephone wires reaching the Ministry of the Interior. It appears that 11 of them were mysteriously out of order at the time M. Catry telephoned the ministry and the twelfth had a plotter at its end.

Much surprise was caused by the inclusion of Semard in the jail delivery, as the Communist leader was serving a sentence for inciting soldiers to disobedience.

55 INDICTED IN $100,000,000 STOCK FRAUD

Usury and Obtaining Money by False Pretenses Charged in Collapse of Julian Petroleum.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 25.—More than a score of prominent business men are among the 55 persons indicted as a result of the collapse of the Julian Petroleum Corporation following a large over-issue of stock. Locally the case is called the $100,000,000 Julian stock scandal. Obtaining money by false pretenses, violation of the corporate securities act and usury are among the charges in the indictments.

Among those indicted are I. F. Rouse, vice president of the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank, and S. C. Lewis, resigned president of the Julian corporation. Both are charged with two counts of conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses and violating the state corporate securities act.

Lewis and 13 others appeared in Superior Court and gave bond of $200,000 to guarantee their appearance. Among those indicted are:

E. H. (Jack) Rosenberg, said to have been a director of the pools which caused the over-issue of Julian stock.

H. F. Campbell, vice president of the Julian corporation.

R. M. Reese, president of A. C. Wagy & Co., brokers, who closed their doors after trading in Julian stock was suspended.

Charles E. Reese, his brother, vice president of Wagy & Co.

Alvin H. Frank president of A. H. Frank & Co., automobile finance dealers.

H. W. Chotiner, dealer in investment securities.

Morris Weinstein, head of a Spring street mortgage company.

I. O. Levy, president of the Berehent-Levy Insurance Co.

Phillip Grossman, money lender.

E. Bastheim, jeweler.

J. Farbstein and H. Gutterman, money lenders.

Others indicted are: Jacob Berman, alias Bennett, now in New York; his brother, Louis Berman; T. P. Conroy, secretary of the Julian corporation, and William C. Kottemann, manager of Wagy & Co., and several other money lenders.

When the 4,200,000 over-issue of shares of Julian stock was revealed several months ago, trading in this stock was suspended on the Los Angeles and San Francisco stock exchanges and the state corporation commission revoked all its stock sales permits. The full extent of the unauthorized issue of shares, variously estimated between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000, was not fully known until the investigation had been under way for several weeks. Usurious interest rates are alleged to have been charged by bankers and money lenders during the manipulation of the stock in pools.

Lewis, who took charge of the corporation when its founder, C. C. Julian, retired two years ago, was the principal witness before the grand jury.

Penalty on conviction for violating the corporate securities act is from one to five years in the State Penitentiary or one day to two years in the county jail, or a fine not to exceed $5000, or both such fine and imprisonment. For conviction of usury the penalty is from one day to two years in the county jail, or from one year to two years in the State Penitentiary.

Conviction for obtaining money by false pretenses carries a penalty of from one to 10 years in the State Penitentiary.

SHOOT IT OUT IN HOTEL HALL

One of Trapped Robbers and Detective Are Wounded.

By the Associated Press.
NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 25.—Robert Shearon, a private detective, and two youths alleged to have confessed later to hotel robberies, shot it out on the eighth floor of the Andrew Jackson Hotel here today. The detective was wounded in the leg, and one youth, who gave his name as Thomas Murray, Chicago, was seriously wounded. The other, registered as W. H. Slater, 21, was arrested later in his room.

Shearon said he hid in a room of the hotel to catch thieves and that about 4:30 a. m. the two men entered and started to search his trousers. He ordered them to throw up their hands and then started down the hall with them in custody when one suddenly wheeled and started firing. The other followed suit. Murray fell but the other ran and was arrested later in his room. Police said the pair confessed to a series of hotel robberies.

MAJ. DARGUE IN KANSAS CITY

Pan-American Tour Leader Lands After Visit in St. Joseph.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, June 25.—Herbert A. Dargue, Pan-American flight leader, arrived at Richards Field here at 5:05 p. m. from St. Joseph, Mo., on his tour of the United States. He will be a guest of the city tonight and tomorrow.

Maj. Dargue flew from Lincoln, Neb., to St. Joseph this morning in one hour and 19 mintues. This afternoon he visited Fort Leavenworth.

Spirited Display at Barracks Horse Show

Sixty Horses Take Part in Various Events—One Mutinous Jumper Wrecks Hurdles and Fences.

In spite of a temperature that got up around 92 in the shade, the second day's program of the sixth annual Military and Civilian Horse Show at Jefferson Barracks yesterday brought out as spirited a field of horses as ever champed a bit. They sweltered and lathered, but appeared to thrive on hot sunshine better than did the spectators who occupied about a third of the boxes. Their performance in the arena seemed in all respects as smooth and lively as a November show. There was plenty of activity from the time the mule skinners took the ring with their escort wagons at 2:15 o'clock, until the last ball was driven between the posts in the stick and ball contest about 6 o'clock.

Only one animal among the 60 or more which appeared during the afternoon displayed a disposition to mutiny. That was the handsome black army jumper, Dorcy, that jumped everything except the hurdles and the grandstand and broke up enough fences and gates to keep the barracks kitchens in kindling wood for a month.

"Get him out of here," the sweltering doughboys finally yelled. "He's making too much work."

Dorcy the Mutineer.

Dorcy, ridden by Sergt. O. M. Nolan, started the fireworks by smashing down the gate when his rider tried to get him on the field for the first hunters' and jumpers' event. Finally he was coaxed into the enclosure, but his method of approaching obstacles was sidewise or backward. He would clear one by two feet and go through the next one. He lowered the height of the wall about a foot for his competitors, and twice jumped entirely out of the ring. But to show how the thing should be done, he came back alone after the event was over and gave a sparkling exhibition. The same thing happened in the enlisted men's jumping contest, only this time he specialized on fences and knocked down about 50 feet of railing in the entrance gangway.

The $300 stake for three-gaited performers and the $200 five-gaited junior stake were the principal events. In the first Louis B. Robinson's sparkling black Wonder Girl took an easy first as everybody seemed to figure she should. She had just taken first in another three-gaited event. The award probably was the most popular of the day. There were prizes for all but one of the seven entries. Holly, exhibited by William A. Federer, was the only one that failed to finish in the money. Second went to Al Gries, shown by Dr. John R. Caulk; third to Dr. William C. Gadsby's Dainty Miss and fourth to Ethel King, owned and ridden by Miss Norma Engle.

In the five-gaited event, first went to Herbert M. Woolf's Masqueraded and second and third to Pantella and Harriet Lee, respectively, both of the Midland Stables. Dr. S. B. Westlake's Lady Grace took fourth.

St. Louis Winners.

Hunter's Chief, Paul Bakewell's blue ribbon veteran of many horse shows, had everything his own way in the five-gaited event for animals owned in St. Louis or vicinity. That smooth sailing chestnut made the contest seem a little top heavy. Norma Peavine, owned and ridden by A. N. Engle, took the red; Chief Golden McDonald of Walsh and Bakewell, the yellow, and Phil S. Medart's Leading Man the white ribbon in this ring.

Other stakes were the three-gaited saddle pair class won by Dr. Caulk's Al Gries and Mate, chestnuts ridden by Dr. William C. Gadsby and Miss Marceline Reyburn; the three-gaited class ridden by owners and the ring for five-gaited mares. Al Gries, a consistent winner, ridden by Dr. Caulk won the first and Mistletoe Maid exhibited by Herbert Woolf the second of these events.

Civilians Win Potato Race

Spectacular work by B. C. Benson, riding Black Ant, saved the day for the civilians against the army men in the potato race. And the civilian lineup included a woman, too. It was Miss Reyburn who brandished her spear and whacked other spears with the same skill and nonchalance she displayed in the later open jumping event when she took third, riding Bootlegger, owned by August A. Busch Jr. Big Mack, ridden by T. A. Salorgne, went out with the trophy in this contest, although some thought G. G. Woodruff's Meadowlark gave a better exhibition. G. G. Vest's Big Surprise got second.

In the jumping contest for enlisted men, the National Guard took first honors away from the regulars. A nimble mount ridden by Sergeant Harrison of the 138th Infantry took the blue with little difficulty. Babe, a post entry ridden by Private Heard, captured second place and Dock, another army mount piloted by Corporal Williams, third.

Lieut. F. A. Hennings, of the Thirteenth Field Artillery took the measure of seven or eight other entries in the stick and ball contest. He hammered the ball in a spectacular drive around the post in 46 seconds. Lieut. R. W. Broedlow also looked well in this event, taking second with a mark of 49.

LINDBERGH SWALLOWED UP UNNOTICED IN NEW YORK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 25.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, to welcome whom 4,300,000 residents of New York turned out less than two weeks ago, returned to this city for several hours today to discuss business affairs and was so completely lost in the crowd as John D. Straphanger and his millions of brothers. When Lindbergh returned to the estate of Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison at Locust Valley, L. I., tonight, his backer, Harry H. Knight of St. Louis, gave out a statement indicating that Lindbergh was considering some commercial proposition but had made no final arrangement.

Harold Bixby, Knight and William B. Robertson of St. Louis accompanied Lindbergh on his trip about New York, but nothing could be learned as to where they went.

Mrs. Davison reported today that Lindbergh "does nothing but pore over maps, atlases and globes."

Tomorrow the Colonel is expected to catch up on sleep. His privacy is insured by a corps of private detectives stationed at the end of the driveway, three-quarters of a mile from the Davison house, to keep visitors away.

TEN TO RECEIVE CLEMENCY

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The War Department practice of granting clemency to a limited number of military prisoners July 4 will be followed this year.

The prisoners to be released will be chosen from those who have excellent conduct records and who have served material portions of their sentences. Ten men, whose names are being withheld by the department, are to be released—four from Fort Leavenworth, Kan., two from Alcatraz Island, Cal., three from Governor's Island, New York, and one from the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Prince Edward Island Defeats Premier Advocating Government Sale of Liquor.

By the Associated Press.
CHARLOTTETOWN, Prince Edward Island, June 25.—Premier J. D. Stewart's Government, appealing to the people of Prince Edward Island on a policy of Government control of the sale of liquor, was overwhelmingly defeated in today's general election. Final returns gave him only six followers as against 24 for his Liberal opponent, A. C. Saunders.

In the last legislature Premier Stewart had 25 adherents, including the speaker, and the Liberal members numbered only four.

While today's election was not planned on a straight issue as between wets and drys, the campaign was bitterly contested on that basis. The Premier proposed a government control system similar to that in vogue in seven of the nine Canadian Provinces. The opposition leader, on the other hand, pledged himself to make a determined effort to enforce the existing prohibition law, while decreasing by 50 per cent the cost of physicians' prescriptions for the purchase of liquor. He proposed to hold a referendum in July, 1929, on the subject of government control.

Prince Edward Island, the first Province to legislate against the sale of liquor, and Nova Scotia are the only Provinces in Canada which have remained in the prohibition category, the others having adopted one form or another of government control.

BRIDESMAIDS FLY TO WEDDING

Attendants at Two Ceremonies Far Apart, Two Girls Use Plane.

By the Associated Press.
PRINCETON, N. J., June 25.—Miss Elizabeth G. Stillman and Miss Barbara Schieffelin of New York, bridesmaids at two weddings only three hours apart but separated by several hundred miles, nonchalantly stepped with all their finery into an airplane today and flew from one ceremony to the other.

They were attendants at the wedding this afternoon of Miss Marion Smith, daughter of Alexander Smith, executive secretary of Phinceton University, to Kenneth Twitchell of Brooklyn. About 2 o'clock the girls seated themselves in a monoplane, called from Curtiss Field, N. Y., and started for South Manchester, Conn., where the marriage of Miss Jane Cheney was to take place at 5 o'clock.

OBREGON ENTERS PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Declares for Liberty of Exercise of All Cults—Would Aid American Investments.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, June 25.—Gen. Alvaro Obregon tonight formally announced his candidacy for the presidency of the Republic.

Gen. Arnulfo Gomez has already been named as the candidate of the "Anti-reelectionist" party.

The announcement gave Obregon's position on the religious question, the relations between the United States and Mexico and the investment of American capital in Mexico.

Gen. Obregon declared for "complete liberty of the exercise of all cults, without admitting of any sectarian influence, and demanding always of ministers absolute respect to regulations which our laws establish." He asserted he would uphold energetically Mexico's sovereignty and decorum and her right to enact her own legislation with no limitations except those recognized by international law.

He also promised to facilitate investments by all honest American capital willing to co-operate with Mexico in the development of the country, with caution to prevent investments sought by "imperialistic Wall street capital," which by a campaign of falsehood may again, as in the past, attempt to provoke a Government crisis and armed conflict in Mexico.

The announcement was given out by Gen. Aaron Saenz, who resigned as Calles' Foreign Secretary, to become Obregon's campaign manager.

MOTORCYCLIST HURT IN CHASE IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Milton Mitchell, Going 70 Miles, Crashes Into Auto, Two Occupants Injured.

Milton Mitchell, 22 years old, a chauffeur, is in a serious condition at city hospital, where he was taken after his speeding motorcycle crashed into a Ford yesterday at Maple and Hodiamont avenues. Mitchell was being pursued by Deputy Constable Strain of St. Louis County, who said Mitchell was going 70 miles an hour.

The injured man lives at 4434A Easton avenue. Two occupants of the Ford, which in turning over broke off a lamp post, escaped with slight bruises, while Mitchell suffered a fractured skull. Strain told St. Louis police he and a companion had chased Mitchell east on Olive street road.

BOY KILLS MOTHER, SISTER AND HIMSELF

Another Sister Wounded—Slayer May Have Been Deranged by Heat.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PITTSBURG, Kan., June 25.—Mrs. J. W. Justice, 48 years old, and her daughter, Emma Jean, 4, are dead and another daughter, Evaline, 17, is near death, following a shooting at their farm home 20 miles southwest of Pittsburg late today. William Justice, 18-year-old son, killed the two, then himself.

The only explanation of the tragedy offered by other members of the family, is that the youth had become temporarily insane as a result of intense heat. The slayer and his brother, J. W. Justice Jr. had been plowing in their father's field all day. About 4 o'clock William left the field. He said nothing to his brother, and the first the latter knew of the shooting was when he heard the shots.

On reaching the house William had walked to a room in which a 12-gauge shotgun was kept. Returning, he fired directly at his mother. He next turned the gun on the younger sister. She died on the way to a hospital. He then reloaded the gun and wounded the other sister, probably fatally. Then he turned the gun on himself and inflicted a fatal wound.

The father was in West Mineral, three miles away, at the time of the shooting.

BREST TO HONOR AMERICANS

Will Erect Monument to Soldiers Who Landed There.

By the Associated Press.
BREST, France, June 25.—The Municipal Council has approved the plan for the erection of a monument to the American soldiers who entered and left France through this port during the World War and after the armistice. Out of 2,082,000 American soldiers landing in France, 791,000 first touched French soil at Brest.

The proposed monument is to be 70 feet high and will be erected in the Cours Dajot overlooking the anchorage and gulf.

Funeral of Soldier and Bride.

Funeral services of Private Orville Jones of Jefferson Barracks and his bride of two months, Mrs. Gertrude Boeke Jones, who were killed by a Missouri Pacific passenger train south of the Barracks Friday afternoon, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at an undertaking establishment at 7314 South Broadway. Burial will be at the National Cemetery at Jefferson Barracks, with military honors.

COUNTRY CLUB POLO TEAM BEATS LOUISVILLE, 9-5

Spectacular Playing, Both Defensive and Offensive, Marks Exciting, Cleanly Fought Contest.

WILL MEET TODAY IN SECOND MATCH

Automobiles Will Be Permitted to Park During Game — Conditions for Playing Ideal.

It was "a day in June" with all the connotations yesterday, when the St. Louis Country Club team defeated the Louisville Country Club, 9 to 5, in the first polo match here this season.

There was the sun and springy turf for the players, the shade and west wind for the spectators. And the rare loveliness of the day was matched by beauty of the strength and precision, speed and utter sportsmanship in the game itself—polo which eminently rose to its setting, and the setting was something to rise to.

Great maples on the club terrace, plumy rows of poplars on the other side and the sun-lit green field between. Above the lofty tops of the maples, a rippling American flag. Below, women's dresses blending softly in the shadows in a subtly shifting cloud of colors, delicate colors without any of the flat, downright, vehement shades which have battled in many crowds this summer. Overhead, the fathomless summer sky, and gleaming above the dim hills at the horizon, the cottony cloud-rim that glorifies the St. Louis sky in June and early October.

Spectacular Polo Playing.

Sheer cleanness and smoothness of play rose to spectacular heights. The only foul occurred when one player crossed another's path behind the ball in a moment so fast and furious that it was almost inevitable. Somehow the game partook of the serenity of the setting as nearly as it is possible to be serene on the back of a demoniac pony when horse and rider are fighting like fiends in the midst of 14 other fighting fiends, human and equine.

As frequently occurs in polo, the score gives little indication of how hot the contest was. For five long minutes after the game began the ball was in St. Louis territory. More than once it was in front of the goal posts when G. Hayward Niedringhaus, No. 4 and chief defense for the St. Louis club, sent it bounding back toward the center of the field. Right there it seemed to strike an invisible barrier. Always it was promptly started back to the St. Louis goal, until Mahlon Wallace Jr., No. 2 and offense leader, broke away and ran with it the whole length of the field for the first score of the game.

Louisville's Defense Strong.

Again the ball returned to St. Louis territory, and it remained there for seven minutes before, in the second chukker, Wallace scored again. In two minutes he had repeated. It looked as though St. Louis had solved the visitor's strategy, but before the period ended Capt. George I. Smith had passed to Frank Hogue for the first Louisville score.

The Hogue and Smith combination was one that accomplished much in later periods. Capt. Smith, at No. 3, is captain of the Louisville team and also had played against the St. Louis team with the One Hundred and Thirtieth Field Artillery, of which he is an officer. Hogue played a cunning and dependable No. 4. Their smooth passing saved several goals for Louisville and accounted for some of the Louisville scores.

Wallace and Niedringhaus scored for St. Louis in the third before Capt. Smith fought clear of a scramble and drove for the goal. The ball struck a goal post, seemed to hesitate and went through. The half ended, 5 to 2, for St. Louis.

Thrills in Series of Passes.

Louisville players came back for the last half as four bundles of methodical madness, a combination that carried the ball to Hogue on a thrilling series of passes. Hogue scored. In less than 15 seconds Wallace, on a perfect team play from the toss-in, had retaliated.

This period and the last showed the fastest and finest polo of the game. Frequently a play looked like a diagram of ideal polo, with the players riding in opposing pairs, White and Red, along the path of the ball. More than once the ball traveled the length of the field, only to be driven out by the pressure of a guard riding his man and riding him hard. Sevier Bonnie, No. 2, scored for Louisville. His team made two goals to one for St. Louis in that period.

Saved Speed for Last.

Slower mounts came into the next one. The equine streaks of lightning were being saved for the last. But the fighting was no less fierce, though the chukker ended without a score for either side.

The last was speed itself. E. C. Simpson III, scored for St. Louis. Then Simpson again. Then Hogue for Louisville. Then Alex T. Primm for St. Louis, and the game was over.

A new vantage-point for spectators and new color for the setting was added by the swimming pool, recently completed to the east of the terrace. A few in swimming suits perched on the springboard to watch, and others sought the shade of the striped parasols beside the pool.

But the pool occupies space given over to the public last year, so no invitation could be broadcast this year as it was then. However, persons driving that way this afternoon may enter the club grounds on Price road, south of Ladue road, park their automobiles on the south side of the field and watch today's game with Louisville from the machines. The game is to begin at 3:30.

The lineup:

Louisville	C. C. Position	St. L. C. C.
Byron Hilliard	No. 1	E. C. Simmons III
Ellerbe Carter	No. 2	Mahlon Wallace Jr.
Capt. G. I. Smith	No. 3	Alex T. Primm and Eugene F. Williams
Frank Hogue	No. 4	G. Hayward Niedringhaus C.
Sevier Bonnie, Louisville, No. 1 for periods 1 and 2; No. 2 for periods 3 and 4.

Referees, Capt. N. M. Neate of Jefferson Barracks and Cupples Scudder. Timekeeper—E. H. Simmons.

POLO VISITORS ENTERTAINED AT INFORMAL PARTIES

Society Turnout Small but Enthusiastic — Luncheon and Dinner Today.

A lovely June day added to the beauty of a perfect setting for the polo game between the Louisville Country Club team and the Red Birds, the team of the St. Louis Country Club, yesterday. Due to the increasing number of outdoor interests, and because the first contingent of St. Louis society has departed for the summer, the crowd was small, but none the less enthusiastic and interesting.

Several informal parties were given, preceding the game, for the visiting team and wives of members. Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. of the St. Louis Country Club grounds entertained at luncheon at the St. Louis Country Club. Her guests were Mrs. Sevier Bonnie, Mrs. E. Carter, Mrs. J. Byron Hilliard and Mrs. Frank Hogue of Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. Cupples Scudder, Mrs. Hayward Niedringhaus, Mrs. Pelham Turner and Mrs. Eugene F. Williams Jr.

Miss Janet Wallace and her mother, Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Sr. watched the game from the terrace, and Mr. and Mrs. Loisel Papin, Miss Ruth Leach and Mrs. Sam D. Capen Jr. made up another party.

The members of the Louisville team were guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by the Polo Association at the St. Louis Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Williams Jr. will give a luncheon at their home in the St. Louis Country Club grounds today, and this evening Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. will be hosts at a dinner for the visitors.

Sports outfits predominated, two-piece knitted or silk costumes being favored. However, a number of delicate tinted and flowered chiffon gowns, worn with large garden hats, were seen. Mrs. Williams wore a two-piece costume of printed silk in white and slate blue and a large red Milan hat.

Capt. N. M. Neate Describes Game, Calls It Ideal Polo.

Fast and clever polo, full of fight but clean, characterized the play at the St. Louis Country Club yesterday. Only one foul occurred, and that was not until the fifth chukker. Everyone was riding well, and there seemed to be no advantage in the mounts.

The pace accelerated considerably in the second half. The fifth and sixth chukkers in particular were packed with good and fast polo, long runs with the ball and spectacular recoveries and backing of the ball at the goal posts.

Capt. Smith starred for Louisville. His riding, stickwork and strategy were equally good. Hogue did effective work at No. 4, several times saving a goal when the ball was almost between the posts and functioning without a hitch in team play. Bonnie, too, figured in some nice plays—in fact, the Louisville team, all around, was one any team might be proud to meet.

The feature of the first chukker was a magnificent run by Wallace, the entire length of the field, for the first goal of the game. His stickwork was wonderful throughout the game, and he rode well and hard. Niedringhaus checking was good and the back-strokes, and he made a marvelously quick stroke to score with Louisville men right upon him.

It was an ideal day and the field was in ideal condition for ideal polo—and ideal polo it was.

Man Who Killed Rival Convicted

By the Associated Press.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 25—Kyle P. Currie, 22 years old, who shot and killed Leonard Heim last April, was found guilty of manslaughter in the third degree late today. The jury deliberated three hours. Currie, it was shown in the trial, upbraided Heim for going with his sweetheart, when he found the two together in a confectionery after a dance. He then shot Heim. The conviction carries a sentence of from six months to three years imprisonment.

REJECTED SUITOR FLINGS ACID AT WIDOW, THEN TAKES POISON

East St. Louis Cook Likely to Die After Futile Attacks on Woman in Cincinnati.

Melvin Parres of 1100 Cleveland avenue, East St. Louis, a cook, attempted to kill himself yesterday in Cincinnati, after he had flung acid at a young woman who refused to marry him, according to a dispatch.

Parres is not expected to live. He took poison after his attempt to disfigure Mrs. Emma McClellan, a young widow of Miamitown, O. "If I can't marry you then nobody else will," Mrs. McClellan says Parres told her before he flung the acid at her. It spattered her legs as she ran.

Parres' father is a carpenter. His mother has departed for Cincinnati.

THREE WOMEN AND MAN HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

One Victim Rolled by Street Car After Being Struck by Machine.

Three women and a man were injured, three of them seriously, in automobile accidents last night.

While crossing Grand boulevard at Wilmington avenue, at 9 o'clock Mrs. Elizabeth Steinemann, 68 years old, of 3647 Fillmore street, was struck by an automobile and suffered a fracture of one leg and a possible fracture of the skull.

Frank Martin, 21, driver of the automobile, later surrendered himself to police.

In a collision at Newstead avenue and Washington boulevard, Mrs. Sarah Rosenstein, 52, was seriously injured and her daughter, Gertie, 27, suffered cuts and bruises. Their machine was struck by a machine driven by Erickson Lewis, 29, of 5089 Westminster place. Mrs. Rosenstein was taken to Missouri Baptist Hospital. Lewis was arrested.

Henry Tobias, 51, of 5729 Penrose avenue, was struck by an automobile at Easton and Academy avenues at 10 o'clock and knocked into the path of a Wellston street car which rolled him along the tracks several feet. He was taken to City Hospital and found to be suffering from possible skull fracture.

ENDS LIFE BY POISON IN HUSBAND'S OFFICE

Mrs. Agnes Couden, 47, Said to Have Worried Over Her Ill Health.

Mrs. Agnes Couden, 47 years old, of 955 Maple place, died in City Hospital at 5:35 p. m. yesterday, three hours after taking poison in the office of her husband, Elliott R. Couden, district representative of the Federal Securities Corporation, 216 Rialto building.

Illness and fear of lung trouble apparently preyed on Mrs. Couden's mind, her husband said.

She left home early yesterday afternoon to go to her husband's office. She excused herself and went into a room adjoining that in which Couden was working. A few minutes later he found her semi-conscious.

She is survived by three children—Elliott Jr., 15; Ethel, 18, and a married daughter, Mrs. J. H. Windmueller.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at an undertaking chapel at 4449 Olive street.

AMERICAN MURDERED BY CRAZED CHINESE IN MEXICO

Robert C. Howell, Son-in-Law of President Boyd of Louisiana U.; Shot in Office.

By the Associated Press.

NOGALES, Ariz., June 25.—Robert C. Howell, president of the Mexico-Arizona Trading Co., was murdered in his office at Los Mochis, Sinaloa, Mexico, yesterday by a crazed Chinese, Gelipe Chan.

Howell was shot through the chest and died almost instantly, according to information received here today from the American consular agency at Los Mochis. Chan was arrested.

Howell was 44 years old. His company was one of the largest tomato packers and shippers on the Mexican west coast. His home was at Baton Rouge, La. Mrs. Howell, daughter of President T. D. Boyd of the University of Louisiana, was the only white woman in Los Mochis when her husband was killed.

The killing was understood to have been an outgrowth of the heavy failure of the past season's tomato crop and the resultant difficulties of growers obtaining full payment for their crops.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—As a tribute to Americans who served in the Canadian forces in the World War, Canada will erect in Arlington National Cemetery a 24-foot memorial cross, the Canadian legation announces today. The memorial, authorized by the Canadian Parliament, will cost $10,000.

FOUR KILLED, 15 HURT IN STREET CAR CRASH

Local and Limited Trains Collide Head-On Near Dayton, O.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, O., June 25.—Four persons were killed and 15 injured in a head-on collision between a local and a limited street car near McCook Field tonight.

The dead are:

John Bemberton, Piqua, motorman on local car.

Harley Folkerth, 26 years old, Tippecanoe City.

Ben Reed, address unknown.

Julius Yale, address unknown.

The majority of the injured were from Dayton, Tippecanoe City, Piqua and small towns in the Miami valley.

The cars telescoped when the limited car, which had disobeyed instructions, according to officers of the Dayton & Troy Traction Co., crashed head-on into the local. The Northbound limited failed to heed instructions that the two cars should pass at "No. 100," and passed that point.

Bemberton, motorman on the Southbound local, was instantly killed when the cars crashed.

The Northbound limited was in charge of Tippecanoe City men—Covert Kessler, motorman, and Hobart Stephens, conductor. They are not on the injured list, but Mrs. Kessler, wife of the motorman, is in a hospital here with injuries.

The cars stayed upright on the track, but were badly splintered.

E. ST. LOUIS SALOONS MUST PAY $200 FEE

Mayor Orders 133 Dispensers of Malt to Take Out Licenses.

The owners of 133 saloons in East St. Louis, where police have reported beer and whisky were being sold, have been ordered by Mayor Frank Doyle to take out malt beverage licenses at $200 a year each, as one means of restoring to the city treasury revenue from saloon licenses taken away by prohibition.

Mayor Doyle said, in explaining his action, that while East St. Louis police in making a survey of 179 saloons under suspicion of selling home brew and whisky have listed 133 as places where the law is being violated as to prohibition, he does not believe evidence can be obtained to convict the saloonkeepers and keep them convicted or drive them out of business. But he is determined, he said, that they shall not escape paying the malt beverage tax, which would add $26,600 to the city's general revenue each year if all paid up.

An Economic Move

It was an economic, not a moral survey, Mayor Doyle insists. The city government of East St. Louis faces an $900,000 deficit for the year. It was up to the Doyle administration to open new fields of revenue. His campaign slogan had been "Let's Be Frank," and he urged frankness upon the police who visited the 133 saloons in the bootleggers' directory. Thus, they reported that these places sold not only nonalcoholic malt beverages which would make them liable to the increased tax but sold beer and whisky as well.

Commissioner of Public Safety Herman Zierrath, who as head of the Police Department conducted the survey of bootleggers, said: "We know the places on the list are bootlegging and they can easily afford to pay the malt beverage tax."

When They Sell It.

Compilation of the directory discloses that there are eight bootlegging resorts on Collinsville avenue; seven on State street, and 11 on Broadway in the heart of downtown East St. Louis. Police reported locating 38 beer and whisky places in the southeastern section known as the "Black Lands" where a large Negro populace resides. The Valley," formerly a segregated vice district is represented by 14 saloons on the directory, the foreign settlement about the stockyards has 22 and there are 24 scattered in outlying residence districts.

The tax for the places selling soft drinks containing no malt is $60 a year. At present there are but 17 places which admit selling "near beers" and pay the $200 annual malt beverage tax, while 179 saloons were ranked in the non-malt classification. Mayor Doyle ordered the check-up to determine how many of the 179 saloons could be eased into the malt beverage column.

Among the names on the official bootleggers' directory, reporters found 30 saloonkeepers who have been fined in Federal Court for bootlegging within the last 18 months.

Eight-Cent Fare on U. R. To Take Effect July 5

the amount set aside and the amount charged against it, or $6,183,099, leaving as the tentative valuation $52,024,192.

It was estimated in the opinion that the increased fare would give the company an additional revenue of $1,466,846 a year on the basis of the number of passengers carried in 1926, in which, the commission found, the company had available for return after meeting operating expenses, $2,447,864. Estimating that taxes and other operating expenses would increase over the 1926 figure, the commission finally arrived at $3,686,710 as the amount which would be available for return on the investment under the increased fare. This would be approximately 7.1 per cent on a valuation of $52,000,000.

City Overruled.

The commission held against the City on its contention that the receiver of the United Railways Co. was charged only with preserving the property, and not with making a return for the stockholders, and that the lines in the city and St. Louis County should be considered separately.

On the question of the receivership the commission held that "the evidence so far submitted does not show that the cost of operation of petitioner's property, under the present management, is more expensive than it would be under private ownership, or that a greater net return could be secured under private ownership."

"Under the law," the commission ruled a "public utility is entitled to earn a fair return upon the fair value of its property dedicated to the service of the public; it matters not whether such property be operated by a receiver or under private ownership."

On the city's contention that the city and county lines should be considered separately the commission ruled the property should be considered as a whole in fixing rates, referring to previous decisions in which such separation was denied.

Present Rates Insufficient.

"The present rates are insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the service rendered and are unjust and unreasonable," it was stated in the order.

The city has contended in previous hearings that the annual flat allowance of $1,500,000 for depreciation was excessive, but the Commission ruled it would not disturb this allowance pending the final determination of the case. That the Commission is likely to scale down the depreciation allowance somewhat is indicated by its deduction of the credit balance of $6,183,099 that had accrued in the depreciation reserve from January 1, 1919, to December 31, 1926, in fixing the tentative valuation of $52,024,192.

A pending change in ownership in the company, through sale of the property at foreclosure to terminate the receivership, has no bearing on the questions in the rate and valuation case, the Commission held, and that point, raised by the city, was discarded.

History of Case.

The first petition for the rate increase was filed by the company on June 3, 1926; the company seeking an 8-cent fare, two tokens for 15 cents and no change in the children's fare of three cents. The Commission ordered an audit of the company's books on June 14, 1926.

On October 23, 1926, the company filed a supplemental petition, asking the Commission to grant whatever increase was necessary to give a return pending completion of the case. In that petition the company asserts its monthly earnings were $116,000 less than what the company was entitled to earn.

Last January the company attempted to take a "short cut" to the Federal courts by filing with the Commission an increased fare schedule it proposed to put into effect on Feb. 7, last. The Commission suspended the schedule for 120 days, for investigation, and the company went into Federal Court to obtain an injunction to restrain the Commission from enforcing the suspension.

U. S. Injunction Dissolved.

A temporary injunction was issued in Federal Court under which the company charged an 8-cent fare, two tokens for 15 cents, from Feb. 7 to Feb. 28. On final hearing in Federal Court at Kansas City, the injunction was dissolved and the case returned to the jurisdiction of the commission.

On April 9, 1927, the company filed an amended petition asking for a straight 8-cent fare, a return of 8 per cent on its valuation, and contending the valuation of the property was "at least $75,000,000," exclusive of nonoperating property.

In hearings on the latter petition before the commission last May the company contended the value of its operating property was $98,573,000 on the basis of reproduction new, less depreciation.

The city asked for a postponement of six months to prepare its case. In the order today the commission stated it has received a letter from the City Counselor on June 17 suggesting that if the commission did not believe it fair to delay the question of fares until the city completed its investigation, an order be issued fixing a temporary valuation and fares, using evidence submitted so far.

It was suggested that if this were done, the case be set for additional hearing after the city has had an opportunity to complete its investigation.

Similar temporary orders have been issued by the commission in other cases, while an investigation was in progress.

Effect on Public Service Co. Uncertain, Says Mayor.

Mayor Miller said yesterday he was not prepared to express an opinion as to the effect the 8-cent fare and the fixing of the United Railways valuation at $52,000,000 would have upon the proposal to give the St. Louis Public Service Co., which soon will take over the operation of the street railways, a 30 year franchise.

"The increase will be in effect for six months under the Commission's order," he said, "and that will give plenty of time for consideration."

JAMES T. WALKER MADE HIS WILL ONLY 2 WEEKS AGO

Trustees Turned Over $4,898,416 to Princeton Graduate Killed Friday in Airplane Crash.

Two weeks before James Theodore "Teddy" Walker, 21 years old, was killed in an airplane crash near Pottsville, Pa., Friday, an estate valued at $4,898,416 was turned over him by the trustees at the office of his St. Louis attorney, Judge Daniel G. Taylor, and he made his will.

Judge Taylor said last evening he could not discuss the contents of the document before it is filed for probate which will be after the funeral, tentatively set next Tuesday in St. Louis. It is understood, however, that young Walker made no large philanthropic bequests and that the bulk of the estate will go to family connections. He was an only child, and has no immediate relatives other than cousins and his stepfather, Dr. M. B. Clopton.

Funeral Set for Tuesday.

Dr. Clopton arrived in Pottsville yesterday and announced he would depart this afternoon with the body of his stepson. He will return on the Pennsylvania train "Spirit of St. Louis," arriving here at 1:30 tomorrow afternoon. The funeral has tentatively been set for Tuesday.

George Lea Lambert, Walker's cousin and college mate and the pilot of the plane which crashed has been quoted as saying he "never wants to see a plane again." He has been ordered by his physicians to remain in Pottsville for several days more to recuperate from the shock of the crash and from minor injuries. His parents, Maj. and Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert of St. Louis are with him. L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific, has offered his private car for their return to St. Louis.

The Walker estate descended to James T. Walker from his grandmother, Mrs. Lily Lambert who died in 1889. She left her wealth in trust funds of equal size for the benefit of her children. When young Walker's mother, Mrs. Lily Lambert Walker Clopton died in 1911 he was bequeathed two-thirds of her share, the other third being left to his stepfather, Dr. Clopton, whose home is at 5391 Waterman avenue.

$2,500,000 in Bonds.

A friendly suit determined that Mrs. Walker had no rights to bequeath the trust fund left to her by her mother, and all must go to her son at the expiration of a trust period to last until he became of age.

Walker was 21 last March and the Mercantile Trust Co., which had acted as trustee, prepared to surrender control to him. The largest items of property turned over to him at the conference in Judge Taylor's office were $2,487,925 in Liberty Bonds; $1,375,000 of Lambert Pharmaceutical Co. stocks; $85,000 in Ely-Walker Dry Goods Co. stock and $50,000 in United States Treasury notes.

Dr. Clopton was mentioned in a farewell note written by Walker just before the airplane crash, when it appeared to him that Lambert, could not bring it down safely.

Princeton Graduates.

The note bore the words "Good-by Mal, Carol"—— and was found clutched in Walker's hand when he was removed from the wreckage. He died 30 minutes later without receiving consciousness. The "Carol" referred to is a girl friend of the deceased youth who resides in St. Louis and attends an Eastern school.

Walker and Lambert were flying in Lambert's plane from Princeton to Bellefont, Pa., when Lambert lost control. They had intended flying to St. Louis after a brief stay at Bellefont.

Wreck of Lambert Plane Laid to Faulty Fuel.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 25.—Faulty fuel has been suggested as a probable cause of the Lambert airplane crash here Friday, by A. O. Egbert, mechanic at the Lawrenceville, N. J. airfield who was the last man to work on the plane before it took off on the fatal flight. He said when questioned at Lawrenceville that when George Lambert and James T. Walker prepared for the trip no high test airplane gasoline was available, and ordinary automobile gasoline was placed in the tank. Young Lambert stated at the Pottsville Hospital today that 15 minutes before the crash the engine was missing badly. A clogged fuel line caused by impurities in the gasoline might have caused the motor to cut out and led to the tragedy.

Relatives and friends of the victim and survivors were here in large numbers today. Doctors have recommended that Lambert remain in the hospital several days longer to prevent infection in an eight inch cut on his left leg, his only serious injury. Lambert was still suffering from shock and grief. His father, mother and uncle were with him this evening.

Large crowds of sightseers flocked to the field where the wrecked machine lies. The farmer who owns the field charged 10 cents admission.

GOV. BAKER PRAISES MISSOURI MELONS IN PROSE AND VERSE

Country's Best in Size and Quality, He Says in Telling Club of Production.

Gov. Baker marked the opening of the watermelon season by paying tribute to that fruit in prose and verse in an address yesterday before the St. Louis Southeast Missouri Club.

In speaking of the assets of Southeast Missouri, he gave emphasis to its production of watermelons, saying: "Among fruit and vegetable crops, the production of watermelons has become one of great importance. From 3000 to 5000 carloads are produced in this section annually. Southeast Missouri watermelons are to be found in practically every watermelon market from Galveston to Montreal. No section of our country produces melons of such tremendous size or of such exceptionally fine quality. Southeast Missouri produces a sufficient number of watermelons each year to provide a large, juicy slice for each man, woman and child in the state of Missouri. Hal Cochran said it right:

"'You can talk about your shortcake, or your luscious cherry pie.
You can rave about your ice cream cones, but lissen—Me, oh my,
Is there anything as tasty, is there anything as nice,
As to gobble watermelon by the large an' juicy slice?'"

INJURED ON LAKE STEAMER

Miss Kate E. O'Brien Suffers a Broken Shoulder.

Miss Kate E. O'Brien, principal of Walnut Park School, suffered a broken shoulder Thursday when she fell down a flight of stairs on a lake steamer going from Detroit to Buffalo. She is now in a Buffalo hospital.

Miss O'Brien was on her way to New York with a party of tourists who sailed Saturday morning for Europe.

Word of her injury was received in St. Louis by Miss Margaret Regan, with whom she resided at 4008 Maffitt avenue. Miss Jennie Kelly, principal of O'Fallon School, who was traveling with Miss O'Brien, continued on the tour.

SUPREME COURT RULING ON STOCK DIVIDENDS

Holds They Can't Go to Beneficiaries of Trust Estate as Income.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 25.—Stock dividends declared by a corporation are not income, and the additional shares issued cannot be turned over as income to beneficiaries of a trust estate made up of the original stock, but must become a part of the trust estate. Division No. 1 of the Supreme Court held in an opinion handed down today.

The decision construed the will of Joseph M. Hayes of St. Louis as to disposition of the income of a $630,000 trust estate, which included approximately $400,000 in stock of the American Tobacco Co. Hayes, a dealer in woolen goods, died in January, 1919, leaving the $630,000 trust estate and real estate valued at more than $125,000.

Four stock dividends totaling 84 per cent were declared by the American Tobacco Co. in 1920, 1921 and 1923. Beneficiaries of the trust estate, who were Hayes' children and grandchildren, filed suit against the St. Louis Trust Co. and Mrs. Florence Hayes Wheeler, trustees, to determine whether the additional stock was income, to be turned over to the beneficiaries, or accrued to the principal of the trust estate.

Circuit Judge Hartmann of St. Louis held the additional shares constituted income and ordered a distribution of the stock to the beneficiaries. On appeal of the case, lawyers representing other trust companies handling estates filed briefs as "friends of the court," as no previous ruling on the question had been made in Missouri and it was considered of importance in handling of estates.

Commissioner George R. Ellison, author of the opinion, held the stock dividends were not income of the trust estate, and in a true sense were not dividends. He ruled the additional shares were an accretion to the trust estate, "because they represent no money or property severed from capital assets." The case was reversed and remanded, with instructions to the lower court to enter a judgment in accordance with the decision.

Missouri Boy Scouts Get Medals.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Archie Howell, 13 years old, and Samuel Lancaster, 16, both of Boonville, Mo., today were awarded honor medals by the Boy Scouts of America for heroism. They gained the medals for rescuing 6-year-old Brownie Neimeyer, who had fallen through the ice 40 feet from shore. He was pulled out of the water by his hair by Lancaster, whose feet were held by Howell.

WOMAN SENTENCED TO DEATH REFUSES CLEMENCY OFFER

Mrs. Katherine Cassler Third Woman to Be Condemned to Die in Illinois.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Mrs. Katherine Cassler of Crown Point, Ind., today became the third woman to be sentenced to death in Illinois. Neither of the other two was hanged, however, and one of them was acquitted at a second trial. The other's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

The death penalty was imposed by Judge Philip L. Sullivan who, even after the jury returned its verdict, gave Mrs. Cassler a chance to change her plea to guilty and be sentenced to life imprisonment, as were her confessed accomplices, Loren Patrick and Mrs. Lillian Fraser.

Patrick confessed that he was the actual slayer of William Lindstrom, a cabinet maker, with whom Mrs. Fraser had lived. At the time of the slaying, Mrs. Cassler admittedly sat in an automobile outside Lindstrom's home, but Patrick, who worked for Mrs. Cassler, and Mrs. Fraser testified that the condemned woman plotted the slaying so she could obtain $7500 life insurance.

Mrs. Cassler is the mother of four children. One of them, a boy 14 years old, her mother and her husband heard the death sentence passed upon her.

Mrs. Cassler said she "would rather hang, so my four children can say their mother is dead, rather than have to say she is in jail."

BOY KILLS MOTHER, SISTER AND HIMSELF

Another Sister Wounded — Slayer May Have Been Deranged by Heat.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Kan., June 25.—Mrs. J. W. Justice, 48 years old, and her daughter, Emma Jean, 8, are dead and another daughter, Evaline, 17, is near death, following a shooting at their farm home 20 miles southwest of Pittsburg late today. William Justice, 13-year-old son, killed the two, then himself.

The only explanation of the tragedy offered by other members of the family, is that the youth had become temporarily insane as a result of intense heat. The slayer and his brother, J. W. Justice Jr. had been plowing in their father's field all day. About 4 o'clock William left the field. He said nothing to his brother, and the first the latter knew of the shooting was when he heard the shots.

On reaching the house William had walked to a room in which a 12-gauge shotgun was kept. Returning, he fired directly at his mother. He next turned the gun on the younger sister. She died on the way to a hospital. He then reloaded the gun and wounded the other sister, probably fatally. Then he turned the gun on himself and inflicted a fatal wound.

The father was in West Mineral, three miles away, at the time of the shooting.

BREST TO HONOR AMERICANS

Will Erect Monument to Soldiers Who Landed There.

By the Associated Press.

BREST, France, June 25.—The Municipal Council has approved the plan for the erection of a monument to the American soldiers who entered and left France through this port during the World War and after the armistice. Out of 2,082,000 American soldiers landing in France, 791,000 first touched French soil at Brest.

The proposed monument is to be 70 feet high and will be erected in the Cours Dajot overlooking the anchorage and gulf.

Funeral of Soldier and Bride.

Funeral services of Private Orville Jones of Jefferson Barracks and his bride of two months, Mrs. Gertrude Boeke Jones, who were killed by a Missouri Pacific passenger train south of the Barracks Friday afternoon, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at an undertaking establishment at 7814 South Broadway. Burial will be at the National Cemetery at Jefferson Barracks, with military honors.

Foods Deliciously Broiled
in this New Quick Meal Gas Range with Red Wheel Lorain Regulator

YOU have noticed, of course, how much more juicy are meats broiled before or over an open fire. It is more than the picnic spirit that makes barbecued meats taste better. Direct rays of heat such as those from an open fire, called radiant heat, penetrate more readily, dry and scorch the surface less, and prevent the escape of wholesome meat juices.

The Quick Meal Radiant Broiler is based on this principle. It is made of fire clay sections. When the oven burner is lighted these instantly become white hot, giving off direct radiation at the almost unbelievable temperature of 2000 degrees. Bread can be toasted in this heat—starting with a cold broiler—in a minute's time, and after the burner is hot, toasting takes but a few seconds, deliciously done, crisp and soft. Meats, fish, and fowl are also quickly and tastily broiled, retaining all their fine flavors and juices. Broiled steaks—so tender and soft that you can cut them with a fork!

This Stove approved by the American Gas Association Research Laboratory.

JAPANESE ENVOY WOULD WELCOME TREATY WITH U. S.

Overtures for Pact Similar to Bryan Plan Would Be Well Received, Viscount Saito Says at Geneva.

INITIAL PROBLEM RATIO OF NAVIES

Mutual Defense Alliances Not in Favor Among Negotiators Striving for Pacific Guarantees.

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World) and Post-Dispatch.

GENEVA, June 25.—Establishment between the United States and Japan of a peace treaty similar to those negotiated by William Jennings Bryan while he was President Wilson's Secretary of State would be a logical outcome of a successful conclusion of the naval arms conference. This is a growing belief in Geneva.

Almost exactly 14 years after Japan notified Bryan that it accepted his peace plan in principle, Admiral Viscount Saito stated to the correspondent today that he would welcome American initiative for the consummation of a pact safeguarding the Pacific Ocean from war. Bryan's plan was for the signatory governments to agree to refrain from war for at least nine months while their differences were under consideration of an international joint committee.

Considerable uncertainty shrouds the idea which lurks in Japanese minds, especially following the denial that either the United States or Japan could be in sympathy with any three-part naval security pact which would guarantee world-wide naval domination by themselves and Great Britain.

Bryan Plan In Favor.

It can be stated authoritatively that while neither Tokio nor Washington would accept a supplementary three-party pact of such nature, both other governments would be willing to extend their principles along the lines of the Bryan peace agreements.

When the Bryan treaties were negotiated they failed to link the United States and Japan because of the ill feeling aroused in Japan by California's Japanese exclusion act which led to the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and the United States' repudiation of the "gentlemen's agreement."

Should the conference produce a satisfactory ratio for the limitation of auxiliary naval units, Admiral Saito is expected to be empowered or even urged by his government to add the weight of non-aggression pledges to the limitation treaties.

Another proposal receiving superficial consideration at this time is a non-aggression treaty similar to the four-power peace treaty negotiated in Washington among France, Great Britain, the United States and Japan. The four-power pact provides for state limitations to the status quo in the Pacific and that "if said rights are threatened by aggressive action by another power, the signatories shall communicate with one another fully and frankly in order to arrive at an understanding as to the most efficient measures to be taken jointly or separately to meet the exigencies of the particular occasion."

Line Drawn on Treaties.

But spokesmen for the United States and Japanese delegations point out specifically that no treaties smacking of the nature of mutual defense alliances against aggressions or limiting in any way the right to independent action are acceptable to their governments.

Joint action on the part of two signatories against the aggression of a third is erased from consideration. The farthest extent of such a treaty would be the signing of solemn pledges not to engage in aggression without exhausting all sources of conciliation.

Such a pact, it is pointed out, would be of great psychological effect against war. It must be predicated, however, upon a satisfactory arrangement for arms limitation which may or may not result from the present conference. It could not stand firmly upon a treaty in which any of the signatories is dissatisfied.

The conference continued today on its preliminary discussions of technical questions while Admiral Saito and Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States delegation, awaited additional instructions from their governments regarding the extent of their compliance with the desire expressed by W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the British Admiralty, "to discuss or at least put forward" the British viewpoint on the future reduction of capital ship tonnage and the extension of the life of such ships."

Open on British View.

Commenting on Bridgeman's statement that he could not go home without revealing the admiralty's viewpoint, Gibson said they might have the British company at Geneva a long time under these circumstances. The conciliatory spirit of the American delegation was indicated, however, by Gibson's statement that they would not refuse to listen to British declarations although it was uncertain to what extent the Americans could indulge in such matters.

The British ideas could be discussed casually in an academic way although such talk is not regarded worth while in view of the necessity of postponing all revisions until 1931, when all five signatories to the Washington treaty of 1922 will meet to consider revisions.

Talk of Treaty With Japan Interests Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Insistence upon American naval parity with Great Britain down to the smallest war craft and interest in the undercurrent of discussion at Geneva of a possible Japanese-American permanent peace treaty characterized official Washington reaction today as the naval limitation conference closed its first week.

Although the Japanese treaty question still is far from an official diplomatic status, reports from Geneva that such a pact might develop from the naval deliberations attracted keen attention. They come at a time when the United State and France are considering procedure for negotiating a similar agreement to outlaw war.

'THIRD DEGREE' BRINGS DRY FORCE SHAKE-UP

Prohibition Commissioner for New York and His Assistant Transferred.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Transfer of Chester P. Mills, prohibition administrator for New York, and the suspension of August Heise, assistant administrator, was announced today by Commissioner Doran, who indicated the changes were made because of dissatisfaction with enforcement methods in New York.

Mills will take the position of zone supervisor for the Eastern States. His exact territory will be determined later. Maurice Campbell, former zone supervisor for the Eastern and Middle Western States, will take Mill's place July 1.

The suspension of the assistant administrator was caused by disclosures of "third degree" methods in New York enforcement.

"Heise's suspension is effective at once," Doran said. "If reports that he allowed agents to use "third degree" methods on persons are found to be true, he will be dismissed. There is no place in the Prohibition Bureau for such methods, norfo r any man who will use them. The sooner prohibition enforcement agencies are rid of such methods, the better it will be for all concerned.

Mills had become embroiled in a number of controversies, officials of the bureau said and his usefulness has been affected adversely.

A Chinese method of punishment, involving the tying of a towel about the head of a man given the "third degree" has been used at Federal prohibition headquarters, Heise admitted in Federal Court in New York Wednesday.

Albert Briggs, an East Indian, chauffeur for four former prohibition agents with whom he is on trial on a charge of bribery, testified Heise had told him that if he would "come through" with information against the suspected agents he would not be prosecuted. He replied he knew nothing against them.

Mills Assailed in Congress for His Enforcement Policies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Chester P. Mills, retired Major of the United States Army, who has been ordered transferred from the office of Prohibition Administrator here, occupied the position less than a year and a half. Last July, five months after taking office, he announced that all he wanted was "six months in this office and I'll show the violators what can be done by an administrator."

Opposition to some of his policies was voiced chiefly by Representative La Guardia, who preferred charges against the Major and attacked him on the floor of the House. Maj. Mills objected to the funds available for enforcement work here as insufficient, and repeatedly promulgated a policy of "going after the higher ups" in the liquor traffic. He was frequently quoted on the near-impossibility of enforcement without State co-operation.

COMET NOW PASSING ZENITH

Appears Soon After Twilight Half way to Eastern Horizon.

CHICAGO, June 25.—The comet, Pons-Winnecke, which is now visible as it speeds past the earth, can be seen for several nights for several hours, according to Professor Philip Fox of Northwestern University.

Tonight the comet appeared soon after twilight almost directly eastward about halfway between the horizon and the zenith. It is in the constellation Belthinus, popularly known as "Job's Coffin."

Your Summer Vacation Problems Solved!
All Expense—Personally Conducted Tours and Cruises

There are many attractive features about an all-expense escorted tour. It enables you to know at the outset the cost of your trip and relieves you of the details and uncertainties, which otherwise would mar a perfect journey.

Each party is in charge of a competent escort, who looks after the transfer of baggage, attends to the business details and sees that the patrons receive satisfactory service. There are no hotels or train reservations to worry about. Our arrangements for sightseeing trips in high-class motor cars are ideal. You see everything that is worth while and no time is wasted on unimportant places.

For those who like to be free to find their own way "around town," time is arranged at the principal cities. With all these advantages your expenses are considerably less than it would cost to make the same trip independently. Our escorted tours have proven their advantage to thousands of pleased patrons.

WOMAN BOUND AND STRANGLED IN HOME

Widow Murdered in Portland, Ore., Apartment After Being Gagged.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 25.—Her half-clad body stretched out on her bed, her hands tied behind her back and her feet bound together, Mrs. Zell Stebbins, 32 years old, was found strangled to death in her apartment in a residential district here today. It is believed the crime was committed yesterday.

A man's handkerchief, wadded up, had been stuffed in the woman's mouth as a gag.

No evident motive for the murder had been discovered by police tonight.

A pillow slip had been rolled up and bound tightly around the woman's throat. A quilt partly covered her body.

The murder was not committed by the "Dark Strangler," who has terrorized Pacific Coast cities in recent months, police declared after an investigation of the crime.

No article of jewelry in the apartment was touched.

Mrs. Stebins has lived in the apartment two and a half years. She has a 10-year-old daughter living in another part of town. Her husband died a year ago.

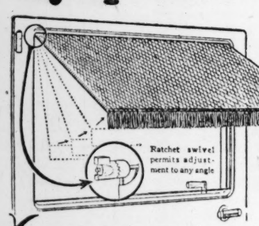
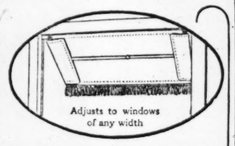
Equip Your Car With .. Sunbar TRADE MARK



The Finest Auto Awning Ever Made 3.45 Pair

Here is the biggest, newest and best improvement in Auto Sun Shades yet developed. Adjustable to any angle from horizontal to verticle. Put on or taken off your car in two seconds. No screws or bolts to adjust. Fits into window grooves without marring felt liners. Allows windows to close within 1-2 inch. Fits any make or type of closed car. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.



You Can't Enjoy Motoring Without It

What awnings are to verandas, "Sunbar" is to autos. Keeps heat and sun out of your face and makes daytime driving a real pleasure.

Shade Where You Want It

Adjusted to any angle by merely pushing or pulling in position wanted without use of set screws.

It shades the entire window or any part of it, and may be used as a curtain. When not in use it folds inside the car against the top, always ready when needed.

Now is the time to equip your car with "Sunbar" and enjoy the comforts of motoring in hot weather.

Choice of Materials

The "Sunbar" Awning is good looking and well made. Covered in choice of gray Texti-leather, or blue or gray striped awning material. All water, weather and sun proofed.

Theft Proof

By running your windows up and locking the doors, your "Sunbars" are theft proof. The windows locks the attachment in the groove so it cannot be removed without lowering the glass.

Offered by Mail

In order that you may enjoy the comforts and new improvements of "Sunbar" this summer, we sell them by mail. Order yours today. Pairs of two at the special price of $3.45 the pair. Sent C. O. D.—postage prepaid. Guaranteed to satisfy or money refunded. Use the coupon now.

JURY FREES FATHER CHARGED WITH KILLING HIS DAUGHTER

Pittsburg (Kan.) Man Had Been Accused in Explosion Fatal to Two Children.

By the Associated Press.

GIRARD, Kan., June 25.—Earl Mayberry, charged with the murder of his daughter, Florence Mardell, in a bomb explosion which rocked the family home in Pittsburg, Feb. 6, was acquitted of a murder charge here tonight.

The verdict came on the seventh ballot. The first ballot stood at 10 to 2 for acquittal, it was revealed.

The trial, which lasted two weeks, was the second one. The first resulted in a disagreement of the jury, which stood 11 to 1 for conviction after being out 37 hours.

The explosion February 6 at the Mayberry home in Pittsburg wrecked a bed on which Mrs. Mayberry and her two children were sleeping, killing Florence and Robert Mayberry, 10 and 6-year-old children of the Mayberrys, and injuring the mother. Mayberry was arrested the next day. He and his wife were estranged, and he had not been staying at the home.

An investigation revealed illicit relations between Mayberry and Mrs. Harvey Dixon, wife of a neighbor, and between Mrs. Mayberry and Dixon.

STRATON'S YOUNG SON TO TELL OF 'HOLY VISITATIONS'

Pastor Under Fire for "Emotionalism" Announces Recital of Unusual Experience.

By the Associated Press.

STRATON, N. Y., June 25.—Dr. John Roach Straton of the Calvary Baptist Church today announced that his 18-year-old son, Warren Straton, would get up before the congregation some day within the next month or six weeks and tell the members how last January he "received holy visitations."

Dr. Straton, five of whose deacons and advisers resigned a few days ago because they objected to what they termed "emotionalism and pentecostalism" in the church, said he was working today on a second statement to refute the charges of the deacons.

Accompanying his son into the pulpit, said Dr. Straton, would be Miss Lillian Rice, a nurse in Mount Sinai Hospital, who, he said, also "received holy visitations."

Under the influence of his particular "visitation," said the pastor, Warren lay on the church floor and sang, in a beautiful, rhythmic tone, words which were not quite intelligible and during the performance his face was illuminated by rays of joy.

NOTED BRIDGE BUILDER DIES

Charles W. Bryan, Former Missourian, Succumbs in East.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Charles W. Bryan, internationally famous for his work as chief engineer for the American Bridge Co., died today in the New Rochelle Hospital after an operation. He had been ill a short time. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Bryan was recognized as one of the world's foremost authorities in bridge building and steel construction generally. He was born in Washington, Mo., May 5, 1863. The Bryan family was identified with the early settlement of Missouri and Kentucky. In 1884 Mr. Bryan was graduated from Washington University, St. Louis, as a civil engineer. Surviving are his widow and four children.

Authorities Investigate and Resourceful Owner Has to Paint Out Misleading Signs.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 25.—Harry Baumgarten, who operates a filling station in Cudahy, stood in the road and watched tourists roll by on Wisconsin's main street, highway 15, nearly two miles away. Business was dull.

So overnight he relocated the highway. With a paint brush he made a neat "R" at the junction of the road leading to his place. Then he painted markers along his highway, ending the trail at his filling station.

Tourists came in flocks for highway information, and the gasoline pumps worked overtime. Authorities investigated, and Baumgarten was escorted to the District Attorney.

Late today he was busy putting the signs back where they were originally and painting out the trail that led to his filling station.

COUSIN OF FLYER GIVEN AUTHORITY TO BUY AIRPLANE

St. Louis' Youngest Pilot, 18, Began Action Before J. T. Walker's Death.

Stafford L. Lambert, St. Louis' youngest licensed pilot, will purchase an airplane for "recreational and business purposes" unless his plans are affected by the death of his cousin, James T. Walker, who was killed Friday when a plane piloted by another cousin, George L. Lambert, crashed at Pottsville, Pa.

Authority to purchase a plane for the 18-year-old son of the late Marion J. Lambert yesterday was granted Mrs. Florence Parker Busch, curatrix of Lambert's estate.

The petition, filed by Mrs. Busch in Clayton Probate Court, before Friday's fatal mishap, states that Stafford has been operating a rented plane and that the purchase of one for his own use is "necessary, advisable and convenient." The court has allowed the expenditure of $2,525 for the machine. Young Lambert was licensed to fly here several months ago.

FOUR HELD IN NARCOTIC RING

Thousands of Dollars in Money Orders Seized in Raid.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Four men, said by Ralph Oyeler, divisional chief of narcotic agents, to be members of a nationwide mail order drug ring, today are held in bail aggregating $90,000.

In the 110th street home of Benjamin Dorfman, reputed leader of the syndicate, the agents said, were found thousands of dollars in money orders from all parts of the country. The other men held are Louis Wallenstein, Samuel Lowey and John Hope. The agents who tracked them down say they purchased $2500 worth of narcotics from them.

SMALL CHANGES SHOWN IN CLOSING COTTON MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Prospects for a renewal of showers in the cotton belt over Sunday led to rallies from an opening decline in the cotton market today. October sold up from 16.85c to 16.99c, or 7 points net higher, but there was a spurt of realizing in the last few minutes and it closed at 16.91c. The general market closed steady, net 4 points higher to 1 point lower.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points. Active months showed net losses of about 5 to 8 points in early trading under liquidation, promoted by favorable early weather reports. The map showed less rain in the belt than it has for some time, and the trade seemed hopeful of the dry warm weather which is said to be much needed over the South.

Offerings were comparatively light, however, and the forenoon market firmed up on the official forecast for showers in most sections of the belt. July contracts, which had sold off to 16.50c, advanced to 16.64c, while December rallied from 17.08c to 17.23c, net advances of about 7 to 9 points on the general list.

Buying was held in check by continued uncertainty as to the effect of possible notices on Tuesday, or by the usual week end consolidation, and the market lost a good part of its gain during the last few minutes. July was relatively steady during the greater part of the morning, compared with later months, narrowing slightly, as if previous liquidation had improved its technical position and let it a 'little more sensitive to covering by shorts. At the close, July seemed to be about 32 points under October, compared with a closing difference of 37 points on Friday.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 107,000 bales, against 25,000 last year.

Private cables reported trade calling in Liverpool and that continental interests were buying May on the market there against sales of later months.

A report by a New Orleans authority placed the condition of the Texas crop at 77.7, based on reports from correspondents as of June 20.

MODERATE CHANGES IN HOGS PAST WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	28,606	28,056	30,339
Hogs	81,530	77,068	62,681
Sheep	19,505	26,934	17,200
Horses and mules	578	575	471
Totals	130,309	132,633	110,691

Combined receipts of all livestock for the week closed showed a slight decrease from the previous week. Cattle were heavier by better than 600 head. A fair run of quality was received, a feature of the trade, however, being the lower prices that with few exceptions included all classes of cattle. Beef steers ruled steady to 25c lower, decline on the plainer kinds. Tops reached $13.25 on mature steers while $11.60 on yearlings with bulk of all beeves clearing in a wide spread of $9.75 to $12. While weighty descriptions were lower, what more numerous than has been the rule of late supplies in this class were still smaller than the demand. Western steers completed around 40 cars, including 25 cars of cattle, lost 50c and an early advance remained weak. Bulk of supply lambs sold for the week at $14 to $14.25, top $14.50 on one car, and part of the week up to $14.75. Medium grades sold from $11 to $13.50, with culls below that at $10.50 down. Fat lambs closed steady to 25c lower, cheep steady. Choppers and bucks went to the scales at $8 to $8.50, culls down to $7.50. Only a few old head of wethers appeared on sale.

Quotations slaughter stock: Good to choice heifers $14 to $14.50; medium to good $12 to $14; plain to medium $11 to $12; cull and common $8.50 to $10.50. Good to choice yearling lambs $13.50 to $14.50; medium to good, $11.50 to $12.50; plain to medium $10.50 to $11.50; cull and common, $8.50 to $10; skips $5 to $7. Grass fed kinds discounted $1 to $1.50 to date. Good to choice aged Western wethers $8 to $8.50; fair to medium kinds, $7.50 to $8.50; thin to fair kinds, $4 to $6.50. Good to choice mutton ewes, $4.50 to $5.50; plain ewes, $3 to $4; culls, cheppers and bucks, $3 to $3.50; canners $1 to $2.50. Fat goats, $1 to $4. Fair to good bulls, $4 to $7; thin to fair kids $1.50 to $3.

Horses and Mules.

A fair business was transacted in horses and mules, although the movement in single crate to fair receipts, total count being around 600 head, combined. Prices held to good firm basis on all classes, although demand continued very slack for the common kinds. Big horses and mules, if in good condition, moved freely and a good clearance was effected for the week. Quality of the run was mostly common with few strictly good kinds here.

Lambs Close Lower.

Despite receipts, that were considerably under last week's total of 26,954, the local sheep market closed 50c to $1 lower for the week 75c lower than last week's finish. Quality of the offerings was medium to good. Only a few loads of native; there being a scant supply of Southwest stock on sale.

The first three days of the week buyers were bearish, and try as they would, salesmen could not keep prices from declining. Demand improved a little on the Wednesday period and values remained steady the rest of the week. Fat lambs closed 75c to $1 under last Friday's close, and shorn remained steady. Bulk of spring lambs sold for the week at $14 to $14.25, top $14.50 on one car, and part of the week up to $14.75. Medium grades sold from $11 to $13.50, with culls below that at $10.50 down. Fat lambs made $4.50 to $5.50, according to weight. Choppers and bucks went to the scales at $8 to $8.50, culls down to $7.50. Only a few old head of wethers appeared on sale.

Quotations slaughter stock: Good to choice lambs $14 to $14.50; medium to good $12 to $14; plain to medium $11 to $12; cull and common $8.50 to $10.50. By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial weekly review, says:

"If the somewhat unexpected sharp rise in brokers' loans to the highest level on record announced this week did not reverse the market trend effectively it checked the forward movement. Trading on the stock market all week has been conducted as though under a cloud rising on the form of loans too large for comfort. At $3,159,876,000, loans now stand roughly $640,000,000 higher than a year ago, but the greater part of this gain, $440,000,000, has been added within the last four months. How dangerous an extension in speculative market commitments so sharp an increase reflects is not easy to say. Doubtless a substantial portion of the rise represents funds tied up by dealers in new bonds not yet distributed. In their efforts to sell a volume of bonds more than one billion dollars greater than for corresponding 1926 months, dealers of late have accumulated a supply temporarily larger than the demand. To the extent that the rise in loans is thus stimulated it holds no serious threat for the stock market.

Loans From Industries.

"Still another consideration calculated to comfort bulls in the market is that since early 1926 the number of active stocks has been multiplied so that a considerable rise in loans without endangering the position is conceivable. Nor withstanding these statistical explanations the fact remains that Wall street does not feel any too comfortable over the recent pronounced upturn. The change has not had a good physcological influence on those active in the market. So much for the use to which our record volume of breakers' loans has been put. In what they reveal of business, when studied from the standpoint of those loaning funds the figures are almost as interesting as when viewed for light on the market. A substantial part of the increase in loans represents funds made available to brokers and dealers by industrial concerns. This would seem to indicate that numerous corporations have accumulated large surplus funds, but it further shows, and this is the significant thing, that they are not inclined at the moment to use these funds in the expansion of their business.

Seasonal Rate Charges.

"While business in leading branches as the steel and building industries has undergone contraction of late none of the usual barometers forecasts anw prolonged or serious recession. Those who follow such matters are not so much concerned over the possibility of any fundamental change in business as in the possibility of a turn in money rates. It will be unfortunate if the seasonal tightening of rates that almost occurs at this time of the year is mistaken for anything more than a seasonal influence. In recent years, the final days of June have brought dearer money and if history repeats itself an upturn in rates may be expected within the next ten days. This week in fact brought evidence of slightly higher time money. As the movement of agricultural crops from now on makes its demand upon the banks funds may harden but if they do it would be only the natural occurrence of the season.

Selling of Oils.

"Oils were again in a class by themselves and throughout the morning sporadic selling was in evidence in that group, much as it has been over a prolonged period. Discouraged selling was inspired by indications that effort to restrict output in the Seminole area, which has been a thorn in the side of the industry was doomed to failure. That prolific district registered a new peak in output since its discovery in the last 24 hours for which statistics are available, due to gain in recently proven new territory.

Bond Market Quiet.

"If the distribution of roughly $550,000,000 in dividend and interest payments for July is destined to strengthen the investment markets no very convincing evidence of that is seen yet in bond market. Usually the approach of such periods brings greater activity in bonds but this market down to date has remained quiet. Even the volume of new capital flotations fell in this week to $92,000,000 as against $125,000,000 a week ago and $277,000,000 two weeks ago. In the corresponding week of 1926 new flotations totaled $144,000,000. It is plain that the key to the future brought dearer money and if history repeats itself an upturn in rates may be expected within the next ten days. This week in fact brought evidence of slightly higher time money. As the movement of agricultural crops from now on makes its demand upon the banks funds may harden but if they do it would be only the natural occurrence of the season.

Usually the approach of such periods brings greater activity in bonds but this market down to date has remained quiet. Even the volume of new capital flotations fell in the bond market as well as in the stock market the lines in the money position. Nobody fears that enough of a change in industry lies just ahead to bring any important variations but more and more the international phases of money are looked upon as dominant and these are peculiarly difficult to prognosticate.

Some Improvement in Credit.

"Although some improvement in credit conditions took place during the week, as revealed in the Clearing House statement, it was not so great as had been anticipated and it gave little hope of easy money rates over the month-end settlement period to be faced next week. The increase in surplus of $7,229,310 reduced last week's deficit of $13,887,140 to $6,657,830. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $54,011,000."

Slower Week-End Trade.

"Today's abbreviated session of the Stock Exchange developed into one of the dullest week-end trading periods of the year. The turnover was the smallest in several months and but for the bullish demonstration which took place in a handful of closely held stocks such as Baldwin Locomotive and

QUIET STRENGTH TO SESSION ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Although speculative sentiment continued unchanged as evidenced in a strong undertone to the general list on the curb exchange today, there were few variations in quotations to denote any active participation by followers of these securities.

The desultory trading at the opening indicated a dull half holiday session. A few issues developed sufficient support to advance to new high figures for the year.

The quiet strength continued throughout the session with a few miscellaneous issues moving upward materially. Mead Johnson registered an upturn of 3¼ points and Metropolitan 5 and 10 cents stores preferred rose 1¼. Deere & Co. rallied 2 points and new peak prices were attained in Bucyrus & Co., and Bancitaly Corporation.

Goodyear Tire was in moderate demand, advancing 1½ points to 53⅝ and Chicago, Milwaukee & Saint Paul issues rose fractionally. Pittsburg & Lake Erie and Fox Theater went to low quotations for the year.

Warren Oil rose 1¾ points early with a subsequent reaction while others lacked interest. Estimated production for Friday in the Seminole field established a record crossing 400,000 barrels in the day's operation.

Realizing Is Light.

"Trade summaries described the slowing down in trade and industry as reflecting usual seasonal conditions and not as any indication of the approach of an extended period of inactivity. The general list showed a firm tone in final dealings with late profit-taking being easily absorbed at prices a shade under the best of the morning. Week-end realizing was unusually light presumably for the reason that a good many of the bigger traders had been engaged in the procedure of evening up commitments over the last few days. For that reason the market was singularly free from any great pressure and it was this absence of offerings in volume as much as what little fresh demand developed which paved the way for advances in the active stocks.

Further Rise in Lire

"A further advance in lire to the highest level in about nine years at 5.82 cents featured dealings in foreign exchanges. Offerings for the Government account were insufficient to fill the demand. Sterling ruled slightly firmer, carrying rates on London to the highest level of the week.

BOND BUYERS STRIKE AGAINST PRICES ASKED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 25.—It is some years since a condition such as exists in the investment market today has occurred. It was estimated this week that there were $700,000,000 of unsold new issues in original hands. This figure is undoubtedly too high but the sum is undoubtedly too large to have a very direct bearing on the future of prices. Bonds are on a strike against present prices. There is no prospect of improvement until the level of prices, for new issues particularly, comes to the point where the investing public becomes interested.

This week the supply of new bonds has fallen off somewhat, but the market for foreign bonds and for many of the new domestic industrial issues has been very much upset. Restricted output and the closer balance of the opinions of the banker and his client on the question of value are necessary, before this condition will be corrected.

More Than $1,000,000 in Liberty First 4¼ Bought.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Further improved demand for high-grade bonds developed today, although the volume of dealings in the listed market was comparatively light. The list as a whole, however, continued to show marked irregularity, indicating that a wide different prices are necessary, before this condition will be corrected.

"Spatish, after a sharp rally in the first half of the week, became heavy again today, declines falling from 17.16 to 16.90.

"South Americans were irregular. Argentine bolding close to parity around 42.50 while Uruguayan was in supply, making a new low for the year on a decline of a cent to 90.75.

A further advance in lire to the highest level in about nine years at 5.82 cents featured Saturday's dealings in foreign exchanges. Offerings for the Government account were insufficient to fill the demand. Sterling ruled slightly firmer, carrying rates on London to the highest level of the week.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The Evening Post in its weekly foreign exchange review says:

"The chief feature of the foreign exchange market this week was the movement in Italian exchange, which was steadily bought, overcoming efforts to depress the movement by the Italian institute and other Government agencies in the preceding week. The strength in lire checked almost wholly the buying by local banking interests, which absorbed nearly all the offerings of lire, day after day, trading in blocks of 1,000,000 lire or more at a time. This buying yesterday carried lire cables from 5.79¾, a new record for recent years in this market. On April 26, however, a sensational advance in London sent the rate there to 5.80 and New York traded in London to a considerable extent at that time, to a new domestic industrial issues has been very much upset. Restricted output and the closer balance of the opinions of the banker and his client on the question of value are necessary, before this condition will be corrected.

Weekly Metal Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—In the steel market during the week some additional contracts were placed by the railroads and reports were of fair structural steel contracts pending, but otherwise business was slow and represented seasonal conditions. Mills, in many instances, again reduced production. Quotations remained liethe change, but with the exception of sheets, it seemed possible to shade selling levels to some extent.

Pig iron was dull and prices unsettled. Steadier tone has developed in the copper market. Recent offerings at the 12½c level appear to have been absorbed with a considerable volume of business reported. Consumers were said to be in the market for additional supplies at that figure, but producers generally showed increased confidence late in the week and were reported holding electrolytic for 12⅝c delivered at Connecticut Valley points. The demand abroad has continued quiet, being chiefly in small lots. Prices for refined products have been reduced ⅛c to ¼c per pound.

Tin price fluctuations were irregular, with easiness prevailing late in the week. London was lower and consuming demand here was small.

Lead was steadier and producers reported a little better consuming demand for June and July positions.

Zinc remained quiet with prices steady. Ore was advanced and sales were said to have been the largest in some time.

Antimony was a shade easier, largely as a result of the absence of consuming demand. Cables told of reduced production in China and strongly held stocks.

FAKE BUYING ORDERS FOR PHILLIP PETROLEUM STOCK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Officials of the New York Stock Exchange warned floor traders at the opening of the market today to use precaution in handling orders in shares of Phillips Petroleum, after several brokerage houses reported they had received spurious telegrams, orders from Chica to buy blocks of the stock.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for June 25,1927, $17,600,000; corresponding day last year, $17,500,000; this year, $3,009,000,000; corresponding period last year, $3,532,000,000; report of debits for June 24, 1927, were: Debits to individual accounts, $26,200,000; total to date, $4,326,000,000; debits to bank and bankers' accounts, $16,100,000; total to date, $2,661,700,000; combined debits were $42,300,000; total to date to individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $6,994,700,000.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Bar silver 56¾. Mexican dollars 43¾.

LONDON, June 25.—Bar silver 26 1-16d per ounce; money 2¾ per cent; discount rates short bills 4 1-16@4⅜ per cent; three months bills 4⅝ per cent.

New Securities

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The Province of Upper Austria, through Blythe, Whitter & Co. soon will offer $5,000,000 of 30-year 6½ per cent bonds. The province, which is an autonomous state of the Austrian republic, plans to use the proceeds from the bond issue for loans to the communal and mortgage banks for the retirement of existing internal and external floating debt and for productive municipal purposes. Its revenues last year amounted to $4,867,802 and expenditures $4,768,874.

The Erie Railroad has awarded an issue of $6,432,000 equipment trust certificates, maturing from 1930 to 1942, and carrying 4½ per cent coupons, to Lee, Higginson & Co. at 98.68. The sale of the certificates had been authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission with the stipulation that they be awarded to the highest bidder.

The city and county of San Francisco will sell on July 11 $3,000,000 of bonds consisting of $1,000,000 school bonds maturing from 1928 to 1967, and $2,000,000 of Hetch-Hetch water bonds due 1929 to 1969.

The Boston Store of Chicago, through Ames, Emerich & Co., A. G. Becker & Co. and the Guardian Detroit Company, will offer $2,500,000 of 5 per cent notes. One of the unique features about this sale is that besides being direct obligations of the corporation the notes will be secured by United States Government and municipal bonds of equal par and market value. The 6 per cent notes now outstanding will be retired Jan. 1.

Springfield, Mass., through Estabrook and Co. and P. L. Bayes Co. will offer $1,500,000 of bonds. One-third of the amount will be 3½s due from 1943 to 1957, while the remainder will be 4 per cent water bonds due serially 1948 to 1952.

Lead, Zinc and Copper.

Lead was quiet at $6.12½ per 100 pounds in St. Louis Saturday. Zinc was quiet at $6.20 per 100 pounds.

Banton

FIRST BY A WHISKER AND PAYS $25.00

Morehouse Four-Year-Old Colt Beats Princess Doreen in Driving Finish at Fairmount; Helen's Babe Third.

By Jack Alexander.

Princess Doreen is still "Queen of the turf" and she bears her Audley farms royal purple silks proudly, but if she is a good Amazon she will step down off her throne for a second and curtsey in the direction of Banton, owned by E. B. Morehouse, the 4-year-old colt, who was good enough to take her measure in the Hotel Statler $5000 added Handicap yesterday at Fairmount.

The Princess was beaten only by a chin whisker and perhaps she suffered from a physical handicap here but she will have to admit that she let the Morehouse colt get a bit too far out in front before starting her closing rally.

Had the race been a little longer than a mile and a sixteenth, say a few yards, she would have won. Helen's Babe was third and Cotlogomor fourth, after a miserable start. Banton, coupled with Cudgeller, was the longest price on the board and paid off $25.00 for $2.

A crowd of about 13,000 persons was present for the program which had more than the usual quota of hair line finishes.

Makes Splendid Ride.

L. Geving gave Banton a splendid ride, figuring his mount's capabilities to a fine point. In his last out, at Washington Park, Banton was second to Jack Alexander in a mile handicap race and the Chart said that he closed fast and would have won in a few more strides, indicating, along with the rest of his past record, that a mile and a sixteenth was just to his liking. His time was 1:45 3-5, 2-5 of a second above the record owned by the late Capt. Hal, who was last year's winner.

Princess Doreen took the lead as soon as the barrier went up with Helen's Babe and Banton in close pursuit. After half a mile, Banton began his drive and soon passed up Helen's Babe and was out in front of Princess Doreen at the three-quarter pole. Banton was going so hard that it seemed impossible for him to stick it out but his jockey had him assessed exactly right and he managed to stand off the Princess, although considerably worn down in the stretch.

It was an exciting afternoon and just one nose, neck or whisker after another. The feature was far superior in thrills to the Fairmount Derby. Banton emulated Buddy Bauer somewhat when he paid off $25 to win.

Reputation Wins.

The fifth race, secondary feature, was good enough to grace any man's program. Reputation took this one by half a length after the unregenerate Booze Beyer had started a small riot by acting up to his old tricks again and staying far out in front for four furlongs, only to fold up like a bad

Banton Captures $5000 Statler Handicap

FIRST BY A WHISKER AND PAYS $25.00

Morehouse Four-Year-Old Colt Beats Princess Doreen in Driving Finish at Fairmount; Helen's Babe Third.

By Jack Alexander.

Princess Doreen is still "Queen of the turf" and she bears her Audley farms royal purple silks proudly, but if she is a good Amazon she will step down off her throne for a second and curtsey in the direction of Banton, owned by E. B. Morehouse, the 4-year-old colt, who was good enough to take her measure in the Hotel Statler $5000 added Handicap yesterday at Fairmount.

The Princess was beaten only by a chin whisker and perhaps she suffered from a physical handicap here but she will have to admit that she let the Morehouse colt get a bit too far out in front before starting her closing rally.

Had the race been a little longer than a mile and a sixteenth, say a few yards, she would have won. Helen's Babe was third and Cotlogomor fourth, after a miserable start. Banton, coupled with Cudgeller, was the longest price on the board and paid off $25.00 for $2.

A crowd of about 18,000 persons was present for the program which had more than the usual quota of hair line finishes.

Makes Splendid Ride.

L. Geving gave Banton a splendid ride, figuring his mount's capabilities to a fine point. In his last out, at Washington Park, Banton was second to Jack Alexander in a mile handicap race and the Chart said that he closed fast and would have won in a few more strides, indicating, along with the rest of his past record, that a mile and a sixteenth was just to his liking. His time was 1:45 3-5, 3-5 of a second above the record owned by the late Capt. Hal, who was last year's winner.

Princess Doreen took the lead as soon as the barrier went up with Helen's Babe and Banton in close pursuit. After half a mile, Banton began his drive and soon passed up Helen's Babe and was out in front of Princess Doreen at the three-quarter pole. Banton was going so hard that it seemed impossible for him to stick it out but his jockey had him assessed exactly right and he managed to stand off the Princess, although considerably worn down in the stretch.

It was an exciting afternoon and just one nose, neck or whisker after another. The feature was far superior in thrills to the Fairmount Derby. Banton emulated Buddy Bauer somewhat when he paid off $25 to win.

Reputation Wins.

The fifth race, secondary feature, was good enough to grace any man's program. Reputation took this one by half a length after the unregenerate Booze Beyer had started a small riot by acting up to his old tricks again and staying far out in front for four furlongs, only to fold up like a bass

Banton, well handled, moved to lead after going first half mile and drew out well then, continuing easily under hand riding in the stretch, holding on to win in the last stride. Princess Doreen was taken into lead at once, but soon was headed by Banton, then racing in close pursuit of him, began wearing Banton down quickly in the stretch and just ran out getting up in time. Would have won in another stride. Helen's Babe raced evenly throughout, gaining on the leaders consistently at finish. Cotlogormor was far back to the stretch, then saved much ground on the inside, closing a wide gap. Lounger had no mishaps and tired. Cudgeller was soon outpaced and made a poor showing.

$2 mutuels paid: Banton, win $25.00, place $5.00, show $2.60; Princess Doreen, place $3.10, show $2.30; Helen's Babe, show $2.00.

John Goodman, 18-Year-Old Ex-Caddy, Beats Ward and Wins T-M Golf Crown

Omaha Youth Defeats Veteran Missouri Champion 3 Up in Spectacular Match at Broadmoor, Showing Iron Nerve and Bulldog Tenacity.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 25.—Johnny Goodman, an 18-year-old ex-caddy from Omaha, who beat his way on a freight train to St. Louis a year ago to compete in the trans-Mississippi tournament and this year just managed to scrape enough dollars together to pay his carfare to Colorado Springs, is the 1927 champion of the trans-Mississippi Golf Association.

He won that coveted honor today when he defeated James C. Ward of the Kansas City country club 3 up and 1 to play on the resort course here after a most spectacular battle.

Playing the same consistent steady golf in which he has kept pace with general par all week, the new king of golf between the Mississippi river and the Rockies stepped right out in the lead at the start of the match at 9 o'clock this morning and he retained that lead to the finish, although there were times when it looked as though he would crack.

Only a golfer of iron nerve, bulldog tenacity and the skill of a professional could have stood up under the strain of this contest as he did. Five up after the first eighteen holes this morning, the youngster was cut down by a spectacular uphill battle waged by the veteran tournament player from Kansas City until he was only one up at the fifteenth hole in the afternoon round. Most youths of his experience might have cracked there and it looked three holes before that as though the strain was too great. But instead of cracking he settled down again and shot two birdies and a par on the next three holes and ended the match with his second birdie of the three holes on the seventeenth.

Ward Off Game.

Ward did not shoot as well today as he had in the earlier rounds. He played much better golf against Eddie Held and also against the next two who fell easy victims to his splendid golf. His second shots were short and his drives wild. He made some remarkable recoveries, however, that enabled him to carry the match to the thirty-fifth hole. Ward's bad round was in the morning when he shot 77, which is seven over par and nine above the course record which he made yesterday. In the afternoon he shot better golf than his opponent by one stroke, but that was not good enough to make up for the bad work of the morning round. He had shot against 72 in the morning and in the afternoon the youngster, after being two over par on the first nine, shot exactly par on the last nine, which is all that saved him.

The real deciding hole of the entire match was the fifteenth of the afternoon round. Ward had steadily cut a lead of five down until he was one up after they had played the fourteenth. It looked as though the youngster was breaking when they went to the fifteenth tee. Ward hooked his tee shot into the rough. This appeared to give Goodman confidence and he shot a ball straight into the middle of the fairway, about 200 yards. The green sets up on a high bank with traps in front of it. Ward's second shot was short. Goodman used a niblick and shot his ball onto the green where it stopped five feet from the pin and he ran the putt for a birdie three.

He was then two up and three to go and he halved the next hole and won the seventeenth with two perfect shots to the green and two putts. The seventeenth is 530 yards long.

3000 in Gallery.

It was an ideal day for a golf match and about 3000 people formed the gallery that followed every shot from early morning until almost dark when the contest was completed and the most successful trans-Mississippi tournament in years was brought to a close. The day was hot and a hot sun shone out of a cloudless sky. The course was in good condition for the final encounter.

Considering the class of golf he has shot in previous rounds of the

CAHILL AGAIN MADE SECRETARY OF SOCCER BODY

Resumes Position After Absence of Three Years—Andrew Brown Re-Elected President of U. S. F. A.

Thomas W. Cahill was appointed secretary of the United States Football Association by the National Commission last night. Cahill returns to office after an absence of three years and succeeds James Armstrong of New York, who was not a candidate for reappointment.

Andrew M. Brown, New York, was re-elected president of the Association at the annual election yesterday noon at the Coronado Hotel, and Armstrong Patterson of Detroit was elected first vice-president.

The convention, which was the fourteenth annual of the association, came to a close with a banquet tendered by the Municipal Athletic Association last night. It was voted to hold the next meeting in Milwaukee.

Other officers elected were: Elmer A. Schrober, Philadelphia, second vice-president; William Angus, Cleveland, third vice-president and William Cummings, Chicago was selected treasurer.

Agar Proposition Fails.

Saturday's session, much like that of Friday, was marked by the defeat of every piece of business proposed or sanctioned by the professional interests. Nat Agar, head of the Brooklyn Wanderers and delegate of the American Soccer League, as spokesman for the professional clubs, sought to place the council on record as restricting the prerogatives of the various state associations with regard to sanctioning or rejecting proposed exhibition matches by touring teams. Agar sought to have the sanction of the Foreign Relations Committee tantamount to a command that state associations must accept the dates fixed by the tourists. When the motion of George Healey of Detroit carried, giving the state associations the right to accept or reject proposed games in their district, Agar expressed the opinion that this attitude would probably result in the stifling of international tours.

Representatives of the Canadian Football Association and of the Michigan State Association sought to introduce a special law governing the transfer of players between Canada and the United States. President Brown pointed out that there is a rule governing international exchanges contained in Manager O'Farrell Juggles His Cripples and Champions Take Lead in Seventh Inning of Nightcap, but Fluke Hits Beat Old Pete—Frisch Has Big Day at Bat.

By J. Roy Stockton

Manager Bob O'Farrell of the Cardinals called on the lame and the halt yesterday afternoon and the world champions gave a great exhibition of uphill fighting, but the Cincinnati Reds put on a storm of their own.

Grover Cleveland Alexander failed in the relief role, and the best the Cards could get out of the double-header was an even break.

Arthur Reinhart won a hurling duel from Red Lucas in the first game, 2 to 1, with the Reds victorious in the slugging match that followed, 10 to 7. The even break enabled the champions to reduce the lead of the Pirates to a half a game.

Cincinnati pounded Flint Rhem for an early lead in the second game, scoring five runs in the first two innings. The Cards counted two in the first and with the Reds adding a run off Keen in the seventh, they were leading, 6 to 2, when the Cards went to bat in their half.

Manager O'Farrell batted for Keen and singled to left and then stole second. Douthit walked and Frisch singled to left, scoring O'Farrell, and when Bressler fumbled, Douthit reached third and Frisch second. Pete Donohue relieved Nehl and it looked like bad baseball to some of the grandstand managers, when Manager Hendricks ordered Bottomley walked, filling the bases, and it looked still worse when Southworth batted for Holm and punched a single to center. The hit scored Douthit and Frisch and when Zitzman fumbled the ball, Bottomley carried the tying run to third and Southworth legged it to second.

Blades, who had taken Southworth's place in right in the first game because Bill's lame leg was worse than either of Ray's bad props, delivered his third straight single at this opportune moment and Bottomley and Southworth raced over the plate and the Cardinals were ahead, 7 to 6.

Victory in this second game meant first place by the margin of half a game over the Pirates, but Alexander could not make the grade as a relief pitcher. Critz' single, Wanninger's sacrifice and Dressen's double, a ball that Southworth lost in the sun, tied the score in the eighth, and in the ninth, Pipp, Walker, Bressler, Critz and Wanninger singled and three runs were pushed over the plate.

Reds' Luck Finally Changed

It was a courageous fight that the Cardinals waged in that second game to overcome the Reds' early lead, but everything went against the Reds while the champions were putting on their drive and Jack Hendricks deserved a turn in his luck.

In the Cardinals' big seventh inning Nehf had Douthit struck out but Umpire Pfirman booted one. Taylor took a full-fledged swing at a third strike, lost his balance and sat down and did the sitting so convincingly that Pfirman thought the batter was dodging the pitch and called it a ball. Nehf and Hargrave protested and asked the other umpires to kick in with a little help, but they declined to differ with Pfirman and Douthit then drew a fourth ball.

Lucky Hits Off Alex.

Alexander was not hit as hard as the score would indicate. In the eighth inning Critz started the rally with a bunt to Frisch. Frankie raced in for the ball, but missed connections in his effort to scoop the ball to Bottomley. A sacrifice and an infield out sent Critz to third and he scored when Southworth lost Dressen's fly in the sun.

In the ninth, Pipp opened with a slow grounder to Frisch, Frankie losing his balance as he fielded the ball, and having no chance to make a throw. Walker's grounder to Bell skidded instead of bouncing, when Bell went after it, so it, too, was a fluke hit. Then Bressler and Critz connected for real safeties and Old Alex was beaten.

Pirates Play Here Today; Haines to Oppose Kremer

Cards Can Take First Place by Winning — O'Farrell Not Expected to Play in Series—Sidelights on Double-Header With Reds.

JESS HAINES will try to pitch the Cardinals into first place this afternoon in the opening game of the series with the Pirates. Ray Kremer, star of the Pittsburg staff will be on the slab for the league leaders.

Grover Cleveland Alexander was slated for the starting assignment in the second game of the series tomorrow, with Bob McGraw a candidate for the task Tuesday and Sherdel likely to hurl the final Wednesday. However, Alexander worked two innings yesterday, which may cause Manager O'Farrell to change his plans.

Manager O'Farrell says he is ready to don the mask and pad if an emergency arises, but that he does not expect to break into the Pirate series unless he is needed as a pinch hitter, or accidents befall Schulte and Snyder. The sore arm is improving, O'Farrell says, but still pains him when he throws. It did not feel strong yesterday.

The attendance was announced officially as 16,000.

First Game Notes.

Zitzmann walked in the first, but Pipp hit to Frisch and Frankie started a double play, with Toporcer the middle man.

Frisch got a single in the first inning when Wanninger lost his pop fly, but nothing came of it.

Bressler singled to left with one out in the second and advanced on Picinich's infield out and Critz's infield hit to Toporcer, but Toporcer threw out Wanninger to end the inning.

Frisch tripled down the right field line with two out in the third, but Lucas walked Bottomley to get at Holm and after Bottomley had stolen second, Holm grounded to Dressen.

Dressen doubled with one out in the third but Zitzmann and Pipp fouled to Bell. The sun made both catches difficult.

Reinhart Starts Rally.

Reinhart led off with a single to left in the fifth and after Douthit's sacrifice bunt and Frisch's sacrifice fly had put Arthur on third, Lucas again walked Bottomley intentionally. Jim again stole second and this time the strategy was a flop, as Holm slashed a single to left, scoring Reinhart and Bottomley.

Another double play for the Cardinals in the sixth. Dressen drew a pass and Bell grabbed Zitzmann's grounder and whipped to Frisch, who relayed to Bottomley.

Schulte bounced a double off

HELEN WILLS AND MISS RYAN ADVANCE IN NET TOURNEY

Tilden and Hunter Reach Quarter Finals in Wimbledon Meet

France, England and U. S. Share Honors as First Week of Fifty-first Playing of Classic Tournament Ends; Attendance Big.

By Herbert L. Bourke.

(Copyright, 1927.)

WIMBLEDON, June 25.—American racquets were swung victoriously in three divisions of the annual Wimbledon tournament today when Miss Helen Wills vanquished Miss Elie Goldshak of England in straight sets, 6—1, 6—3, and when "Big Bill" Tilden, paired with Francis T. Hunter in the men's doubles and paired with Mrs. Molla Bjursted Mallory in the mixed doubles, scored straight set triumphs over British adversaries.

These achievements and the many others accomplished during the day were witnessed by the largest gallery in Wimbledon history. At 5:30 in the morning this gallery began to assemble and increased so rapidly that it became evident that tennis fans were in egror in thinking the passing of the colorful Mlle. Susan Lenglen from the amateur ranks and from Wimbledon play meant the limiting of its tournament galleries.

Miss Wills, the American girl who has won England's fancy, and the sensational little English girl, Miss Betty Nuthall, have won places in the hearts of British tennis lovers, and their skilful play is attracting enthusiasts from all over Great Britain.

Girl Players Triumph

Both girl players won their matches today, for while Miss Wills was scoring her conquest over Miss Goldshak sixteen-year-old Betty was adding to her amazing record by vanquishing the London covered court champion, Mrs. J. Hill, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3.

The school girl played somewhat less convincing tennis than in her defeat of Mrs. Mallory two days ago, but it was because she gained the lead early in each set and never was forced to extend herself to win. She disclosed a backhand shot in the course of the match that seemed every bit as strong as that of Miss Wills. It is a shot that may serve her in good stead in her next singles match, for in that Miss Joan Fry, Wimbledon finalist of two years ago, will be her opponent.

The American girl won in a canter from Miss Goldshak, but, like her countryman, Tilden, she fell afoul of a foot fault judge in the second set. Miss Wills had reached 2-0 in this session of play when the footfault was called as she jumped in the air while making a delivery, whereupon the American lost the next three games and was forced to come from behind to win the set. Her opponent seemed to thrive on her fast stuff, but eventually Miss Wills' more subtle game prevailed.

Tilden and Hunter Win

Tilden and Hunter met the British team of Mayes and Summerson in the men's doubles in which Tilden yielded Hunter plenty of scope and the latter, through clever strategy and stroking, led the way to victory by the scores of 7-5, 6-2, 6-3.

Miss Joan Fry and I. C. Collins, the Scottish champion, were the opponents of Mrs. Mallory and Tilden in the mixed doubles, and the Americans, pouching to their heart's content and sometimes try-

Betty Nuthall Will Play in United States

16-Year-Old Tennis Star Named on Wightman Cup Team.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 25.

BETTY NUTTALL, the 16-year-old English school girl who eliminated Mrs. Mallory from the Wimbledon tournament Thursday, was designated today to go to the United States this summer as a member of the Wightman Cup team.

The other members of the British team which will attempt to regain the trophy announced as Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, Miss Gwendolin Sperry, Miss E. H. Harvey and Mrs. J. Hill.

The American squad which will defend the Wightman Cup this summer was announced in March as Mrs. Mallory, Helen Wills, Elizabeth Ryan, Miss Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, donor of the cup; Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Martha Bayard, Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin, Miss Margaret Blake, Miss Penelope Anderson and Miss Helen Jacobs.

ing to knock the cover off the ball, won out 6-2, 8-6. In the second set with the American team leading 5-1, the British pair, through the great work of Collins, made a sensational pull up to five-all.

Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra, respective Wimbledon champions of 1925 and 1926, carried the tricolor of France to victory in the two most important matches in the men's singles. Lacoste, by vanquishing the talented Jack Condon of South Africa, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2, advanced to the quarter finals while Borotra, experiencing greater difficulty with Campbell of Ireland, finally won his way into the quarter finals 6-8, 8-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Donald Creig, leading English player, who injured his knee and surrendered yesterday's doubles match with Tilden and Hunter, took the court against Karl Kobeluh of Czecho Slovakia today but was forced to default in the second set. Timmer, the Dutch champion, had an easy time conquering Phil Cox and entered the last eight as the one dark horse player to attain that round.

Crippled Cards Fight Hard And Break Even With Reds

Critz's shin with one out in the sixth and went to third on Toporcer's grounder to Pipp, but Rinehart grounded to Critz to end the frame.

Billy Southworth pulled up lame after six innings and Ray Blades went to right field in the seventh.

Rough Stuff in Seventh.

There was lots of action and nearly a fist fight in the Cincinnati seventh. Allen was safe on Toporcer's fumble and after Bressler had lined to Douthit, Picinich tripled to left center, scoring Allen. Picinich, instead of sliding for third, dived spikes first over the bag, and Bell was fortunate that his legs were not fractured. Leter jumped to his feet and challenged Picinich to a fight, but before the Red catcher could get up other players interfered and led Bell away until he could cool off.

Picinich got a taste of his own medicine on the next play. Critz hit to Toporcer and Picinich tried to score. Schulte took the throw, massaged Picinich's head with the ball, missing only a few low spots, stepped on his leg with his spikes and made a great job of roughing him up. You couldn't have seen a better exhibition of mauling the visage in an old barroom.

Picinich will be remembered as the man who put Hornsby off stride last season. Rogers was taking a throw on a simple force play, Picinich having no chance to beat the ball. However, he lunged full force into Rogers and knocked him down. Hornsby's spine was injured and he was handicapped throughout the rest of the campaign.

SECOND GAME.

Rhem was not in his usual good form and his teammates made it hard for him. He was plastered for 11 hits and five runs in five innings and 10 of the hits were made in the first three frames. Three of the runs were scored in the first and two in the second.

Dressen opened with a soft single to center and Zitzmann duplicated the hit. Pipp beat out a grounder to Toporcer, filling the bases. Walker flied to Douthit, whose throw to the plate caught Dressen half way home. In the ensuing run-up Bell dropped a throw from Schulte and Toporcer picked up the ball and threw it over Schulte's head. Dressen scoring, Zitzmann taking third and Pipp second. Bressler's single scored Zitzmann and Pipp.

In the second inning Wanninger singled to right and Frisch, fielding Nehf's easy grounder had a double play in front of him. His throw to second was high, bouncing off Toporcer's glove, Wanninger reaching third. Dressen's single to left scored Wanninger and after Zitzmann beat out a slow roller in front of the plate Walker's sacrifice fly scored Nehf. On the same sacrifice fly Dressen tried to take third and was doubled, Toporcer intercepting Douthit's throw and relaying to Bell.

Douthit's pass, Frisch's triple and Bottomley's sacrifice fly gave the Cards two in the first.

Hafey batted for Rhem in the fifth and flied to center. He limped badly running to first. It is evident he will not be fit for some time.

O'Farrell, Southworth, Hafey and Blades appeared in the battle front despite injuries. Hafey, Blades and Southworth have bad legs, O'Farrell has a sore arm. Southworth also is nursing a finger which was injured in an exhibition game at Kingston on the last eastern trip.

Southworth retired in the first game because of his bad leg, but answered the call to duty in the second when a pinch hitter was needed for Holm. Bill delivered.

Ray Kolp pitched the eighth and ninth and turned back six of the seven Cardinals who faced him. Southworth's single to center in the ninth being the only hit off the former Brownie.

Youngest T-M Champion In History; Man He Beat

JOHNNY GOODMAN (at top), 18-Year-Old Omaha youth who beat James Ward, Kansas City, in the 36-hole final at Broadmoor, Colo., yesterday.

Goodman Defeats Ward In T-M Golf Final

tournament, Ward was off his game in the first half of the match. His second shots were poor. He was invariably short and while he made some remarkable recoveries, he was unable to play well enough to keep pace with the youngster who has electrified the gallery by his victories over Jimmy Manion, former trans-Mississippi and Missouri State champion, and Monk Wilson, Missouri champion of 1926.

Takes Lead at Start.

The youthful Goodman started right out in the lead and remained there throughout the morning round. He won the first hole with a par four when Ward's second shot was short and he had to take three to reach the green. They halved the second with birdie fours. On the 403-yard third both were on in two but Ward had to take three putts and he was two down. The same thing occurred on the 377-yard fourth and Ward was three down on four holes. They halved the next two in pars. On the seventh, 247 yards, Goodman was short with his tee shot, was over on his second and then he putted the green, while Ward took four and cut his opponent's lead to two. Both were short with their second shots on the 438-yard eighth but Goodman approached so close to the hole that he got a par four to five for Ward and was three up.

Ward made the most remarkable recovery of the morning on the ninth. His tee shot landed in a rut in the rough. He had an almost impossible lie. His second shot did not go 30 yards and remained in the rough. His third was on the green 30 feet from the cup. He ran the putt and halved the hole.

On the 388-yard tenth, Goodman was on in two and ran one long putt for a birdie three and was four up. On the eleventh hole Ward's second shoe was in a trap. He dubbed his third and finally took five, losing the hole and was five down.

5 Up After 18 Holes.

They halved the next two, Ward running a long putt on the thirteenth to save himself after he had dubbed his second shot out of a trap. On the 418-yard fourteenth Ward's drive was wild and his second was on the green but he took three putts and lost it, being six down. They halved the next one in par. On the 172-yard sixteenth both were on but Goodman had to take three putts and lost the hole, being then five up. Goodman's second shot was short on the 530-yard seventeenth and he had to take five. Ward was a bit short in two, approached past the pin and ran a 10-foot putt for a birdie four. He was four down. On the eighteenth, Ward's second shot was way short. Goodman's was on the green. Each took two putts, Ward missing his first one by an inch and Goodman was five up. Their cards for the first 18 holes:

Ward—
Out. 5 4 5 5 3 4 4 5 4—39
In ..4 5 4 4 5 4 3 4 5—38—77

Goodman—
Out. 4 4 4 4 2 4 5 4 4—36
In.. 3 4 4 4 4 4 4 5 4—36—72

Ward started out well in the afternoon round when he ran one putt for a birdie three on the first hole and won it, being four down, but his spurt did not last long. On the second he drove out of bounds. His second drive was on the rough as also was his third shot, and he finally got down in six to par five for Goodman. On the third Ward's approach was in a trap after his drive was in the rough and he took five to par four for Goodman, who then was six up, his biggest lead in the match.

Ward Begins Uphill Fight.

Then the Kansas City man started playing better golf. They halved the fourth and on the 172-yard fifth he ran a 15-foot putt for a birdie two and won it. On the 366-yard sixth Goodman had to take three putts for a five and he lost it. Ward was four down. On the seventh both were in a sand trap. Goodman pitched his ball to within eight feet of the cup and took three, while Ward had four and was again five down. After two perfect shots to the green in the 438-yard eighth, Ward ran a 20-foot putt for a birdie three and was four down. On the ninth he repeated this performance and cut Goodman's lead to three.

Ward's second shot on the tenth hole was about 170 yards out of the rough and the ball stopped eight inches from the cup. He won the hole with a birdie three and was two down.

That made three straight birdies for Ward, but it did not worry the new champion. On the eleventh, Goodman made two perfect shots to the green and ran a 10-foot putt for a birdie three, winning it and putting him three up. On the twelfth Goodman was short with his second shot and had to take five, while Ward made the 465 yards in two shots and took four, winning it. He was two down. They halved the thirteenth in threes when Ward's putt stopped an inch short of the cup and Goodman sank a six-foot putt after shooting his second out of a trap.

Wins Three Up.

Goodman had a bad fourteenth. His first two shots were in the rough, his second over the green in the rough and he finally took six and lost the hole, being only one up.

On the fifteenth, Ward hooked his tee shot into the rough, was short with his second and on in three. Goodman made a perfect tee shot, approached close to the pin and was down in birdie three, winning. He was two up and three to go. They halved the sixteenth in par three.

On the seventeenth, 530 yards, Goodman was 30 feet from the pin in two. Ward's second was over the green, down a hill in a trap. His third was on. Each took two putts which gave Goodman the hole and ended the match three up and one to go. Their afternoon cards:

Ward, out .....365 524 433—35
In 344 355 35
Goodman, out....454 535 344—37
In 435 363 34

On the 35 holes Ward had 64 putts and Goodman had 66.

CUBS CHECK PIRATES' RALLY, WIN AGAIN, 6-4

Wilson Gets Fifteenth Home Run—Pick and Cuyler Also Hit Circuit Drives.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, June 25.—Chicago made it two straight from the league-leading Pirates by winning 6 to 4 in a game featured by home-run drives by Pick and Wilson of Chicago and Cuyler of Pittsburg.

It was the fifteenth circuit drive of the season for Wilson, leading home run hitter of the National League and came in the fifth inning with Webb on base. Pick first man up in the third hit his homer into the right field stands, while Cuyler drove in L. Waner ahead of him with his circuit blow over the scoreboard in the same inning.

BROOKLYN SPLITS DOUBLE-HEADER WITH BRAVES, 4-3 AND 3-7

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, June 25.—Brooklyn split a twin encounter with Boston today, annexing the first contest by 4 to 3 and dropping the nightcap by 7 to 3. Max Carey's allround brilliant playing was a feature of the first game. He had four hits, including a triple, in four times up, stole a base and cut off a prospective tying run with a great throw to the plate in the eighth. The Robins made 13 hits off Goldsmith in the second fray but left 12 runners stranded on the sacks. Butler hit a homer with two on for all of Brooklyn's runs in the fourth. Score:

SPORT SALAD

by H. I. Phillips

Ladies' Day.

THE girls are flocking to the game
The way they flocked to Lindy;
More than eleven-thousand came
To see last Friday's shindy.
They rang the welkin with their cheers
And everything was pleasant;
We take it those Three Musketeers
Among the crowd were present.

The interest of the lady fan
Is quite beyond disputing;
She makes a piker out of man
In fierce and fervid rooting.
One day per week she sees a game
And comes from every region;
For when she does turn out her name
Is Mary Ann Q. Legion.

Three rousing cheers for Ladies' day,
When women much elated,
Don't have to pay and pay and pay
As often has been stated.
We're pulling now for Ladies' week
When they can crash the wicket
And will not have to bring a chick
To purchase them a ticket.

A RIOT OF COLOR.

Between the Cardinals and Reds and all the colors of the rainbow in the grandstand not to mention the game being tied up in the ninth inning and the Cards winning out in the eleventh by a base on balls with the call three and two, last Friday's Ladies' Day game was a colorful affair.

And we'll tell the world it took a discriminating eye and unlimited nerve for Johnny Schulte not to offer at that fourth ball. And when you come right down to it Ump Quigley wasn't in a very soft spot either.

MACKS TAKE DOUBLEHEADER FROM YANKS

New York's Winning Streak of Nine Straight Broken—Ruth Retires With Lame Knee; Lamar Gets Homer

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The Philadelphia Athletics handed the Yankees a double drubbing today by 7 to 6 and 4 to 2, breaking New York's winning streak which had been stretched to nine straight. At the same time the Mackmen sheared two full games off the Yanks' hold on the League pinnacle, which is now eight contests.

In the first tussle, Lefty Grove worked well up to the ninth, striking out ten batters. Three successive hits were bunched off him in the final frame and he gave way to Pate, who barely held the Philadelphia lead. New York had four runs in and runners on third and first when Lou Gehrig was called out on strikes to end the game.

Babe Ruth again had trouble with his right knee and retired after the first inning of the final struggle. Lamar's bat was responsible for the Yanks' downfall in the second game. He hit a home run in the first inning and after New York took the lead in the sixth and crashed a triple with two on bases.

—E. B. McLean entry.

Handy Mandy, restrained first mile and a furlong, during which she saved ground, came to outside of the leaders at top of stretch and making a fast finish, drew away rapidly after taking lead. Dolan, fairly well up, after first half mile was forced back sharply when nearing stretch turn and came around his field with a rush in the last furlong. War Eagle raced prominently but wide throughout, but held on well to the end. Jock cut out a fast pace, disposed of Buddy Bauer after making the stretch turn, but weakened suddenly in last few strides. Buddy Bauer quit badly after nearing lead after last turn after he had forced the pace from the start. Rolled Stocking ran out on second turn and was badly outrun thereafter.

$2 mutuels paid: Handy Mandy, win $9.80, place $4.20, show $2.60; Dolan, place $10, show $3.60; War Eagle, show $2.20.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LATONIA, Ky., June 25.—Handy Mandy, H. P. Headley's unsightly daughter of Brown Prince II and Mandy Hamilton, this afternoon, by brilliant performance, forced her way into turf's Hall of Fame when she bettered the American track record for one mile and one-half in easily accountnig for the forty-fifth running of the famed Latonia Derby.

Going into the race a maiden, Handy Mandy raced to her first triumph by four lengths over E. F. Cooney's Dolan, the latter beating E. B. McLean's War Eagle two lengths for second. Jock, another which raced under the McLean colors, was fourth and the Idle Hour Farm's Buddy Bauer followed six lengths further back and three lengths clear of J. W. Parrish's Rolled Stocking, the only other starter.

Handy Mandy negotiated the long course in 2:28 3-5, reducing Man O'War's American record for the distance by one-fifth of a second. The fractional time for the new standard was :24 2-5, :48 2-5, 1:12 4-5, 1:38, 2:02 4-5, the latter being but two seconds slower than Sarazen's sensational performance over the one mile and one-quarter of the third International race in which he conquered Epinard, the famed and loved invader from Europe.

Sensational Running

The success of Handy Mandy, while in the nature of a mild surprise, was never-the-less consistent with the race which during its previous runnings has seldom failed to produce the exceptional, some of the unusual happenings of earlier running being a dead heat in the victory for the filly Los Angeles in the run off with White Away back in 1888, Lieut. Gibson enjoyed a walkover in the renewal of 1900. Brother Batch took the 1921 renewal after getting out of the maiden class only two days before the race and numerous other truly unusual incidents have attended the race.

Today's running was no doubt one of the most spectacular the race has ever experienced and this despite the consummate ease with which Handy Mandy accomplished her mountainous task.

After a delay of but two minutes at the barrier the six starters were away in perfect alignment, Willie Crump getting Rolled Stocking in motion slightly in advance of the others. He was followed away from the webbing by Jock, Buddy Bauer, War Eagle and Handy Mandy just managed to outbreak Dolan. When Rolled Stocking attempted to bear out at the adjacent turn Crump was forced to take him up strongly and Mack Garner shot Jock into the lead. Buddy Bauer moved up to force the pace, racing slightly on the outside of the leader and the others were closely bunched at their heels as the field made the first trip through the home stretch.

Rolled Stocking Bolts.

At the clubhouse turn where Buddy Bauer had moved up to within a half length of the leading Jock, Rolled Stocking bolted so badly that his chances of overtaking his field were almost completely eliminated. Entering the backstretch Jock still retained a head advantage over Buddy Bauer and both were racing restrained, with Handy Mandy following only a couple of lengths away and inches behind Dolan. At the final turn Earl Poole began to make his move with Handy Mandy, while L. Callahan after driving Dolan into eight quarters on the inside was forced to ease him back and start him around on the outside. After the stretch turn had been completed Buddy Bauer showed signs of the effects of following Jock's fast pace and the latter drew away slightly from the Idle Hour colt to take a lead of a length.

Handy Mandy, however, was racing in fine stride and with excellent speed and when the furlong pole was reached she had easily disposed of Jock and was going along under a steady benefiting hold. After losing the lead Jock began quitting rapidly and War Eagle moved up to displace him in second place. In the last sixteenth Dolan, coming with a big rush, overhauled both Jock and War Eagle in rapid succession but it was too late for him to menace the winner and she went to victory by four lengths. Dolan beating War Eagle two lengths for second. After bolting, Rolled Stocking never regained a forward, contending position and he trailed far behind the driving Jock and Buddy Bauer at the finish.

Racing Dates Granted.

Handy Mandy and her rider were the recipients of enthusiastic applause after their return to the circle of the victors in front of the stand to be blanketed with flowers and photographed by a battery of camera men.

The race had a net winning value of $24,250, with $3000 for second, $1500 to third and $750 to fourth.

The Kentucky State Racing Commission, meeting at Latonia clubhouse prior to today's races, authorized 53 days of fall racing at Latonia, Churchill Downs and a 13-day meeting in September at Dade Park. Following are the dates granted:

Dade Park—Sept. 3 to Sept. 15, 13 days.

Churchill Downs, Sept. 24 to Oct. 8, 13 days.

Latonia, Oct. 11 to Nov. 12, 29 days.

Lexington, Nov. 15 to Nov. 26, 11 days.

The Churchill Downs, Latonia and Lexington dates are much the same as last autumn, when meetings totaling a like number of days were conducted at the three tracks.

Boo Is Scratched.

J. C. Ellis, owner of Dade Park, announced that the meeting at his track would be conducted along the same lines as was the successful term of 1926.

Boo was found with a slightly filled foreleg this morning and the injury led to his withdrawal from the Derby field. Comrade was the only other non-starter from among the eight original entries.

Mary Hume was winner over Colle Queen, Charles Robinson and six other 2-year-olds in the fourth race at five and one-half furlongs, the youngster fighting it out bitterly the full distance.

The narrow defeat of Superfrank by Rejuvenation over the one mile of the third race furnished a mild surprise. But for being carried wide by Stampdale in the stretch Superfrank probably would have won. Wisdom graduated from the maiden division by defeating 11 other maiden 2-year-olds very handily in the second race.

FIRST WIN IN 9 STARTS

In winning the Latonia Derby over a distance of one mile and one half, Hal Price Headley's 3 year old Handy Mandy, daughter of Brown Prince II and Mandy Hamilton, set a new American record for that distance of 2:28 3-5. Handy Mandy's time clipped one fifth of a second off the old record which was established in 1920 by the great Man O'War. Handy Mandy carried only 109 pounds while Man O'War was asked to shoulder 118 at Belmont Park.

The fractional time for the mile and one half was: 24 2-5, :48 2-5, 1:12 4-5, 1:38, 2:02 4-5, 2:28 3-5.

The world's record for the distance was made by He, an English horse, which raced over the mile and one half over the Epsom Downs course in 2:25.

Prior to her winning effort yesterday, Handy Mandy was a maiden. In eight previous starts the filly failed to win a race but was second five times.

She was shipped from Louisville to Fairmount Park for the Fairmount Derby in which she started but finished sixth to Buddy Bauer, which she defeated yesterday, and Whiskery. After the running of the Fairmount Derby Handy Mandy was sent to Washington Park for the American Derby. She was given a workout in a race against a band of good fillies and finished fourth to Yeddo, a daughter of Man O'War.

Her next start was in the American Derby. She ran a good race to finish a close second to Hydronesse, clubbed Dempsey around and out of the ring. Then it was explained that Dempsey was dazed by the first blow struck.

And so on—

As a matter of fact in every Dempsey training camp the writer has attended for Dempsey's fights as champion—and that means for all of them—his training partners had no difficulty in scoring against Dempsey.

That's because he can not box. Jack's defense in the past has been his powerful and lightning-like hitting.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Hornsby-Frisch.

WHEREVER fans gather, the argument still goes on: Is Frisch as valuable to the Cardinals as was Hornsby? Partisans wrangle and fuss, but arrive nowhere.

It is probable that if the two men steam down to the finish line in about the same relative position they enjoy today, and the Cardinals win another pennant, there will be not the slightest doubt in the world that Frisch and not Hornsby would gain the Most Valuable Player trophy for 1927.

Frisch Mathematically Best.

THAT proves nothing. Commission judgment can be and has been terrible. In the National League, Hornsby lost the honor one year—the best of his lifetime—when one member of the commission did not even mention his name. The American League went far afield to name the decrepit Peckinpaugh its "most valuable," on one occasion. Thus the "most valuable" award proves nothing.

But mathematics do. They show us that Frisch today is hitting better than Hornsby; that he is stealing six times as many bases or thereabouts; and that he is outplaying his rival in the field, both in chances handled and errors made.

Also, Frisch handles one more chance in every twelve, than Hornsby, indicating a difference in ground-covering.

On the other hand Hornsby has driven in more runs than Frisch—at which point we come to a dead wall.

You tell which one is best, Bo—we can't.

Dempsey, the Boxer.

EVERYONE knows that Dempsey went into the mountains, some weeks ago, to find out whether he was fit to come back. None realized, however, the exact extent to which Dempsey put himself to the test. Dempsey in New York, gave an idea of the gruelling he gave himself.

"I put in 86 days of training," Dempsey relates, "and I worked hard on everyone of them but four, when I took a rest. I did all sorts of road and outdoor work and besides I put in 45 hours of boxing work which my friends say I need more than anything else. That's a lot of boxing, but it isn't a candle to what I expect to do in the next three or four weeks."

If Dempsey is correct, even allowing for intermissions between the rounds, he must have worked more than 600 rounds with the glove. In four years Dempsey has FOUGHT in the ring only TEN rounds.

Dempsey's partners in the Ventura mountains were not much—just hams, eggs and assorted camemberts. None the less, the work if honestly entered into, must have greatly benefited the Dempsey hand, foot and eye.

Dempsey Tells Us.

THOSE who know Dempsey are not concerned about his boxing. Dempsey never was much at that, defensively at least. In fact, Dempsey was always mighty poor with the mitts. He didn't have to box, because he usually hit the other fellow before his foe had a chance to sting.

Then, too, most of his opponents knew little or nothing about boxing.

On the few occasions when Jack met men who could wield the gloves, Dempsey dubbed his way through. For example:

Willie Meehan, a very porpoise of a fighter, on two occasions gained decisions over Dempsey, once after Jack was champion. They said Dempsey was kidding Willie.

Billy Miske, before his malady gripped him, stood Dempsey off easily for ten rounds and was almost unhit. This time they declared the bout was just a friendly one arranged for Miske's benefit.

Bill Brennan, who could wield the mitts a few, fought Dempsey to a standstill for twelve rounds before Dempsey finally copped. They declared Dempsey had trained on Broadway.

Tom Gibbons stepped around Dempsey for fifteen rounds and by dint of running escaped Dempsey's punches. They said Dempsey was fearful of ringside revolvers in Gibbon's followers pockets and was afraid to cut loose.

Luis Firpo, the crudest of all heavyweight aspirants, a man without skill and without even the first elements of boxing fi-

Howleymen and Indians Set for Double-Header

Zachary and Stewart Probable Starters Today for Browns.

CLEVELAND, June 25.—The Indians and Browns were unable to play yesterday afternoon due to a continuous drizzle, but they will play a double-header Sunday with the first game starting at 1:30 o'clock. Present indications point to a full southpaw afternoon, with Garland Buckeye and Tom Zachary carded to go in first game and Sherod Smith and "Lefty" Stewart in the nightcap.

Howley Is Optimistic.

Manager Dan Howley may change his mind, however, about one of his lefties and use Milton Gaston, who has always been more or less effective against the Indians, in one of the games.

Manager Howley is confident the Browns will get at least an even-split Sunday, for Cleveland has never been known as a twin-bill winning outfit. The Browns looked the part of not only a good ball club but a great one in defeating the Indians 2-1 in 10 innings Friday. The same can be said for the tribesmen, even in defeat.

It was only a trick of fate that kept Joe Shaute and Ernie Wingard from battling indefinitely instead of having the contest terminated in the tenth, according to Umpire McGowan.

Ball Takes Queer Hop.

The arbitrator made up his mind that Jamieson's throw would head Schulte off at the plate when he hot-footed from third on Gerber's fly. Jamieson's throw was as true as could be but instead of taking the sharp hop into Catcher Autry's glove after it struck the ground, the ball must have hit a soft spot and instead of the fast bound it took a slow and lazy loop into the anxious Autry's hands. McGowan said he just couldn't believe his eyes over the freakish hop and when Autry finally grabbed the ball he tagged Schute high up on the leg after he had slid over the plate instead of getting a cinch decision as he thought.

Frisbie Considers "Framed" Bout

—Wherein Lies a Chance at Fifty Grand

No. 12—A Fighter's Letters to His Manager

MRS. BLISH Tries to Steal Patsy's Stuff: The Art of Managing a Boxer.

By Walter Davenport.

DEAR PATSY:

As you know the frail sex are nothing in my life but being you are my manager maybe you ought to come up here to Belgravia Beach and meet a young lady named Miss Peggy Alps who is a big society bud and has a brother in college.

He is called the hurdling half wit because he is a football player and their father is in the railroad game like Mrs. T. Quincy Blish who owns the beach. They were going to can his son out of college but he put up a million bucks to raise the teachers wages and everything is O. K. again.

Everybody up here is goofy about fights and especially Miss Peggy Alps who is president of a society club which takes care of old polo ponies after then cannot keep their mind on the game any more and make it almost impossible to play polo.

She began on me the second day I was here seeing that none of Mrs. Blish's relations and reporters get on the beach to annoy the guests and while she is nothing to me I do not mind saying I felt very sorry for the polo ponies she looks after when they get old.

Frisbie Falls for Praise.

"LISTEN," she said to me, "the first day you were here I saw you blot out Anthony who is the big boy who has your job on the next beach which belongs to Mrs. Blish's sister, Mrs. Sledge. I know a left hook when I see it and I will say I never saw one until I saw you flatten Anthony."

"He will say so too," I said.

"Still in all," she said, "Anthony is a pretty good sport. He says you can lick him any day."

"He ought to know," I said.

"Yes," she said, "and as I say he is a good sport in a way and is very fond of old polo ponies. I know a good sport when I see one and I will bet you would be very fond of anybody who liked old polo ponies, wouldn't you."

"Well," I said, only kidding, "that all depends."

"I knew you would," she said, taking my arm. I was in my bathing suit and had to laugh because, if I do say so, I am not a shock to anybody in a bathing suit. "I knew it," she said. "I am head of the old polo ponies league and we want to put on a few entertainments for the benefit of them. Holy Joe," she said, digging her finger into my chest muscles, "I will bet they will have to carry Tunney into the ring the night you get your rights and win the championship."

"Well," I said seeing Miss Peggy knew what she was talking about, "they might as well get used to carrying him because they will have to carry him out of the ring, too."

I thought she would die.

Philanthropy a la Pony.

"IT will be a fine thing to have a champion who can take his rightful place in society," she said, "because you are very witty as well as a fine boxer and socker. Also I feel very sorry for poor Anthony."

"Why?" I said.

"Listen," she said, "the people down on the Sledge beach do not care a thing for old polo ponies which makes me want to cry. But if you will do what I say, we will make them come across with enough dough to not only take care of old polo ponies, but old polo players too. Of course you will have to help me because you are so strong and I am just a girl. Oh, I hate to ask you because you probably will laugh at me."

"Anybody who laughs at you will get a smack on the nose." I said laughing at her. "And that goes for me too."

"Well," he said, "this is the scheme: We will have three scraps between you and Anthony. The first will be held next week. Now down on the Sledges beach they are all saying that you put over a lucky punch on Anthony the other day and Anthony isn't saying anything except he said to me he knows it was not a lucky punch, but that you can lick him any day.

"Listen," she said. "You will let Anthony ride the first fight and carry him for the limit which is six rounds. You will win on points but Anthony will have a busted elbow for an alibi, and that will mean a second scrap which Anthony will take on points."

"Just a minute," I said. "Who is going to win on points did you say?"

"First you and then him?" she said.

"Listen," I said, "in the first place I couldn't win on points from that bozo if I fought him with one hand and blindfold. Suppose I was to hit him. Also you would have to talk to my manager, because I would not have anything to do with a frame. He does all that sort of business being my manager. What were you thinking of doing after the second fight."

Ought to Get Fifty Grand

THERE would be a lot of dough bet back and forth on the first two fights," she said, "and everybody would be even. But the third fight would be on the level and we wou'd bet our shirts and you would win. Personally I would bet twenty-five thousand dollars on you. The money we would take off those people on the Sledge Beach would would go to the old polo ponies and half of it to you. You ought to pull down fifty grand. But I see you will not do it so what is the use talking any more."

Well, Patsy, this little girl turned her head away and walked away and I guess she was crying. Today she wasn't at the beach all day and one of the other society buds was saying that she was in her room with a headache because she was worrying about worn out polo ponies.

"Why don't she take care of them herself," I said. "She has a lot of jack."

"Mr. Frisbie," said this young society bud to me, "you are a man of the world. Soon you will be champion of the world and she is only a little girl and you do not understand. When you leave here to be champion of the world you will forget all about her. You would not understand.

But I understand all right and while 50 grand is a lot of money it would not be enough to make me frame a fight only I would never forgive myself if this Miss Peggy Alps was to have a brain fever or something so maybe you better come down and bring me a sparring partner because we can charge a dollar a head admission for seeing me train.

K. O. FRISBIE.

Patsy on His Way.

FRISBIE:

The chances are that I will beat this letter to Belgravia Beach by two laps because I know by experience when my pocket is about to be picked.

I know a manager when I see one and the next thing I know this polo pony pitter of yours will be crowding Tex Rickard back into Alaska and telling you she will be your manager for 10 per cent instead of my honest 33 1-3.

Of all the crook tricks, swiping a honest manager's boy is the worst. So I'm coming down instantly to keep you from doing something dishonest when Miss Peggy Alps decides to be a manager of fighters.

Besides you will want me in your corner as usual when you box this boy Anthony for 50 grand which is a sum nobody can insult. Remember that honesty is always the best policy if they are watching you. Don't even look at a pen and ink until I get there.

Events Recited in Previous Letters

HARVEY (K. O.) FRISBIE is a young chauffeur, 18 years old, who writes Patsy O'Brien, a hard-boiled but human prize fight manager, in an effort to enter the famed O'Brien fighting stable. The latter looks over Frisbie and finally lets him in.

Aside from his ring proclivities Frisbie is the self-appointed successor to Rudy Valentino as the world's leading sheik. O'Brien is slightly alarmed at his charge's being a fighting wolf in sheik's clothing and attempts to discourage the boy from high stepping, with no very effective results. Right now K. O. Frisbie is quite sure he can bowl over Paolino, Sharkey or Tunney. He craves action with a head liner.

After watching Harvey polish off a number of tough second raters, O'Brien secures the boy a summer job as life saver at ultra fashionable Belgravia Beach. The lay of the land is that Mrs. Blish, who owns half the beach, is crazy about fighters and wants one to add tone to her swimming domain. On the other hand, Mrs. O. N. T. Sledge, Mrs. Blish's sister, is also pug-struck, but owing to a terrible squabble with her sister has ended diplomatic relations with the Blishes, taken over the other half of the beach as her territory, and engaged Angry Anthony, another canvas kisser, for a life saver. The go-between in the Blish-Frisbie deal is T. Quincy Blish III, son of Mrs. Blish, the elderly beach czarina and cauliflower fancier.

Harry Sharpe Licensed by State Committee

St. Louisan Among Eight Referees Recognized at First Meeting of Body.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 25.—The first formal and definite step towards the establishment of boxing in the State of Missouri, since the enactment of the recent fistic law, effective July 3, was taken yesterday by the State Athletic Commission, meeting in executive session at the Kansas City Athletic Club.

With the Kansas State Commission, represented by L. B. Edmonds present, the Missouri body approved a working agreement between the two states, put its O. K. on the American Legion boxing show to be staged here July 4, and issued eleven licenses to clubs throughout the state to conduct shows, in addition to granting permits to eight referees, five medical examiners, naming five Kansas City deputies.

Club Permits Granted

Three of the club permits granted were to Kansas City organizations, including the American Legion Central Executive Committee, Kansas City Aerial No. 47, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and Kansas City Officers' Air Corps Reserve.

Other licenses were granted as follows:

Robert S. Thurman Post, Joplin; Armour Men's Social Club, St. Joseph; Malcolm McDonald Post, St. Joseph; Leroy Smith Peter Post, Carrollton; Goad Ballinger Post, Springfield; McDonald Loawe Post, Springfield; Harris E. Etree Post, Oregon; Edwin S. Wiggins Post, Carthage.

The granted authorizations represent only approximately one-fourth of all the applications being considered, the commission made it plain. Several of these haven't made formal application, while others are undergoing the process of approval. More permits to clubs are expected to be granted at the next meeting of the boxing body to be held shortly.

The five deputies selected to keep their watchful eye on the fight situation in Kansas City are:

J. Pierce Kane, attorney; William Levy, florist; Paul A. Buzzard, lawyer; Joseph Damico, and Harry S. Davis, chairman of the American Legion Central Executive Committee.

These men will represent the commission in Kansas City, attending all the shows and giving their attention to the proper conduct of all cards. A deputy will attend the weighing in of all battles on the day of the fight.

Medical Examiners Named.

The medical examiners named by the committee to date are: George O. Wilhite, St. Louis; Dr. R. M. James, Joplin; Dr. H. A. Lowe, Springfield; H. W. Gillham, Jefferson City and Dr. Bradford F. Pittam, Kansas City.

Of the eight referees given permits four are from Kansas City, one from St. Louis and three from Springfield. Edward W. Cochrane, sports editor of the Journal-Post; Walter Bates, the Rev. Earl Blackman and Joseph H. Sieger were those from this city granted officiating permits. The others were: Harry S. Sharpe, St. Louis; J. Smyth, J. Edward Byrne and John Pierpont, all of Springfield.

Under the reciprocal pact between the Kansas and the Missouri commissions, one week of every month will be set aside for the conduct of boxing shows in Kansas City, Kan. This was done to prevent the confliction of dates between the two neighboring cities. Of three holiday dates, Kansas has been granted one. This year Missouri will reserve Independence day and Labor day while Kansas City will avail itself of New Year's day, 1928.

Boxing bouts on any other holidays, with the exception of Armistice day, are not permitted. Armistice day was agreed upon as optional by both bodies.

PEANUTS WINS IN BROOKDALE HANDICAP AT AQUEDUCT

DICE REPEATS BY WINNING IN AMERICAN

Son of Ambassador IV Runs Mile and Furlong Feature in 1:48 4-5, Defeating Display and Espino.

By G. F. T. Ryall

NEW YORK, June 25.— Peanuts and Dice did it again before 15,000 cheering race goers at Aqueduct track this afternoon. Peanuts winner of the Brookdale handicap a week ago won the Brookdale handicap, at one mile and a furlong, while Dice, which won the Hudson Stakes the same day added the great American to his list of victories.

The performance of Peanuts was the more impressive in that he picked up 7 pounds over his race in the Brooklyn and again ran the mile and a furlong in 1:48 4-5, a fifth of a second behind his own world's record for the distance.

The five-year-old bay son of Ambassador IIII beat Display which finished third to him week ago by a length, with Espino, third, a head behind. As Light Carbine and Chance Play, the odds on favorite, were heads behind it was quite a tribute to the skill of the handicapper. Forever and Ever, the other starter, never was close.

The fractional times were :22 2-5; :46 3-5; 1:11 2-5; 1:36 1-5; 1:48 4-5. The Brookdale handicap was worth $6,500 to the winner.

Few two-year-olds in recent years have run as gamely and as well as Dice in winning the Great American, his fifth race and fourth stake in five starts. Carrying the steadying impost of 126 pounds he beat Sun Edwin, to which he conceded 20 pounds by a nose in a whirling, driving finish. Groucher, winner of the Junior stallion stakes was third. The bay son of Dominant and Frumpery, which has won the Keene Memorial, Juvenile and Hudson stakes added $12,950 more to his money winnings, making him top of the list of the juvenile money winners.

Brooms Disqualified

It will be a question in the minds of many until the two meet again whether Dice or Brooms was best, for Brooms was crowded back by Sun Edwin in the last furlong, for which the Kilmer entry was disqualified. This moved Groucher into the place and Distraction, Dice's stable mate into third money. Time for the five furlongs was 1:00 .

TO HOLD PRACTICE RUNS FOR JUNIOR MARATHON

The third of a series of practice runs for boys preparing to compete in the Western A. A. U. junior marathon on July 28, will be held this morning on a one and one-quarter mile course in Fairground Park. The practice run will be preceded by a lecture on proper training methods. Training runs are supervised by former well known distance runners, among them being Joe Forshaw, Irvin Biel, Bob Probst and Henry Levinson. Boys desiring to participate in the training workouts are requested to report at the clubhouse, near the northwest corner of the park, by 10 o'clock.

FRISCH'S BATTING WAS FEATURE DURING PAST WEEK

CARDINALS' STAR AHEAD OF HORNSBY

Schang Makes Sensational Spurt in American League and Shows Way with .418 Average.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 25.—It may ere long be safe for Sam Breadon to walk the streets of St. Louis again, and perhaps remark "I told you so" to Frankie Frisch, the erstwhile Giant who went to St. Louis in a trade for Rogers Hornsby, has finally passed Hornsby in the batting averages. Figures compiled today including Wednesday's games give Frisch .381 and Hornsby .376.

They have played in the same number of games and Frisch has lined out nine more hits, even though many of them did not travel quite so far as those which bounded off Hornsby's club.

Frisch's efforts have taken some of the spotlight beams away from the Pirate trio who still dominate the National League's list of premier hitters—Clyde Barnhart, Joe Harris and Paul Warner.

Joe Harris Slumping.

They are in that order this week, Harris slumping a bit more than Barnhart in the past week. Even the redoubtable Harris could not stick for long at a batting mark of .361, though he is still above .400, tied with Waner for third place is Mueller of the Giants, who takes the week's batting honors with nine hits in three games, raising his figures from .281 to .391.

The other newcomer in the big ten in the National League is Bill Southworth of the Cardinals. Fredie Lindstrom of the Giants found the pace a bit too swift and dropped back. Mueller's performance edged out Glenn Wright of Pittsburg, although the Pirate shortstop's figures remained unchanged at .340.

Specs Meadows of Pittsburg is the leading pitcher with a row of ten victories to one loss. Jess Haines of St. Louis has 11 wins and Charley Root of the Cubs 12, but with several defeats. Crowding these two is old Grover Alexander, who pitched out of turn Wednesday to down his old team, the Cubs, for his ninth.

Leading hitters in the National League: Barnhart, Pittsburg, .418; Harris, Pittsburg, .417; P. Waner, Pittsburg, .391; Mueller, New York, .391; Frisch, St. Louis, .381; Hornsby, New York, .376; Farrell, Boston, .375; Harper, New York, .353; Southworth, St. Louis, .351; Traynor, Pittsburg, .345.

Pat Collins Boosts Mark.

Although the Yankees seem hardly in need of batting strength behind the plate, it is there if the wrecking crew show signs of faltering. Pat Collins is the slugging backstop, and his average of two hits a game this week has landed him today among the first 10 hitters of the American League, in averages compiled today including Wednesday's games.

Even better than that is the performance of Wally Schang, wearing shinguards for the St. Louis Browns. He gathered two hits a game, too, and jumped back to the top of the heap. His collection of swats included two homers and two doubles.

Harry Heilmann of Detroit makes his 1927 debut among the top 10, a group he has adorned for many years. This year, however, he seemed to be waiting for some hot weather pitching. Collins and Heilmann crowded out Goslin of Washington and Shulte of St. Louis. Babe Ruth passed three more stick experts in his slow but steady climb toward the top, landing in twelfth place today.

Ruth on Wednesday had 24 homers, leaving Lou Gehrig's 18 far behind. Lou, however, mighty for George Burns' two-base hit record, also 59. Gehrig has 22 doubles to 23 for Burns.

Hoyt to the Front.

With such a heavy socking group back of him, Waite Hoyt may soon catch the White Sox pair of flingers in victories. Hoyt of the Yankees has 10; Thomas 11 and Lyons 12. Lyons leads the trio in hard work with the equivalent of more than 15 full games. Hoyt and Lyons have each been sunk three times, and Thomas five times.

Goose Goslin's slump at bat has also spread to his base running, though his total of 10 is still two ahead of a group of fleet-footed pursuers. In team batting, only the Cleveland Indians bettered their figures of a week ago, gaining three points while all the others dropped back a bit.

Leading hitters in the American League: Schang, St. Louis, .418; Gehrig, New York, .384; Dykes, Philadelphia, .380; Simmons, Philadelphia, .378; Meusel, New York, .377; Cobb, Philadelphia, .365; E. Miller, St. Louis, .364; P. Collins, New York, .362; Fothergill, Detroit, .358; Heilmann, Detroit, .358.

YALE BEATS HARVARD, 8 TO 5, FOR EASTERN POLO CHAMPIONSHIP

By the Associated Press.

RYE, N. Y., June 25.—Yale won the Eastern intercollegiate polo championship today by defeating Harvard, 8 to 5, in the decisive match of the tournament.

Bobby Jones Tells Best Method of Producing Intentional Hook Shot

Useful as Means of Guarding Against Slice Where Latter Would Prove Disastrous to Player.

Stand Well Back, Turn Body From Ball and Swing Around on It, Open Champion Says.

By Robert T. Jones Jr.
(British Open and Southern Open Champion.)

ATLANTA, Ga., June 26.—In a recent article I tried to explain what I consider to be the best method of playing an intentional slice. Today I am going to attempt to describe how I should go about playing an intentional hook, or draw, as the shot is sometimes called.

BOBBY JONES.

For me there is little use for the draw or pull except as a means of guarding against a slice where the latter would prove disastrous; and it would be only for such employment that I should recommend learning to bring it off. The hooking spin somehow is not amenable to control to any degree approaching that to which a fade may be subjected. For most golfers the pull is produced by a quite unnatural wing. The tendency of most players, except those who employ the so-called "shut-face method," is to cut across the ball, and they have considerable difficulty in bringing the club around in a flat arc designed to produce a pull.

Whenever, because of a left to right wind or other circumstance which would render a slice undesirable, I attempt to apply a little hooking spin, there are two main points that I look to; first, I stand at a greater distance from the ball, and, second, I turn my body slightly more away from the ball on the backward swing. This is done to flatten the plane of the stroke, and to enable me to swing around upon the ball, rather than to descend upon it from above for in the latter case the inevitable tendency is toward a cut.

Come on Ball From Inside.

The most important feature of the drawing stroke is that the clubhead should come upon the ball from inside the line of play, and it should travel outward through the ball. Douglas Edgar, who scarcely ever played a shot without fade or draw, used to say that a slice was produced "by compressing the outside of the ball," and a hook "by compressing the inside of it." Whether or not the statement will bear scientific investigation, the conception is helpful in showing what must be done. Obviously what Edgar meant was simply that a hooking blow must be delivered outward, and that is about all that is needed.

The difficulty comes in delivering the blow in this manner without losing a deal of power and control, hence the advice about standing farther from the ball and turning the body more freely. In this manner it becomes practically impossible to hit in any way except outward and in a sweeping arc.

The other day while playing at East Lake, after slicing out of bounds at the fifth hole, a friend of mine remarked upon what a difficult matter it was to force himself to hit outward to prevent sliceball into the very place he was trying to avoid. But I think the diffing. It seemed, he said, that in doing so he was simply pushing the ficulty came only from a failure to be convinced that the outward blow would prevent the slice. It was mainly because he was not certain in his mind that he found it hard.

What Often Causes Hook.

As I wrote some time ago, I think most unexpected hooks are caused by stopping the left side and thereby cutting off the stroke. When I get in a fit of hooking I try to correct it by placing the ball farther forward and by shifting my weight a little more quickly, at the same time "giving it the back of the left hand," as Harry Vardon has said.

But in discussing the manner of bringing off an intentional pull it is not wise to say too much about the accidental variety lest the impression be made that the two are in any respect the same. Hooking shots caused by stopping the left side are hooks and pulls, to be sure, but the swing or stroke which produced them cannot be reduced to control so that the shot is worthless as a means of getting close to the objective.

One thing more: in playing a pull be sure that the right shoulder comes through a bit higher than it would for an ordinary shot. This enables the right hand and arm to turn the club face up to the ball and over, closing it with a sort of rolling motion which aids materially in producing the desired result.

I have always found it very difficult to bring off a pull or draw successfully, mainly because the stroke is not for me a natural one. Then, too, I have always been fearful of the shot as a dangerous weapon. A fade, if it becomes bad enough to be termed a slice, will usually stop soon after it strikes the ground; but a pull which has grown to the proportions of a real thoroughbred hook seems never to stop rolling until it goes into a bunker.

Bobby Jones Sails To Defend Title In British Open

Kirkwood, Australian Trick Shot Also Catches Boat for Glasgow.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Bobby Jones won a race against time when he sailed today to defend his title as open golf champion of Great Britain. The titleholder reached New York less than two hours before noon, but he was on the Transylvania when the Anchor liner put out at mid-day for Glasgow.

Joe Kirkwood, the Australian trick shot, who lives at Albany, Ga., came from Atlanta with the champion and also sailed on the Transylvania, but had only 11 minutes leeway, after a quick dash for passports and a vise.

Jones was accompanied by his father, Robert P. Jones, Atlanta lawyer, Stewart Maiden, Atlanta golf pro who taught Bobby how to swing a club and two friends, C. E. Freeman and Sherwood Hurt.

The invasion of Great Britain was decided upon in Atlanta Wednesday, leaving little time to perfect arrangements. The champion had previously decided not to defend his title, but after he found himself sadly off his stride at Oakmont, where he finished in a tie for eleventh place in the United States open, he was in a receptive mood when friends urged him to try to find his game at St. Andrews, the shrine of golf, where the British open championship begins July 11.

Bobby will carry the only serious American born and bred did for the British title. Kirkwood is an Australian and "Long Jim" Barnes, another American pro expected to compete, is as Scotch as the heather about St. Andrews.

The Call of the Outdoors

By ALEC MERMOD

AS mentioned once before, the Game and Fish Department of Missouri intends to emulate Pennsylvania in regard to establishing auxiliary game refuges on land leased for that purpose for a period of not less than 10 years.

These refuges will be in addition to those already established on State-owned lands, and the idea is to lease large tracts of land in different parts of the State best adapted to the particular game selected for propagation.

There will be an absolute sanctuary where no shooting will be permitted at any time, except that the Deputy Warden in charge will destroy all predatory birds and animals. The sancutaries will be inclosed by a single strand of wire and notices will be posted at different points, so that hunters may know the exact deadline. Outside this boundary the public will be permitted to shoot in accordance with the existing game laws.

It is to be hoped that our game department will follow the exact policy adopted by Pennsylvania in regard to these refuges, which is as follows: When the Game Commissioners decide that a certain tract is desirable, the owners are called on and the proposition submitted and the price of the lease agreed upon, but before any contract is made, each and every man owning land adjoining the sanctuary must agree not to post his land so that the shooting public will have equal privileges.

Public Is Protected.

THIS is as it should be, for it is the money obtained from the sale of hunting licenses to the hunters-at-large that makes the leasing of these tracts of land possible, and the shooting public should share alike as regards to any privileges. Should any land owner not agree to the conditions set forth, the deal is off and the department looks elsewhere.

Game properly protected in these various sanctuaries will multiply rapidly and in a short time there will be an overflow into the surrounding territory, thus affording good shooting.

The hunters of Pennsylvania seem to be sportsmen and there have been very few arrests of hunters crossing the boundaries. Should our Game Department decide to follow the Pennsylvania policy, a heavy fine and imprisonment should be imposed on anyone convicted of trespassing in the sancutary.

We hope to have Mr. Keith McCansas' report on game conditions in Pennsylvania in time for next Sunday's column. Mr. McCanse has shown a very progressive spirit since his appointment as commissioner and should have the support of everyone interested in the outdoors.

Killing the Goose.

SOME of the resort owners have seen fit to criticise and find fault with our law makers for establishing a closed season on game fish, contending that their business will suffer because the touring fishermen would no longer visit their resorts if they are not allowed to fish at any and all times.

These fault finders are so short sighted that they cannot see more than a month or two ahead and do not realize that if fishing is permitted during the spawning season there won't be any fish at any time, their resorts would have to shut down for good. These men seem perfectly willing to kill the goose that lays the golden egg, and are not deserving of the patronage of the sportsmen.

Justice of the Peace George Blinks of Chariton County is handing violators of the game and fish laws in fine fashion. His most recent case was brought before him June 16th by the newly appointed deputy, J. A. Melton, who arrested a man for violation of section 5623. This section prohibits the use of seines and nets with a smaller mesh than two inches and the use of two-inch mesh is only permitted in the Mississippi, Missouri and parts of the Osage and Gasconade rivers during certain months.

Cornfield Justice.

THE court was held in a corn field and the worthy Judge imposed a fine of $50 and costs, so this violator is out of pocket to the extent of $59.52, besides the cost of his nets which were confiscated.

An argument came up a few days ago in which one man contended that there should be a size limit as well as a bag limit on game fish, but I am not in favor of this for it means that if there is a limit as to size a great many more fish will be destroyed than are actually taken, for a great many small fish will be injured by the hook or by careless handling and will die if returned to the water.

The result will be that if there is a bag limit of 15 and a size limit of 10 inches a man will keep on fishing till he has the bag limit of legal size, and in obtaining this limit he has probably caught as many as 30 fish, and it is safe to say that, in many cases half of the fish returned to the water will die.

Caledonians Will Hold Field Day

A. A. U. 15-Mile Run Will Be High Light of Events Aug. 13.

The Caledonian Society of St. Louis will observe its first annual picnic Aug. 13, with various athletic events, the high light of which will be the National A. A. U. 15-mile championship race, to be run on the track at the ground at Ozark Park, on the Manchester State highway.

The winner of this event will receive a championship medal, and his performance will be considered in the Olympic team selection for 1928 in Europe. Representatives of the Western A. A. U. will conduct the race.

Although the Caledonian Society has been in existence in St. Louis for the past 78 years, the coming meet is the first annual field day and picnic held by the organization. Events during the day will include numerous Scotch numbers, in addition to the usual track and field meet events.

GOOD PITCHING FEATURES MUNICIPAL LEAGUE GAMES

FOLLE ALLOWS ONLY ONE HIT TO ST. PETERS

Independents Make Four Double Plays and Win Seventh Straight Victory in Defeating Friedens.

With a mid-summer sun to put the finishing touches on their arms, twirlers in the Municipal League came into their own again yesterday with enough low-hit games to make good pitching the rule, rather than the exception, despite the rabbit ball which has said to have found its way back into the national game.

Folle, on the mound for Friedens against St. Peters in the Junior Evangelical League, gave an exceptionally good account of himself by turning in a one-hit game and holding his opponents scoreless, while his mates turned eight hits into four runs.

The Senior Evangelical League also was represented in low hit affairs, due to the efforts of R. Wunderle, who allowed two hits against the Zions nine, winning 8 to 2.

Pitcher McDonald for the Sigma Alpha outfit in the Y. M. C. A. Employed Boys' League, granted only three hits to the Hogan A. C., but he lost the decision, 11 to 4, due to lack of support. Missey, who opposed him, turned in a five-hit game.

O'Neal was drafted from the outfield to pitching duty for the Towers in the Commercial League, and he responded to opportunity's call by allowing only six hits and striking out 11 of the opposing Regall Bakers, thereby giving his team the decision and putting them back into the Commercial League race.

The Independents won their seventh straight game from the Friedens, 17 to 5, turning four double-plays to aid in the victory, in a Senior Evangelical League game.

"Song of the Flame," For First Time Here, At Municipal Theater

Elaborate Musical Play to be Presented Tomorrow Night—Garden to Have Shakspeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Which Starts Tuesday.

THE production of George Gershwin's and Herbert Stothart's musical play, "The Song of the Flame," by the Municipal Theater Association on the Forest Park stage tomorrow night as the fourth offering of the 1927 season will introduce to St. Louis a work reported to be so stupendous that the legitimate theater could not bring it here. The presentation, hailed by some of the critics of New York and Chicago on its production only a year ago as America's most significant contribution to the field of light opera, will be its first in St. Louis.

The cost of staging this opera, because of the large cast and chorus involved and the unusually elaborate setting, was such that the commercial theater could not afford to take it outside of such major cities as New York and Chicago. The production Monday night will also be the first occasion it has been offered by any repertory company. Allan Rogers, Municipal Opera's tenor, was a member of the original New York cast.

"The Song of the Flame" is modern in every sense of the word. George Gershwin, who collaborated with Stothart, is a leader of modern American composers, and he has written into his score the syncopated form the soaring spirit of modern Russia. Stothart collaborated with Rudolf Friml on the score of "Rose Marie," another typically modern American light opera.

HARBACH and Hammerstein in their book have followed the modernistic score of Gershwin and Stothart. For their story, while adhering to the conventional operatic form in certain aspects of comedy and romance, is laid amid the turbulence of revolutionary Russia.

The title is expressive of this tumultuous country. For as the story goes, it is a song that sets loose the pent-up energy of a primitive race and brings about the revolution leading to Russian independence.

It is Anuita, a flaring independent girl, who during the Kerensky regime sees that Russians are bound by their own reflective spirit more than by tyrants, and who in an inspired song fires her countrymen to action.

Through her own vivid personality she is described as the flame, and the song that she sings, according to the legend, as expressive as the "Marseillaise" of the French Revolution, becomes known as "The Song of the Flame."

FROM this legendary background the opera leaves the fury of the Russian Revolution to center about a certain few individuals and the effect this strife has upon their individual fortunes. After a brief introduction to Anuita as the figure that inspires the Russian cataclysm, one meets this heroine under more romantic circumstances. She is seen as a peasant girl, hiding out in the home of her cousin, Grusha, until such time as her country shall again need her.

In this province far from the terrorism of Moscow she has met and fallen in love with Volodya, a Russian Prince, who is inspired to love by the same vitality and beauty that fired the Russians to independence. It is revealed, however, that it will be only a question of time until the Revolution grips this remote country, for Konstantin, a Communist leader who knows Anuita, as the Flame, is in the community.

Konstantin is not so much an idealist as he is a materialist, for he is sponsoring the Revolution for what he can get out of it. Accordingly, he offers to Count Boris, the foolish guardian of Volodya, an opportunity to escape provided he will divide the Prince's riches with him.

At the same time Konstantin is enamoured of Anuita, and is spurning off Grusha and also Natasha, a Tartar with whom he is involved, as a result of his flirtatious advances.

THOUGH Boris is ready to accept Konstantin's offer of a split for a chance at freedom, Volodya is unwilling and defies the Communist leader. Accordingly, Konstantin incites the peasants to advance against the Prince's castle.

In a desperate effort to save her lover, Anuita reveals herself to them as the Flame, but so glib is Konstantin that he prevails and leads the infuriated peasants to the attack.

Anuita, still hoping to save her beloved Volodya, places herself at the head of the peasants storming to despoil the palace. When they enter the castle they discover a riotous party in progress. Volodya had sought to drive the depraved nobles from his home, but for his

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, June 25.

ALL Hollywood is agog over the wedding tomorrow, Sunday, of Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque who will be married at 3 o'clock in the Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills.

The wedding will be followed by a reception at the Beverly Hills hotel attended by the 600 leaders of the Hollywood motion picture colony. Immediately following the reception the couple will leave for Canada where they will honeymoon for two months. Upon their return they will live at La Rocque's home on Lanewood avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn, in the absence of Miss Banky's parents, will act as sponsors for the wedding. Cecil B. De Mille will be best man. Mrs. Abraham Lehr, a close friend of Miss Banky since her arrival in the United States two years ago, will be matron of honor.

The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Samuel Goldwyn, Monique La Rocque, Constance Talmadge, Mrs. Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels and Diana Kane.

On Sunday, June 12, Bebe Daniels gave a "spend the day" party and a perfume shower at her beach home in Santa Monica.

Tuesday, June 14, Mrs. Harold Lloyd gave a handkerchief shower at her home in Beverly Hills. The guests included the bridesmaids and other friends of Miss Banky in Hollywood.

On Wednesday, June 15, George Fitzmaurice entertained the bridal couple at a dinner. On Friday, June 17, Diana Kane sponsored a hosiery shower at the home of her sister, Miss Lois Wilson. The large invitation list included the prominent members of society of the cinematropolis.

Mrs. Antoni Moreno held a dinner party for the couple and their friends Monday evening, June 20.

Robert J. Flaherty, who has gained unique distinction in the film world by his portrayals of native life, his first work being "Nanook of the North," showing Eskimo life, has been signed as a director by Metro-Goldwin-Mayer, it was learned last week.

Best information is that Mr. Flaherty's first photodrama under his new contract will concern itself with the South Seas, but that it will be a romantic story with a full cast—and not made solely with the aid of natives, as has been the case in his previous films. It is Mr. Flaherty's intention, however, to sacrifice none of the genre quality that has made his work so much discussed everywhere that pictures are shown.

Mr. Flaherty is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, a student and scientist, and one of the most delightful personalities in the picture field.

One of the prize roles of the season goes to Renee Adoree, who has been given the leading feminine part in "Rose Marie."

Marion Davies, who has completed Sir James Matthew Barrie's "Quality Street," is to be starred in George Ade's "The Fair Co-Ed." Sam Wood, who directed "Rookies" and Red Grange's successful football "op'ry," "One Min-

Around the World to the St. Louis Municipal Opera

By JOHN CHERRY.

John Cherry, one of the comedians of the Municipal Opera Company has experienced a varied career that has taken him around the globe to the Municipal Theater. And though he has been on the stage for 25 years, he remains a juvenile, because he started his professional career at the age of four.

FEW people in St. Louis can claim the record that I can—that of going around the world to come to Municipal Opera. Of course, I started out before St. Louis had a Municipal Opera; I didn't know where I was headed when I started; but I can say I've had a good time on the way.

It's easier to explain how I hi upon theatrical work. That is simply a matter of having been cradled in the theater. For, at the age of four, I undertook my first professional engagement in Sydney, Australia, as a tiny occupant of a swing in a minstrel show.

And it may be said of that time, if of no other occasion since, that I stopped the show. Gas lights in those days had not given way to electricity, and as a result the paper wrapped decoratively about my swing had, unnoticed, caught on fire. So when I jumped out of my swing to call attention to the flame, the show was stopped and stopped for good.

It likewise halted my theatrical career for three years to be resumed with a small bit in "The Chimes of Normandy." Then after attending school for five years the Pollard Lilliputians were organized, and with them I began circling the globe.

You can imagine what a serious company this was. All of us were 12 or under, and we were entrusted with the task of playing light opera in a straight, dramatic and musical manner. After leaving Australia we journeyed by boat for 19 days to Honolulu, and there played before Queen Liliuokalani, a very nice, jovial and fat lady, and her two genial sons.

YOUNG as we were, we hesitated at presenting nothing. "The Belle of New York," Gilbert and Sullivan, in fact, all the standard works of the period were included in the repertory. And we gave what we thought were excellent performances.

JOHN CHERRY.

Two of that company of juveniles have since become well known to you—Daphne Pollard of the Greenwich Village Follies and Snub Pollard, who's acting before the camera now.

From Honolulu we came to San Francisco. And then we trekked across the country. My most vivid impression of those days comes from an incident in Joliet. All our shoes were carried in a big trunk. And by some accident I fell into it and went to sleep. As a result, the performance had no comedian for the second act, a search high and low failing to reveal my sleeping place.

AFTER the United States we visited South Africa, India, to play before the Maharajah of Jedpore; Manila, Shanghai and Tokio. And by the time we reached Japan 10 years had elapsed and I had grown up to the point where I was too big for the comedian's roles and had to be transferred to "character" parts.

Ten years of trooping around the world were to us like the doughboys' experiences in the World War—something you wouldn't take a million dollars for but wouldn't give a dime to go through again. They at least introduced us to the stage in as thorough a training school as one could hope for.

On my return to the States I left the operatic field and turned to dramatic stock in San Francisco. And this period was also more distinguished for its experiences and pleasure than for its recompense. There were others, however, who acquired experience in the same way. Marjorie Rambeau, James Gleason, who turned playwright in "Is Zat So"; Henry Hall and many others played in that company.

THEN, working back East, I went with Kolb and Dill and was frequently put in the same dressing room with a conscientious character actor. And when we found living a bit hard on $1 a day, we occasionally roomed together and chipped in for a big plate of beans.

But Lon Chaney, who was the character actor sharing a room with me then, doesn't have those worries today. He has his own

Grand Central to Close Preparatory to Becoming A "Run" House Later

Erlanger Making Ready to Come Into St. Louis With Legitimate Shows at Dollar Prices Which Causes Movie Magnates to Tighten Up Their Field.

By NIE.

AS the first step in the move by the local motion picture theater magnates to relieve the overseated condition in the field here and to meet the increased opposition which is to come next fall the Grand Central Theater—the first of the pretentious movie houses to grow out of the old vacant store shows in St. Louis—is to be closed within two weeks with the shut-down coming, possibly, next Saturday night. Skouras Brothers, owners of the theater, will keep the place closed for a month or more, but will reopen it in August as a "run" house where big pictures will be shown for as long a time as the public will come to see them.

The prices will probably be set at 65 cents and among the first films to be shown will be "Ben Hur" and "The Big Parade." These have been displayed here in the so-called legitimate theaters at advanced prices. Other pictures which may play as road attractions at a higher scale of admission, will, later, be brought to the Grand Central at the 65-cent scale, but not until after sufficient time has elapsed to "protect" the houses which offer them first at $1.50.

The establishment of the Grand Central as a house for long runs has been forecast in these columns. Its temporary retirement from the field altogether as a weekly change cinema palace right now, marks the passing of a theater which was one of the gold mines of the early days of the films in St. Louis. Operated by William Sievers, it passed into the hands of the Skouras boys, who were struggling up the ladder to their future control of the local field. When Paramount opened the Missouri, the Grand Central continued to hold its popularity and its success played a large part in bringing about the deal between Famous Players-Lasky and the Skouras brothers whereby the latter got possession of the Missouri and the other Paramount houses.

IT was at the Grand Central that Gene Rodemich gained his fame as an orchestra conductor. Some of the best pictures in past years were shown there, but with the opening of the Ambassador, Loew's and the St. Louis, larger and more magnificent palaces of the silent art, business began to wane. It was necessary to put the all too few good pictures into the Missouri and the Ambassador to keep up the necessarily tremendous intake powers of those two houses and to meet the other opposition, and the Grand Central languished with poorer films. Since the departure of Rodemich, business has dropped steadily and now the Skourases are taking the step which they have long contemplated. As a run theater the Grand Central should once more prove a popular place of amusement.

OF more interest to the harassed theater goer who has to keep a tight hold on his purse strings in these days of high priced amusements, is the announcement that A. L. Erlanger, former Czar of the theatrical world, is to put in operation this winter a chain of theaters, with one here in St. Louis, to present legitimate plays with a "dollar top" scale of prices. This will be good news to play goers, but so far what house is available in St. Louis for the scheme is hard to figure out. Erlanger controls the American but that, of course, will continue at its regular scale for the highest class of attractions. It may be necessary to build another theater here but it is known that Erlanger would prefer to find a ready built place.

There is nothing very definite yet about what sort of plays will be offered at $1.00. The mere fact that the price is cheap will not attract large audiences after the novelty wears off for the play is still the thing. Erlanger, a most astute showman, can be counted upon to know what he is doing and undoubtedly has in mind a plan to knock 'em dead.

IN commenting upon this move to send popular priced attractions out through the country, the New York Times says that it has for its purpose a revival of the hinterland's fast waning interest in the so-called legitimate theater. In it are concerned the Erlan-

"SONG OF THE FLAME," AT MUNICIPAL OPERA

pains had been thrown into a closet by the debauchees in company with Nadya.

With "The Song of the Flame" as the undercurrent motif for this dramatic finale, Anuita discovers her lover with Nadya, believing him unfaithful, while Voledya emerges to believe Anuita has trifled with his love merely to make easier the despoilation of his home.

At this point there is an interval of two years in the story. With the third act one meets the majority of the principals as Russians in exile in Paris. Konstantin, the erstwhile Communist leader, heads a group of his countrymen in the management of the restaurant. Count Boris is there as a waiter, Grusha as the cashier and Nicholas, Boris' timid manservant, as doorman, while the Tartar, Natasha, is a featured dancer in the Follies Bergeres.

Through some unknown means Konstantin has acquired great wealth, while Nicholas is in some mysterious way associated with his affluence. The party, meanwhile is anxiously awaiting the arrival of Anuita from Russia, where she has been imprisoned for supposedly conspiring to defraud the Government of the riches in Volodva's home.

SHORTLY after Anuita is welcomed by the group, Konstantin proclaiming his love for her, Volodya likewise arrives and denounces the Flame as the person who robbed him and trifled with his love while being associated with Konstantin.

It is quickly discovered, however, that Konstantin is the real culprit, and Anuita and Volodya are united in their love and their determination to return to Russia to aid in the rehabilitation of their country, the opera ending with a stirring reprise of "The Song of The Flame."

In this opera Gershwin and Stothart are said to have poured a melodic richness characteristic of the finest modern musical compositions, "The Song of the Flame" and the Cossack's Love Song being dominant musical numbers and recurring frequently throughout the work. Other passages, however, include such pieces as "Far Away," "Woman's Work Is Never Done," "Great Big Bear," "Tartar," "You May Wander Away" and "Vodka."

The cast will be:

Konstantin	Paul Kleman
Anuita	Myrtle Schaaf
Grusha	Dorothy Seegar
Nicholas	Robert Pitkin
Boris	John Cherry
Tartar	Anne Yaze
Volodya	Allan Rogers
Nadya	Jocleta Howe

SHAKSPEARE'S "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will open the fourth week at the Garden Theater Tuesday with the Goodman Players. This play was used as the opening attraction last season. It became so popular that upon request it was repeated at the close of the season. It also received a large vote for inclusion in this year's program.

The cast of characters, including the entire Goodman Players' Co., is as follows:

Theseus, Duke of Athens	Carl Benton Reid
Hippolyta	Helen Joyner
Egeus	Russell Saunder
Hermia, his daughter	Lucille Culbert
Lysander	Hubbard Kirkpatrick

dressing room, a chauffeur and a fortune, because he studied the art of makeup and developed his work in the motion picture world.

The lean years, however, seem always more replete with adventure and memories than the easier ones. So five years with Morosco and engagement in "So Long Letty" with Charlotte Greenwood, in "The Pink Lady" with Bert Williams, whom I remember for always having called me "Cherryola," and in "Poppy" with W. C. Fields and Madge Kennedy, aren't so productive of reminiscences.

Most interesting, perhaps, was my work in "Rose-Marie," which I find I'm going to have the pleasure of doing in St. Louis. But the most thrilling experience was my first entrance to the center of the Municipal Theater stage.

For, while it's been said often by almost every actor who stepped on to it, I'm going to have to say it again. First nights, Maharajahs, Queens and typhoons didn't stir in me the same appalling feeling of infinitesimal minuteness as did my finding myself in the middle of that stage with a field of faces before me and not even a friendly ceiling to gaze upon.

Second Thoughts on First Nights

By ALISON SMITH

NEW YORK, June 25.

IN these weeks without a single opening the chronic first nighter's lot is not a happy one. Out of the sheer desperation of habit he has taken to revisiting the scene of earlier openings, especially in this season where former successes are vanishing in droves of 14 or more at a time. We have it on the word of three observant doormen that never before have they passed in so many of these repeaters returning to the hits that still remain. One record, held by a roving playgoer, stands as follows:

"Broadway," four times; "Spread Eagle," three; "The Silver Cord," two; "The Constant Wife," three; "Peggy Ann," five, and "The Spider," two (the second because on the occasion of its opening he started to go out under the impression that he had wandered into a vaudeville house by mistake).

After all, you might do worse, if you have to stay on Broadway. Then there is always the obligation to the visiting stranger who needs must see the hits and naturally can't be expected to see them alone. There is usually some scene that has been blurred and lost in the restlessness of a first night audience and a playwright who has held your interest once can be relied upon to sustain it through a second hearing of his lines. On the other hand, you never can be sure of the same performance.

OF course, strictly speaking, no two performances are ever exactly the same. However, with due allowances for variations in mood, it is reasonable to suppose that a player who has opened with one superb interpretation may be relied upon to continue it through the life of his play. The natural reaction you would expect, would take the form of a languor and indifference through the natural weariness of a role played for a thousand and one nights. Somehow, it doesn't work out that way, as every first-night addict knows. The chances of disillusionment, in returning for the second time to a performance practically perfect when you saw it first, lie not from a wearied and muted cast but from a group of hitherto orderly players who are tearing up the stage properties in a violent and uncontrolled attack of overacting.

This can be embarrassing both for yourself and your theater guest. Through dinner, you have been caroling happily about the sensitive restraint and subtle reserve of a given player and when the curtain rises you find her chewing up the scenery in a frenzy of good old-fashioned barnstorming. And "the gentleman who goes to the theater with you" sits in ill-concealed and pitying scorn for your judgment of the new technique and your frantic explanations on the way home are received with the scepticism of the one who is told that this is unusual weather in the old home town.

Why a player who can (and has) expressed a world of agonized apprehension in one turn of the wrist should suddenly try to convey the same emotion by tearing the chandelier down from the stage ceiling and chewing off the candles, remains just another of those mysteries which baffle the man out front. It doesn't have to happen. It is a pleasure to report that at least three plays, which have rounded out the season on Broadway, have held to the even tenor of their first performances.

THEATER ticket prices have become a comic supplement joke—along with plumbers and spring millinery. Cartoonists have seized with delight on the picture of the patient host staggering up to the box-office under a pile of money-bags and the farmer rushing into the ticket agencies waving the mortgage on the old homestead. The rising price of one evening's entertainment is now regarded as the most hilarious of practical jokes on the persistent theater-goer based always on the safe assumption that the public loves to be fooled.

However the public may love it, it has become evident that the income tax authorities do not. As a result the United States Attorney has set to rummaging around the account books of the speculators and middlemen in a relentless exposure of the business habits of the drama. Revelations brought about in this official study of the business habits of the drama have started a campaign for the remedy of conditions which the careless millionaire may regard as a good joke on himself, but which the average man on the isle regards as an outrage. Up to date, the most practical campaign is headed by Joe Leblang, that genial Czar of the cut-rate agencies, who for years has watched the big parade of ticket buyers from his subterranean cave on Forty-third and Broadway.

Mr. LeBlang proposes a central ticket agency where seats may be bought with a ten per cent advance on shows costing $2.00 or more, and no advance at all on those costing less than that amount. The system involves elaborate mechanism for thwarting that fawning and insidious villain, the ticket profiteer. When you go to the agency and order two seats for a specific night, you will receive not a ticket but a receipt stating clearly the location of the seats. A copy of this receipt will be sent to the box office, and the buyer, on turning over his duplicate slip, will receive his tickets. Thus the sinister wretch is foiled and justice triumphs.

This does not protect the buyer who waits until the last moment and then buys tickets from a broker who has acquired them after five o'clock. In this group is included the windy spender who cannot deny himself the joy of paying twice as much as he needs to for a ticket—and grumbling about it afterwards. "For these," added Mr. LeBlang, more in pity than anger, "there is no hope, in or out of the show business."

ute to Play," will direct Miss Davies in the Ade opus.

Following the completion of "Adam and Evil," starring Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle, this new sophisticated farce team will start "Be Your Age!" in which Cody has the part of a famous stage lover, with Miss Pringle cast as his wife.

Jackie Coogan is to be a cabin boy aboard an ocean liner in his next picture, "Buttons." George Hill, director of Lon Chaney's "Tell It to the Marines!" wrote and will direct the Coogan picture.

The love career of Sarah Bernhardt will be screened under the title, "The Divine Woman," with Greta Garbo as its star. Following completion of Lillian Gish's "The Wind," Victor Seastrom, its director, will start work with Miss Garbo on the story of the "Divine Sarah."

Well along the road to recovery, after a narrow escape from pneumonia, Harold Lloyd has renewed story conferences on his new picture, and in all probability the next two weeks will see him working on his New York production. The comedian has taken over the house at Santa Monica beach that he has occupied for several summers, and with Mrs. Lloyd and their three-year-old daughter, Mildred Gloria, will spend a week there recuperating. The family will remain there until the production unit leaves for New York in the latter part of August or early in September.

An "unknown" of Hollywood has become a leading lady overnight. Her name is Ann Drew, and, with a record of a number of minor bits of obscure parts in several studios of the land of films, she has been selected for the lead with Ken Maynard. Twenty hours after her selection, Ann Drew went with Maynard and others of the company to Great Falls, Mont., for three weeks' work in the taking of exteriors. The photoplay is titled "White Horse Troop." Miss Drew is a Denver girl.

First National has renewed its contract with Ben Lyon for the fifth consecutive year. The contract was signed just after the young featured player had finished his role in "Hell's Kitchen." Plans have been made for featuring Lyon in a number of productions during the season of 1927-28.

After being in production since Jan. 17, final scenes for "The Patent Leather Kid," starring Richard Barthelmess were made at the Burbank Studios last week. "The Patent Leather Kid" is to be released as a road show in the fall, opening in New York, at the Globe Theater, Aug. 15.

Cantor Joseph Rosenblatt is in Hollywood where he will make his first appearance in motion pictures by way of "The Jazz Singer" and Vitaphone. While the cantor is to do considerable singing in the production and has a character role, he will take no part in the dramatic action. Al Jolson is the star of "The Jazz Singer."

Estelle Taylor has been chosen by D. W. Griffith to play the title role in his first picture for United Artists, "La Paiva." As the mistress of Napoleon III she will have opportunities for characterful portrayal greater than those which won her acclaim as Lucrezia Borgia in "Don Juan." Mr. Griffith promises. The story, an original by Karl Vollmoeller, the author of "The Miracle," is laid in a period with which Griffith has been familiar since he made "Orphans of the Storm"—that of Paris at about the time of the Franco-Prussian war. It carries Miss Taylor through many vicissitudes, from gutter to court, as favorite of the emperor and as fiancee of one of his ministers.

Rumors are rife in Hollywood to the effect Angelica and Juliette Pueyrredon, charming young daughters of Dr. Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine Ambassador to the United States, may take a "fling" in the movies. While civic officials of Los Angeles were paying honor to the diploma, the two young girls were constant companions of Dolores del Rio, the Mexican film star, who escorted them through the studios, pointing out the interested happenings behind the "hard to enter" movie plants. "Both Angelica and Juliette would make excellent types for the forthcoming picture I will make," said Dolores. The film in question is Helen Hunt Jackson's American love story, "Ramona."

Compelled to use two studios because of the unusually large number of sets in "Sorrell and Son," the picturization of the popular English novel, Herbert Brenon recently transferred the entire company from the United Artists lot to the Buster Keaton studio. After interiors of the story of father and son devotion are completed in Hollywood, Brenon and his players and technical staff will sail for England to spend several weeks shooting exteriors. Brenon has arranged to make scenes in London and other parts of England where the story is laid. Added to the cast headed by H. B. Warner, who, as the elder "Sorrell," plays his first role since "The King of Kings," are Lionel Belmore, Alice Joyce, Norman Trevor, Anna Q. Nilsson, Nils Asther, Mickey McBann, Louis Wolheim, Mary Nolan and Paul McAllister.

ger and Chanin interests, which are at work on plans to build up road business in the cities where Erlanger and his associates control playhouses. Irwin S. Chanin has confirmed reports that the undertaking is in process of formulation, but he is unwilling just now to give out the particulars.

The idea seems to be to bring into the Erlanger-Chanin organization young producers who will stage attractions with a definite view to the road and with casts of better grade than customarily play up and down the country in New York vehicles. These productions will be seen in what statisticians and advertising men call the key cities of the Erlanger circuit, which is now in process of expansion. Besides Erlanger's, in New York, that producer has or is to have new theaters in St. Louis, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Detroit and San Francisco. In at least one of these he will be associated with E. M. Statler, the hotel man.

Last week, through Equity, the magazine of the actors' organization, announcement was also made of the plans of David Kraus, former president of the Mutual burlesque wheel, to establish a circuit of 36 houses which will present legitimate attractions at a dollar top. It is the ambitious idea of this one, which is to be known as the International Circuit of Legitimate Theaters, to operate along the lines of the franchise system employed in burlesque, with various stars and featured players allotted the authority to organize and operate companies.

THAT everything is not moving as smoothly as it once did in the picture game is made plain by the fact that Paramount has "requested" each of its thousands of employes to take a 10 per cent cut in salary. In this column, last Sunday, it was pointed out that the public was no longer going from picture house to picture house, but was shopping for its entertainment and the producers, after the theater owners, have felt the effect.

"A serious situation has arisen in the motion picture industry," says a statement from Jesse Lasky, vice president of the Paramount forces. "We might as well face the facts. The net income from pictures is not sufficient, because costs have mounted too high. The industry as a whole has been spending too much for what it has been getting, and as far as Paramount is concerned, we can go on in that way no longer.

"The request to employes to accept a voluntary reduction in salaries is only the first step we intend to take to protect the future of our business. We are even placing the situation up to our contract players, and will appeal to them to meet the issue by accepting the reduction."

Lasky declared that his own salary and those of other officials were the first reduced, and added that the entire New York office staff had accepted the reduction.

"Extravagant expenditures upon unnecessary spectacles will have to be stopped," the statement said, although Lasky declined to give any indication as to the direction of other proposed economies.

FOR what may be the last picture to be shown at the Grand Central under the old policy of the theater as a regular movie house the Skouras brothers have picked "Michael Strogoff," once, as a spoken play, a standard and sure fire melodrama. Now, after 50 years, it comes to the screen as a big, spectacular affair.

"Michael Strogoff" was written and first published in Paris in 1876. Jules Verne was already immensely popular in England and America, and so shortly after his latest work appeared in France it was translated into English and brought out in London and the United States. G. Munro, who published it in 1877 in America, found the sale of the work was so enormous that he brought out other editions in 1881 and 1887. Scribners also published "Michael Strogoff" in 1877 and have been printing it ever since. Other publishers, including A. L. Burt, Henry Holt and Donahue, have printed many editions of the work which has enjoyed enviable popularity in this country for more than two generations.

AT the same time that the book has been fascinating readers the play has been thrilling theater audiences. In 1880 Adolphe d'Ennery dramatized "Michael Strogoff," and it was produced at the Theater de Chalete, Paris, with Marais in the leading role.

So popular did the play prove that H. J. Byron made an English adaptation which opened at the Adelphi Theater, London, in March, 1881. It was brought to America and produced by Barron Colville, one of the most picturesque showmen of the early cities, as a stupendous spectacle. He purchased the expensive equipment outright in Europe, where the massive production was enjoying a sensational run. For three seasons, 1881, 1882 and 1883, the production of "Strogoff" eclipsed in America its amazing success abroad and made a fortune for Colville.

On top of this a number of other producers put on the play, as there were no copyright laws to protect Colville. John Stetson presented it at the Booth Theater, in New York and still another version was being offered at Eberle's Eighth Avenue Theater in the same city.

But it remained for the Kiralfy Brothers, who had leased the old Academy of Music on Fourteenth street, to put on the most notable of the stage presentations. The Kiralfys were a family of Bohemians who had danced their way to fame, one of the members of their dancing company being Mlle. Adelaide, widow of Alexander Hermann, the great magician.

The Kiralfys made their first big strike with "The Black Crook," which opened at Niblo's Garden Sept. 12, 1866. After 450 consecutive performances, the author and owner was killed in an accident, and the Kiralfy Brothers acquired sole production rights to this great show which was assailed by the pulpit in all parts of the country as an immoral and vile thing because the dancers in the ballet wore shameless dresses that ended just below the knee.

"Bigger than ever" was the prodigious spectacle, "Michael Strogoff," which followed in the golden wake of their first great success. It made a fortune for the Kiralfy Brothers, recording unprecedented runs in all of the big cities and touring every town that owned a stage.

MUENCH'S VIEWS ON LACLEDE FRANCHISE

City Counselor Says St. Louis Need Not Grant Charter "Except on Fair Basis."

Editor Post-Dispatch:

"The statement which appeared in the Post-Dispatch of June 23, to the effect that nothing would be gained by requiring the Laclede Gas Light Co. to obtain a new charter, for the reason that the questions of valuation and rates would always be subject to the control of the State Public Service Commission, must be modified in one or two particulars.

"It has been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in several instances, that where there is a franchise contract between a city and a utility, fixing a certain rate of charges for the utility's services, these charges may not be modified merely upon the ground that they are confiscatory, but only on the ground that an increase in rates is necessary for the purpose of enabling the utility to function at all. Furthermore, a utility under these circumstances has no right to file a schedule providing for increased charges, which automatically come into effect unless suspended, as it has wheer there is no franchise agreement.

Advantages to City.

"From the city's standpoint, the advantages which would flow to it as a result of the revocation of the Laclede Gas Light Co.'s charter would be that, first, the City, having full control of its streets, need not grant any charter except on what seemed to it a fair basis. Having entered into a fair charter contract, this would not be subject to modification by the Public Service Commission on the mere plea that the charges fixed were not yielding a sufficient rate of return on the value of the property, but before the rate could be increased it would be necessary to show that without the increase it would be wholly impossible to render the service. Nor could any relief be granted by a court; the company would be entirely dependent on relief from the commission.

"In a gas case which went to the Supreme Court of the United States from Arkansas (Arkansas Natural Gas Co. vs. Arkansas Railroad Commission, 261 U. S. 379) the Court said:

"'While a state may exercise its legislative power to regulate public utilities and fix rates, notwithstanding the effect may be to modify or abrogate private contracts (cases cited), there is quite clearly no principle which imposes an obligation to do so merely to relieve a contracting party from the burdens of an improvident undertaking. The power to fix rates, when exerted, is for the public welfare.'

"Likewise, in the water case, Henderson Water Co. vs. Corporation Commission (70 L. Ed. 128, 130), the Supreme Court of the United States said, when the water company applied to the Corporation Commission for an order increasing rates, it was bound by the terms of a contract with the city, contained in its franchise, to furnish water at a low schedule of rates fixed therein. It was not entitled to any judicial relief from this situation, however inadequate the rates.

"It will be seen, therefore, that while the authority of Public Service Commissions over utility matters is great, it is not absolute, and cannot be exercised arbitrarily."

Different Opinions by Others.

Lawyers familiar with the powers of the state in regulation of public utilities differ sharply over the point asked by Counselor Muench. Those opposing his view cite the fundamental law of Missouri embodied in its Constitution as follows:

"The exercise of the police power of the state shall never be abridged, or so construed as to permit corporations to conduct their business in such a manner as to infringe the equal rights of individuals, or of the general well-being of the state."

This is interpreted to be that the rights of corporations shall be kept on equality with individuals and that no franchise provision the city might make with a utility company would hold in the face of any impairment of its rights to enjoy equal benefits of its property.

Furthermore, the constitutional provisions has repeatedly been specifically interpreted to notes stipulated in franchise.

A water company in Sedalia had contracted to furnish water for fire protection at $30 per hydrant per year. The company, alleging that higher operating costs had ensued, got the Public Service Commission to establish a $45 rate, and was upheld in court. In St. Louis, the franchise provision of the city with the United Railways providing for a 5-cent fare was overthrown and the Public Service Commission's action upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

REAL ESTATE COMPANY IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

William J. Abbott, a real estate dealer, yesterday, was appointed receiver for the Missouri Realty and Construction Co., 6117 Page boulevard, by Federal Judge Davis, on petition of a creditor, the Alton Brick Co. Abbott for several weeks had been chairman of a committee of the Real Estate Exchange, which has been endeavoring to adjust the financial difficulties of the Missouri company.

The Alton company has a claim of $7164 for materials furnished the Missouri company, which has been erecting apartment houses in the West End and North End, on such avenues as Burd, Maple, St. Louis, Greer and Hamilton.

Instead of using income from completed structures to pay off the debts, says the petition, the defendant company has used the income to erect additional buildings and to pay usurious interest to certain mortgage holders. Insolvency is not alleged, but a receiver is asked to "marshal, conserve and administer the assets."

POSTS $40,000 BOND IN RACING RABBIT SUIT

Inventor's Widow Gives Surety . Should She Lose Ramona Club Action.

A $40,000 surety bond, obtained from a surety corporation, was posted in Federal Court yesterday in behalf of Mrs. Hannah M. Smith, widow of Owen P. Smith, inventor of a mechanical rabbit and kindred appliances used in dog racing, in her suit to restrain the Ramona Kennel Club from using an allegedly infringing device.

The bond will indemnify the club, operating Ramona Park Track, St. Louis County, against loss in event the suit should be settled in the club's favor. Counsel for Mrs. Smith also presented to Judge Faris at noon an injunction order which would tie up use of the Ramona devices pending a hearing.

Makeshift Rabbit Fails.

In an oral opinion Friday, Judge Faris made known that he would enjoin the use of the Ramona equipment, and accordingly the track management substituted a makeshift device that night, although not under legal compulsion to do so until served with notice of the injunction order. The plaintiff's counsel arranged with the United States Marshal's office yesterday to have the notice served by night.

The scheme employed to replace the mechanical rabbit and dog cage release, consisted of a fake rabbit mounted on a bar protruding from a motorcycle ridden around the track, with men to lift the cage door and let the dogs start in pursuit, instead of the spring release which Mrs. Smith claims is included in her husband's patents.

Fighting Among Dogs.

As a result of the change, there was confusion and even fighting among the dogs Friday night, some of them not racing properly. Racing "form" was upset, to the confusion of bettors.

It was announced the motorcycle arrangement was to be continued last night. The Madison Kennel Club, operating an East Side dog track, uses the Smith equipment.

FORMER ST. LOUIS REALTY MAN GETS YEAR IN JAIL

William M. Skala Pleads Guilty of Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

William M. Skala, former St. Louis real estate dealer, who sold home sites in Alta Sita, East St. Louis subdivision, on a "job-for-every-lot" basis, yesterday pleaded guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses and was sentenced to a year in the county jail at Belleville.

The St. Louis Better Business Bureau received complaints from lot buyers that Skala had told them Henry Ford planned to build a mammoth glass plant near the subdivision, and employment would be obtained for them if they bought lots.

Skala and his partner, Barbara Mattia, were indicted Sept. 30, 1925, for operating a confidence game. She has never been apprehended. Skala was permitted to plead to the lesser charge—obtaining money by fraud—because an important witness, Elsa Malkin, his former stenographer, could not be located. "I didn't do anything wrong, but I'm glad to get off like this," said Skala, as he returned to jail.

STAINED GLASS MAKERS TO OPEN CONVENTION TOMORROW

Will Consider Tendency of Design Now Reverting to Early Works.

The three-day annual convention of the National Stained Glass Manufacturers' Association will open at Hotel Statler tomorrow. About 100 delegates are expected to attend. There are a number of members with establishments in St. Louis.

Henry Hunt of New York City, president of the association, will be the chief speaker. Trade topics will be the principal items of discussion. One probably will be the present tendency of design to revert to the early styles of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, when stained glass was new. The designers and draftsmen are drawing inspiration from famous windows of medieval edifices.

There will be business sessions tomorrow and Tuesday and on Wednesday the body will go to Stonehenge o nthe Meramec River. Early arrivals will be entertained at dinner at Bevo Mill tonight. The body will attend the municipal opera tomorrow night. Tuesday noon there will be luncheon at the Riverview Club, and Tuesday night a banquet at the Century Boat Club.

Foreign Troops in Rhineland Breach of Faith, Imperiling Peace, Lloyd George Thinks

Germany Honestly Carrying Out Reparations Agreement — Poincare Hampers Briand With His Provocative Speeches.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
War-Time Premier of England.

LONDON, June 25. (By Cable.)

THERE is danger that the spirit of Locarno will not be allowed time to mellow. M. Poincare has returned to his old practice of pouring vitriol into the still. There had been a suspicion for some time that his influence was interfering prejudicially with the process of fermentation. It has become increasingly evident that M. Briand was not having his way. M. Briand is the real author of the Locarno pact. It is the product of his conciliatory genius. His nature is devoid of all acridity. He has none of the passions of the meaner minds. He is, by equipment, intellect and temper, pre-eminently a statesman of appeasement. The very shape of his fine brow indicates a man of real breadth of mind and sympathy.

Had he received generous support from his ministerial chief—had he even been left alone to work out his schemes—Europe would have enjoyed what its war-scorched plains most need—a real pacification.

Return of Peace Retarded.

Every year foreign troops remain on German soil retards and imperils the restoration of genuine peace. As the German spirit rises from the slough of despond it resents more and more the quartering of foreign soldiers on its towns and the interference of foreign affairs with the freedom of their citizens. This was inevitable. Every high-spirited race would be bound to grow restive and rebellious against such humiliation. German statesmen, fearing the consequences, made every effort and sacrifice to purchase the redemption of the fatherland from military occupation. This was the inducement which formed their most potent plea with German public opinion for disarmament, for the dismantling of fortresses and for payment of the vast sums remitted to the Allies towards reparation.

It was contemplated by the authors of the Treaty of Versailles that the occupation should be terminated as soon as Germany gave genuine guarantees of her intention to carry out her obligations under that treaty. Explicit words to that effect were inserted in the treaty and it was only on condition that France should faithfully and in a liberal spirit interpret those words that the American and British representatives agreed reluctantly to the clauses empowering military occupation of the Rhenian bridgeheads for a term of years.

A Breach of Faith.

The continued military occupation of the Rhineland is a distinct breach of faith. What more could Germany do to demonstrate her good faith? Her great army has been dispersed and no fresh recruits are being trained except to fill gaps in a small standing army. Her gigantic armaments have been scrapped and smashed into old iron. Her navy has vanished. Her fortresses are dismantled. She has not at her command an army or equipment that would enable her to fight the feeblest of her neighbors.

As to reparations, she is honestly carrying out the arrangement entered into between her and the Allied powers three years ago. The mere fact that she has been unanimously welcomed not only into the League of Nations but into the Council that directs its affairs is the best proof that all the world acknowledges that she has discharged honorably her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles.

Briand Steadfast of Purpose.

The logical consequence of Locarno and the outward visible sign of its sincerity would be the withdrawal of foreign soldiery from German soil. M. Briand undoubtedly was quite prepared for that eventuality. What else did a private meeting between him and Herr Stresemann at Thoiry concern itself about? Germany and France alike concluded that gradual evacuation of the Rhineland was the subject matter of that famous interview and that M. Briand there and then pledged his authority to forward that policy. "Pertinax" declares, in "Echo de Paris," that although M. Briand has been forced by circumstances to slow down the rhythm of his march, his ultimate aim is still the same.

"I am told that in a private conversation of Tuesday last, the anticipated evacuation of the Rhineland was mentioned, not as capable of happening immediately or in the near future but as being the logical result of all that has taken place since 1925 to reunite France and Germany." That is characteristic of the man. To all outward appearances he abandons his purpose very easily at the first encounter of serious opposition. But he always comes back to it when a new opportunity presents itself.

Unfortunately, grave events may happen in the interval. He gave up his ideas of a friendly settlement with Germany and Russia at Cannes, in 1922, without striking a blow, but he returned to those ideas when he took office in 1926. Meanwhile, the Ruhr invasion threw back European restoration by years.

"Mischief Maker of Europe."

M. Poincare was then the root of the mischief. He is still playing at his familiar role of mischief-maker of Western Europe. He has resumed Sunday discourses in which he so assiduously labors to preach down the Prince of Peace. His last Sunday sermon was as pernicious and provocative a deliverance as ever emanated from the lips of a responsible statesman. He makes it clear that he is not prepared to listen to any proposals for withdrawing the French garrison from the Rhineland—not even for a gradual withdrawal. He seeks out and exaggerates excuses for prolonging the French military grip on German land. He ostentatiously and truculently throws over his Foreign Minister.

I cannot tell whether a warning that this outburst was coming had anything to do with aggravating the soreness in M. Briand's eyes. Let us hope it had, for I should be sorry to believe M. Briand's ailment is so serious that no Swiss physician could be expected to achieve a cure. His temporary disablement would be as serious a blow to European appeasement as was his temporary retirement in 1922.

Net Results—Nothing.

The net result of the gathering which was intended to clear up the remaining differences between France and Germany and give reality to the Locarno policy is that nothing has been accomplished. The "Journal des Debats" thus begins a caustic article:

"The communique published yesterday on the subject of a meeting of German, English, Belgian, French, Italian and Japanese ministers at M. Briand's invitation does not give any information upon any subject. It only affirms 'the unanimous wish to pursue the Locarno policy, which has already given and will continue to give important results in the interests of peace.' This tells us nothing....."

Before reaching even the preliminaries of decision, M. Briand's

"Year Without a Summer" Prophet Tells How He Makes Weather Long Shots

Coincidence of Lunar-Solar and Sun-Spot Cycles

Herbert Janvrin Browne Traces the Influence of These 55.8Year Cycles Back to Biblical Pharaoh's Famine —Builds Prognostications Partly on Sun's Effect on Ocean and Says He Foretold This Year's Condition Four Years in Advance.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 25.

WILL 1927 be the "year without a summer?" Herbert Janvrin Browne of Washington, ocean meteorologist and long range weather forecaster, says that it will and presents involved technical analyses to substantiate his prediction made four years ago concerning the unusual weather conditions which have played havoc with the North American continent, particularly in the United States, this year.

The United States Weather Bureau, doing its utmost to discredit Browne and his forecasting methods, declares there is nothing unusual with the 1927 weather, and ridicules the idea that a man, not an accredited scientist, can accurately predict far in advance what sort of weather will obtain in a given area on a specific date. There is a bitter feud between Browne and Charles F. Marvin, chief of the Weather Bureau, who states that forecasts beyond a week in advance are virtually worthless.

Says He Forecast Flood in Mississippi Valley

"It took the great disaster of the Galveston flood, September, 1900, to compel the United States Weather Bureau to recognize that the clerical meteorologists of Belen Observatory, Havana, had for many years been making accurate forecasts of West India hurricanes," Browne said as an introduction to his remarks about his long range methods. "It has taken the present great disaster in the Mississippi Valley to focus public attention on the fact that I had pointed out its strong probability four years ago before the House Committee on Agriculture, Feb. 6, 1923. I had definitely forecast its coming this Spring in an address before the annual convention of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association at Rochester, N. Y., June 22, 1926. In May the same year I forecast the heavy rains of August, September and October in the corn belt and in the valley, which laid the foundation for this flood. The record of all these forecasts is available and well-known to the country at large."

Extreme Heat and Cold Not to Mention Drouths to Come

"The country is more familiar with the forecast made in 1923 and repeated on many occasions and in numerous publications since, that the current year would witness a return of the adverse conditions of 1816, historically known as 'the year without a summer.' These forecasts have generally carried the explanation that the term is a misnomer, that the Spring and Summer of 1816 had episodes of record-breaking heat as well as record-breaking snowstorms, killing frosts and freezing temperatures; they were also characterized by extreme drouths. It is still a moot question whether the drouths did not do as much harm as the low temperatures. The convenience of the historical title for this year has led to widespread publication of statements that I forecast a 'summerless year,' 'a heatless summer' or a 'cold summer' and to obscure the fact that I have repeatedly and consistently pointed out that 1927 would have waves of extreme heat as well as of extreme cold, and that there would be wide areas of drouth.

Checks His Forecasts Against Official Records

"Now what are the observed conditions to the present date in support of my forecast? The official bulletins of the Department of Agriculture issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics show that the corn belt faces the worst year ever known in history from adverse weather; that the winter wheat crop will be in the neighborhood of one hundred million bushels below the crop of 1926—and I wish to observe that the shortage will probably be far in excess of those figures—that the major fruit crops of the United States will not exceed 60 per cent of those of 1926, and have yet to face the adversities of the late Summer and early Fall, and that the citrus fruits of Florida and the vegetables of the South Atlantic seaboard have suffered great injury from the prevailing drouth.

"In Western Canada the official report shows a shortage of five million acres in the seeding of Spring wheat, and there again, as on the American side of the line, weather conditions, as I forecast and interpret them, are adverse to the maturing and gathering of a satisfactory crop. Every trade paper in the canning industry has printed pages of reports of adverse weather affecting the great canning crops. The lament is nation-wide. Each and every one of those elements had been forecast by me months in advance, and these are but amplifications of the original predictions of four years ago that disaster faced the major food crops on the Northern Hemisphere in 1927.

HERBERT JANVRIN BROWNE.

Quotes What He Said Last New Year's Day

"Now let us come to specific details as to long range forecasting," Browne continued. "In the annual weather forecast issued Jan. 1, I made the following statement:

"'The reduction of the stabilizing influence of the warm oceanic centers will lead to an increase in the effect of direct solar radiations on the continents, with resultant violent types of weather. There will be developments of cold bodies of air from the Northwest in close touch with warm bodies from the Gulf of Mexico to the Southeast. From this contact will spring violent tornados which will be one notable feature of the year. There will also be numerous hailstorms, and, before the winter has passed, several notable ice storms. Killing frosts will occur not only in June, but in certain areas in July and will return late in August and early in September. Disaster overhangs the crops of the corn belt, of the spring wheat belt, and of a large portion of the winter wheat belt. Equally imminent is the menace to the root crops and to green vegetables requiring early planting or late harvesting. Spring fruit blooms are threatened with heavy destruction. This forecast applies generally to the whole Northern Hemisphere.

Dates and Details So Far as the Year Has Proved Them

"That same bulletin," Browne added, "carried under the heading 'Cold Wave of 1927' the following specific forecasts:

"'I propose now to give a forecast of certain definite dates for violent weather episodes which will characterize the year 1927: A cold wave will appear in the Northwest Feb. 17 and will reach the Rio Grande and extend around the Gulf coast into middle Florida, reaching the latter area, as well as the Atlantic seaboard, about Feb. 21-22, doing heavy damage in the South to fruit and early vegetables.

"'A cold wave will start in the Northwest June 2, sweep across the corn belt as far south as the Ohio and the Potomac, and reach the Atlantic seaboard by June 6. It will be accompanied by freezing temperatures, and, over a considerable portion of this area, it will be accompanied by snow.'

"A bulletin issued Jan. 15 stated that this February cold wave would be preceded by heavy rains on the whole Pacific Coast and would be followed by a severe storm on the Atlantic seaboard. A bulletin issued April 17 forecast a cold wave to precede the one of June 2, starting in the Northwest on May 28. It will be noted that the first of these two forecasts was over six weeks and the second one over five months in advance of the event and in each instance, precise dates were named.

"The official records of the Weather Bureau show that the severest and most destructive storm in the history of the Pacific Coast started on Feb. 15, that it was followed by a cold wave of great energy Feb. 17, that this cold wave extended gradually to the Atlantic seaboard and that it was followed on the North Atlantic seaboard by the worst gale in 31 years. It is estimated that over $20,000,000 damage was done to fruit and early vegetables all the way from the Pacific to the Gulf Coast and then progressively to the Atlantic seaboard.

Official Weather Bureau Ridicules Browne's Methods, Doubts Predictions for More Than a Week in Advance and Declares Anybody Can Guess Weather in a General Area, Then Cite Isolated Cases That Will Fit That Forecast.

Takes "Pardonable Pride" in Beating Regular Forecasters

"What about the second forecast cold wave? The records of the United States Weather Bureau are notably reticent as to the effect of this cold wave. The map of Sunday, May 29, shows some three inches of snow in Yellowstone Park with below freezing temperatures reported there and elsewhere for the preceding and two following days over a wide extent on the Northern Plateau. The weekly weather and crop bulletin for the week ending June 7 reports for Idaho: 'Heavy loss of lambs in southeast account cold rains and snow.'

"The cold wave extended eastward and by June 2 its major impulse, forecast Jan. 1, made its appearance in the northern tier of States. By the morning of June 4 it had reached the eastern seaboard. Considerable snow fell across Northern New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine, and considerable deep snows were registered in Northern Quebec. Heavy frosts were reported in the Wisconsin, New Jersey and Massachusetts cranberry bogs, and the New York Times carried a dispatch from New Jersey that the Government inspector stated that 90 per cent of the New Jersey cranberries were destroyed. The dispatch went on to say that only one bog was protected by its owner—on account of advance information he had received from Washington that the frost was coming. I may say with pardonable pride that this particular owner received his forecast from me and not from the United States Weather Bureau.

"Forecasts of this order, as I categorically state now, are available by any interested party, yet they were characterized June 8 in an official statement by the Weather Bureau as 'long range guesswork forecasts.' I leave the verdict to the public."

Explains the Key to System in the Way the Sun Works on Water

Browne explained that the essential element of his forecasting methods was based on the fact that the sun is a variable star which delivers against the surface of the earth differing quantities and intensities of heat. This radiation of heat from the sun, he said, differing from day to day and from year to year, resulted in diverse heat effects upon the atmosphere, the land surface of the earth and the water surfaces.

The key to his system, he stated, was his discovery that that sun's radiation affects the water surfaces in differing proportions and that the warmed water is carried by the various ocean streams in a regular sequence. He declared that, knowing the curve or degree of the sun's radiation for any year he could accurately forecast in general terms, the weather conditions which will occur in certain given areas five years hence.

Weather Bureau Frankly Ridicules Browne's Guesses

These two elements of Browne's system are ridiculed by the United States Weather Bureau. In fact, Charles F. Marvin, the director of the bureau, refused to comment for publication on Browne and his methods, explaining that he did not wish to become involved in a controversy which might give more publicity to Browne and his forecasts.

Marvin declared that neither the United States Weather Bureau nor any other scientific body had accepted Browne's system. He stated that there was no record of any scientist being able to forecast accurately more than a week in advance.

Commenting upon the varying intensity of solar radiation, Marvin declared that the sun's radiation did not fluctuate more than one-tenth of one per cent over a period of years. Simplifying his explanation and making it graphic, he said that the energy from the sun absorbed by the area covered by a

Teapot Tempest Rises To Wild Gale That Blows Professor Out of Yale

Woolley, Undergraduate Idol, Just Dismissed, Had Spoken Lightly of Drama Professor Baker's Tea Parties.

By ANNE WHELAN,
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World.

NEW YORK, June 25.

YALE undergraduates' little spurt for Prof. Edgar Woolley has borne small fruit, but the contest between the undergraduates and the corporation has been something of a blessing in disguise. It was around Edgar Woolley, academic coach, that the controversy centered, a controversy so emphatic, so persistent and so hot while it lasted that it threatened Yale undergraduate life.

Woolley, whose deposition as academic coach and member of the English faculty of the undergraduate school, caused the student outburst, will become dean of the Boston Repertoire Theater, where he will have more leeway as instructor and workshop leader, than he had as a member of the Yale faculty, owing to the expressed opposition of Prof. George Pierce Baker of the Yale School of the Drama.

Another result of the controversy has been the drawing of a special committee from the corporation to act upon undergraduate activities. This the Yale Dramatic Association characterizes in its last shot against the corporation, contained in the program for the production of "Coriolanus," as "a poor condescension, forced by the pressure of opinion."

Biggest Upheaval in Years

Yale has not seen such an upheaval in years as the protest which followed Woolley's dismissal. Woolley had been for 12 years or more coach of the Dramatic Association, the chief undergraduate activity, and in recognition of his work as such had received two years ago a place on the English faculty. He was recommended for reappointment by his department head. The corporation turned him down, all because he had sniffed at the tea parties of Prof. Baker of the School of Drama. The strained relations between Baker and Woolley, who was the predecessor of Baker as mogul of dramatics at Yale, was concededly behind the dismissal of Wooley, though Prof. Baker, upon the one occasion on which he would allow himself to be quoted, denied he had anything to do with the corporation's attitude. He was known to have looked askance at Woolley's activities in undergraduate dramatics as not sufficiently subsidiary to his own department.

In fine, the contest was acknowledged to be a contest to decide the supremacy of the graduate school over the undergraduate school and, as such, the junior, particularly, have expressed almost heretical ideas against the domination of the corporation and its failure to accede to wishes of the undergraduates. The contest raged, until it was supposed that it had been closed with the decision of the corporation to stand by its guns in dismissing Woolley and the attempting to pacify the undergraduate body by the appointment of a special committee to oversee their wants.

How much the ache of the undergraduates has persisted is seen in the last plaint which the undergraduates continue to make. Realizing that with graduation there would be small opportunity to continue the tussle in the interests of academic freedom, a parting shot at officials for the alleged injustice done Woolley was made in the program distributed for "Coriolanus," the commencement play. The statement printed in the program revived the dispute which it had been believed was ended. This is what the letter said:

Girding at the Dons.

"We, the undergraduates, have asked again and again why 125 non-Yale professionals should be preferred before us for the sake of one man's comfort. We have asked where the friction existed. They say nothing. We who have lived side by side with the Drama School find no friction. The school has in every way been considerate of us. We cannot see the corporation's attitude. We are anxious to see it that we may see how Yale men are governed. But our government maintains a complete silence."

"The undoubted reference in the statement to the corporation as the body of detached men who for political reasons do this choosing is understood to have disturbed President Angell and other officers of the university, who, however, at the last minute decided to take no action against those who printed the statement.

"One man's comfort," is construed as undoubted reference to Prof. Baker, whom Yale undergraduate life has accused of being at the bottom of the whole trouble. The letter almost directly charges the corporation with deferring Woolley's dismissal until after the drive for funds, which has just about concluded.

Prof. Baker was the head of the famous Drama Workshop, No. 47, at Harvard, which trained such men as Eugene O'Neill, Percy Mackaye and others who have written Broadway successes.

Even since he came to Yale, another pupil, Maurine Watkins, has turned out a season's success, "Chicago." So Baker is a factor to be reckoned with in the dramatic world. When conditions had become a little unsatisfactory for him recently at Harvard, he sought for fresh fields of endeavor. Samuel Fisher, representative of the Harkness family, which has given the Quad and other million-dolar gifts to Yale, heard of this and believed the supreme acquisition of his alma mater would be the presence of Prof. Baker.

Harkness Millions Back Baker.

But the professor would come only under certain conditions. He wanted a theater workshop, and other things which he couldn't have at Harvard, because the corporation there had conceived a growing suspicion that his demands were becoming a bit overbearing.

Fisher was able to convince Mrs. Harkness that a new drama school at Yale, at a cost of more than $1,000,000, would be the most generous and effective manner of contributing to university supremacy. Forthwith the handsomest theater in an American college, with green room, experimental theater, public theater, designing rooms and all the appurtenances of a commercial theater was built. Prof. Baker resigned from Harvard, became the head of the new school, and was given carte blanche orders as to its supervision, hiring of faculty and other details.

Edgar Woolley was a Yale graduate. He had been nurtured in Yale dramatics as a member of the Dramatic Association, when an undergraduate and subsequently as the coach of the association. Year after year he had taken the members on tour and successfully produced classic and modern drama. In many instances he adapted the old Greek and early medieval classics for the modern stage.

The Dramatic Association has been financially as well as artistically successful. Woolley has been the idol of undergraduate life. It was expected he would be named on the faculty of the Dramatic School, but Prof. Baker let it be known that he was hiring only technical experts for his staff. Even the first year of the Drama School's life there was evidence that it desired to be the

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"Millions of Surplus but Not One Cent for Flood Relief!"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BEING a Southerner and having had actual experience in farming operations as a landowner in the recently flooded section of the Mississippi Valley of Arkansas, I must say that the editorial which you reproduced from the Manufacturers Record in your issue of June 17, displays a clearer grasp of the present situation there than anything I have read on the subject of flood relief.

Adequate machinery has been set up for making loans to farmers to assist them in making a crop after the floods have subsided. In Arkansas the provision is for lending $5 per acre on land that is cultivated in cotton and $3 per acre for that planted to corn. That is some help, and to do this, as I understand it, the local communities, already overburdened with responsibilities of financing other lines of business, have had to subscribe fifty-fifty to the funds to be supplied through these loan channels.

Now, with the average small family, a crop under ordinary conditions may consist of 15 acres of cotton and 5 acres of corn. There is available on the above basis the sum of $90 to finance the purchase of the seed, preparation of the ground and feeding of the family, making the crop and gathering it. With a family consisting of five persons, this will not provide very much allowance for clothes, doctors' bills or buying a few shoats and chickens to replace those that have likely been lost in the flood. The fund is barely enough to enable the family to eke out an existence during the crop season.

With hundreds of millions of dollars in the United States Treasury as a surplus, it is a national disgrace that several hundred thousand Americans must suffer the privations and hardships of flood, for which the National Government is morally responsible, without a dollar of this fund being appropriated for relief. If Congress were in session and fifty or one hundred millions of this surplus were immediately applied to the rebuilding of the roads and levees that have been swept out, it would in a large way restore the channels of trade in those sections by furnishing employment to thousands of persons who need the work. It would relieve the already impoverished local districts which have constructed these improvements by taxation and it would prevent at least a repetition of the usual spring flood next year that may be expected if the present levees are not promptly repaired.

"The Lindbergh Flight" (Natural Bridge Road).

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IF WE are going to dedicate a street to the memory of Lindbergh in order to perpetuate his memory for future generations, why not change Natural Bridge road to The Lindbergh Flight?

Natural Bridge means nothing; the road leads to the flying field; by rechristening this road, we would not be detracting from the honor bestowed on some previous notable person, as we would if some other mentioned streets were renamed.

Riverside drive, Michigan boulevard, The Paseo, all bring to mind a certain city; so would "Lindbergh Flight" tell everyone in the world that it is the road that leads to the field that is Lindbergh's home.

To the Unsung Heroes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DURING the late war many young boys volunteered their services and their life—for what? 'Tis said for liberty and peace. According to the conception of some, we cannot have peace until we first have strife. When these boys volunteered their all it was with the knowledge that death awaited them in every nook and cranny. They expected no remuneration whatsoever. They gladly gave their lives for peace. They went through hell for their country. But there were so many heroes in those days that they were overlooked.

Now comes Capt. Charles Lindbergh (now Colonel). What did he do? He is already 25 years old. He faced death, like the heroes of the war, it is true. He was brave, we will admit that. But so were the war heroes. He went into it with the knowledge that should he come out alive at least $25,000 awaited him. Of course, he didn't dream he would get all that honor. But he knew that he would get some praise. He expected that. But the war heroes expected no praise, no money. They knew that nothing awaited them, should they come through alive. The odds were very much against them; their chances of escaping alive very slim.

Yet, either some of them repose in some foreign land under the sod with a little wooden cross to mark their last resting place or they came home to find their jobs gone, their country a little ahead of them. Some returned crippled and penniless, dependent on others. Good God, are we blind? Are we so overwhelmed by a heroic stunt that we overlook the real, true heroism—heroes that made this country safe to live in? These boys who gave up their lives so that we might have peace, are they to go unacknowledged? How ungrateful we must be. Let us take off our hats to the unsung heroes! A READER.

PROGRAM AT GENEVA.

The Geneva disarmament conference, after an inauspicious start, is making some progress. The attitude of Japan, for instance, in joining with the United States against any modification or discussion even of Washington conference agreements, which Great Britain desired to introduce into the proceedings, must be accounted a positive gain. Further, Japan's aversion to reviving the Anglo-Japanese pact which the Washington conference abrogated and her cool rejection of any tripartite domination of the seas in association with the United States and Great Britain is most praiseworthy.

The Japanese attitude has already had its influence on Great Britain. The British representatives yesterday made an important concession. They agree to a parity with the United States in cruisers of 10,000 tons. Ships of this category, it is agreed, will disappear when the time comes for replacement. A cruiser maximum of 7500 tons is proposed.

The question of parity on other cruisers is still before the house. How it will be disposed of cannot be forecast. As it is now Great Britain's cruiser strength exceeds ours by about 4 to 1. It is this disparity which has prompted anti-British speeches in Congress which charged England with having broken the agreements of the Washington conference.

The charges were untrue. There was no limitation on cruiser construction or other auxiliary craft in the Washington agreements. It was to remedy this defect that Mr. Coolidge called the conference now in session. The question is admittedly a difficult one. British spokesmen have submitted their case. They have pointed out that, as an island empire, with a vastly greater mileage of trade lines to protect than either the United States or Japan, England must maintain a naval strength appropriate to her needs.

Such argument can be met in a retaliatory vein by the United States, and some of our politicians are getting ready so to meet it when Congress convenes. Granting the British contention, they will ask if it is reasonable to expect the United States with her enormous resources to accept a status of grave naval inferiority to any other nation. They may quote the philosophy of Britain's foreign policy as laid down in the fiat of Palmerston that "England has no permanent friends and no permanent enemies." Assuming that such is still the basis of Great Britain's foreign policy they may argue that, while a war between England and the United States is today unthinkable who can say that it will be unthinkable tomorrow? Wherefore, if England will not reduce her navy to a parity with ours in all categories what is there left for us in prudence to do but to match the British navy ship for ship and gun for gun and then some?

Such reasoning is stark militarism. If it prevails all hope for the outlawry of war and the settlement of international differences by reason and justice must be abandoned. The conscience of mankind shrinks from such ultimate reliance on brute force.

Statesmanship must find the way of abiding peace. It can find that way only through such efforts as the United States, Great Britain and Japan are now making at Geneva—through conference, discussion, the spread of knowledge, the development of enlightened public sentiment, concession to realities, the creation among the nations of trust and good will.

FRANK FRISCH.

It is just as well that all of us do not live and work as competitively as athletes do. Imagine Frank Frisch, who came to St. Louis in the Hornsby trade and whose lot it was to fill the shoes of the man who brought St. Louis its first pennant in more than 30 years.

There is a moral in what Frisch has done about it. Nobody has ever said that he is Hornsby's equal, but he nevertheless is leading Hornsby both in batting and fielding. The experts say they have never seen such fielding as Frisch is doing around second base. He is everywhere. Nothing is too difficult for a try at it if there is a chance. Frisch has taken the breath of the onlooker more times than any fielder who ever played in Sportsman's Park, and there have been some good ones. St. Louis crowds that have seen Wallace and Thevenow play short, who knew how Hornsby could, with little show of speed, somehow reach out and dig the ball out of the dirt, are not to be fooled by what Frisch is doing. He is outdoing himself. That is the general verdict. Meanwhile, he is leading the league in stolen bases, and he is crowding the league's big batters for leadership.

Has not the poet said, "Play well your part, there all the honor lies"? The "Fordham Flash," as they called Frisch in his college days, is playing well his part. He woke up and found himself in a very difficult part. Perhaps he did not know before what he had in him. None of us does. It is the opportunity that makes the man.

At any rate, there is no other baseball player like him. He is the astonishing, the incomparable, the wing-heeled Frisch. He has outhornsbied Hornsby.

Earl Carroll's condition is better, now that he is in prison, as everybody knew it would be.

THE PERFECT PICKLE.

Usually the annual convention of the National Pickle Packers passes without a ripple. The various packers merely exhibit their wares, guests are graciously bowed in and out, and a band playing instruments as much like gourds and cucumbers as possible makes the occasion as sweet as pickles are sour.

Not so this year. When the convention assembled at Chicago and the beneficence of Providence had been asked upon all pickle packers, Eugene F. Lafrance of Winona, Minn., arose and announced the new streamline pickle. This is the perfect pickle for which the world has been watching since the first wild pickles, with no lines at all and ugly with warts, were found in the fastnesses of Asia. In the new streamline pickle, which is to have the tapering grace of a lady's finger, are combined the better qualities of all cucumbers. From the West Indian gherkin is brought to it the divine quality of slenderness; from the snake cucumber of Brazil it has the grace of length; from the musk cucumber of Thibet there comes to it fragrance. It is a fruit symphony in which the sweet strains of the cucumis melo restrain the wild harmonies of the cucumis flexuosus; an edible poem in which the bitterness of the cucumis serotinus blends with the sweetness of the cucumis moschata. It has a bloom of the tenderest wistarian purple.

"This pickle puts us on a social footing with automobile designing and airplane making," said the ecstatic Lafrance. They had achieved art. And one month ago the only good thing anybody knew about pickles was the Washington witticism that Mr. Coolidge had been weaned on one.

What a country it is!

AIR TRAVEL IN AMERICA.

Americans who have visited the great flying fields of Europe and seen passenger ships coming and going with the impunity of railroad trains have been mystified by the complete absence of air travel from the United States. It has seemed to them that whereas the cities of Europe are not far apart and the economies in time are often trivial, the opposite would be so generally true in this country that one naturally would look to see air travel in a higher state of development here than it is there.

Some reason not altogether clear operated to deter the development of commercial aviation in the United States. It seemed just after the World War that we would be speedily using the airplane not only for getting about in the country itself, but for crossing the seas. A curious difference between what we felt would happen and what actually did occur is indicated by this editorial expression from the New York Times following Harry Hawker's flight from Newfoundland to within a few miles of the Irish coast in 1919:

> We now know that any well-engined airplane can fly the Atlantic in clear and fair weather, with a competent pilot at the wheel. The task set inventors is to provide a plane that can get across in any but the most tempestuous conditions, and there will follow a regular air service.

The Nation exclaims: "How astonished that editorial writer must be to recall his words and ponder upon the fact that from the time Alcock flew across the Atlantic not a plane made that passage again until the Lindbergh flight!" It is surprising, truly, but whatever the reason for our backwardness was, it does seem now that what Lindbergh and Chamberlin did has removed it. Passenger traffic between New York and Chicago will shortly be instituted, and the same company will project a second line from New York to Miami. The equipment will be Fokker planes with three motors. They will carry 12 passengers on a trip, and there will be dining service en route. A second company, which plans passenger service in the air between cities in the Mississippi Valley, is organizing at Indianapolis. Lindbergh himself is to be associated with a big enterprise in commercial and passenger aviation at St. Louis. It goes without saying that other similar enterprises will soon follow into this attractive field. The whole world is more or less traveling by air. The Germans, British, French and Italians have all opened regular air service ranging from the cities of Europe as far away as Africa and Asia. The British have recently opened one line that extends as far away as Japan. No more is thought of flying in the Eastern Hemisphere than is thought here of travel by train or motor. Nor is the risk of life any greater.

A few years will see a similar development in America. An army plane has already flown from New York to San Francisco between daybreak and dusk. That serves to show what the saving in time will be when we have air travel in a country so big as our own. It is a prospect that stimulates the imagination. Indeed, it long ago stirred the imagination of Mr. Kipling, and all that is or will be he has already graphically pictured for us in "The Night Mail."

Some of our readers want to make the Natural Bridge Road the Lindbergh Flight, but fortunately nobody has suggested disturbing the traditional patronymic of limburger cheese.

ROCKEFELLER ON COLLEGE FINANCES.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. occasioned some commotion in his address at Brown University commencement when he expressed the opinion that the colleges had overdone philanthropy and suggested that henceforth they finance themselves by adopting the plain business policy of raising tuitions and requiring students to pay for what they get.

At first glance this seems a hard-boiled position. Such judgment, however, must be qualified, if not withdrawn, when it is remembered that the Rockefeller family has given enormously to education and that the younger Rockefeller has not only approved the policy of magnificent generosity but has, in great measure, directed it.

Lack of sympathy with the educational aspirations of young men without means may not be charged against him. It is the sons of the rich at whom he is driving, or, rather, to the universal practice among colleges of selling their goods below cost.

Nobody pays his way at college under the present scale of tuitions. To Mr. Rockefeller as a business man this is unsound. And in view of the financial distress of our colleges, including our wealthiest universities, where faculty salaries are abominably inadequate and unfair, and the legions clamoring for admission, it does seem as if the time had come for applying business principles to the management of those institutions.

Stated brusquely, Mr. Rockefeller would make the rich pay for what they get at the colleges. Surely there is nothing objectionable in that as a proposition in economics or ethics. But how would it work in actual operation? In every college there is, between the extremes of great wealth and poverty, a large number—probably a majority—of students from moderately well to do homes. Such students avail themselves of no scholarship funds, accept no gratuities of any kind, pay their tuition and all the other charges in the numerous accounts of a college course. Often enough there is a real sacrifice back home for the maintenance of this dignified status. That the advance in tuition advised by Mr. Rockefeller would close the doors of a college education against many such students may, we believe, be assumed. That would be a calamity. No young person, boy or girl, of brains, resolution and character, should be barred from college by prohibitive cost.

Nevertheless, Mr. Rockefeller may be commended for thus boldly attacking this problem of college finance at the commencement of his own alma mater. The chances are he has "started something." It is time something were started. With due respect to foundations, the last wills of rich men and the loyalty of periodically canvassed alumni, our colleges must somehow meet this grave and pressing problem.

MORE LINDBERGH ANCESTRY.

HAROLD LAND in New York Times.

I WAS very much interested in reading of Col. Lindbergh's maternal grandfather, Dr. Charles Land, the eminent inventor.

Dr. Land's grandfather came to America from England in 1750. His name was John Land. With his brother, Robert, he settled in the northern part of New York State. Robert Land married Phoebe Scott, who was an aunt of General Winfield Scott. The Land family were loyalists, the result being that they were driven out of the country soon after the declaration of the War of the Revolution. The two brothers were separated at this time.

Robert Land, after battling with the Indians and enduring much hardship, finally reached the head of Lake Ontario, where he built a log cabin and established himself as one of the great Canadian pioneers, later founding the City of Hamilton, Ontario.

So you see this pioneering spirit seems to have started with John and Robert Land. It later exemplified itself in Dr. Charles Land, who gave more to modern dentistry than any other one man, including the jacket crown, the porcelain and gold inlay and various forms of bridgework. Dr. Land was also the real pioneer of our oil-burning systems. Now his grandson, Charles Lindbergh, comes to us as one of the greatest pioneers of the world.

One of the first ancestors of the Land family was John Land or Lande, who was Lord of the Manor of Plymtree at Tiverton, Devonshire, England. He lived there during the latter part of the sixteenth century and had twin sons, John and Robert. These names have come down through the Land family for at least four centuries. Owing to their benevolent gifts to the Church of England, the family was granted a crest and coat of arms.

COMING AND GOING.

From the Washington Star.

CATCHING them "coming and going" has been the dream of many a politician since the world began. How to balance a national ticket which shall be acceptable to the wets and to the drys is giving certain Democratic leaders much worry today. While the Democrats are still scratching their heads over the problem, that stalwart Republican, Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio, has announced the 1928 Democratic ticket for them. He predicts that Gov. Al Smith of New York will be the choice of the Democrats for President and Gov. Vic Donahey of Ohio the choice for Vice President.

Perhaps the Democrats will select such a ticket, but more likely they will not. It would scarcely please all hands, Gov. Smith, a recognized wet, and Gov. Donahey, a recognized dry, in double harness might not pull together. Suppose, for example, Gov. Donahey delivered a dry speech in Ohio during the national campaign, and Gov. Smith should be hailed at the same time as the wet hope of America. Where would it leave the voters?

The candidate and, indeed, the political party which seeks to carry water on both shoulders, or water on one shoulder and whisky on the other, rarely gets very far. Straddling issues which involve principles, or issues in which the people are really interested, have brought the downfall of many men in public life. Try as they may to keep the prohibition question out of the next national campaign, the Democrats must in the end please either the wet section of their party in the North and East or the dry Democrats in the South and West.

MR. COOLIDGE AND THE PRESS.

From the Nation.

THE measure of Calvin Coolidge may again be taken by his latest action with regard to his conferences with newspaper men. He has now ruled not only that newspaper men may not state what questions have been submitted to him, but that they may not state what questions he has refused to answer. By this petty but arbitrary act he is seeking to prevent its becoming known that he has been asked and refused to answer whether he signed a statement in 1912 protesting against a third term for Theodore Roosevelt. That he has for weeks dodged the question sent to him by the editor of the Forum as to whether he will or will not be a candidate for a third term is well known. He cannot punish the editor of the Forum, but he can hold over the Washington correspondents the threat of their exclusion from the White House. As that might mean in some cases the loss of their jobs, the result is quite obvious. We do not recall any previous President who laid down the doctrine that the press must not criticize his policies in foreign affairs on pain of being called unpatriotic and then undertook to regulate what the press men should say in his august presence and should write after leaving it.

VERSES IN ALTERNATIVE MOODS.

There are times in the evening when memories sweet will arise of one most fair,
As I doze in my chair and I dream of the past, I can see her standing there;
My appeal is in vain for the one that I love, who is dead these many years,
But at evening I glimpse the sweet light of her face through a tender mist of tears;
Yet I know that my love will be ever my love, and I know I am her beau
As I sit all alone and I sigh all in vain for the days of long ago.

There are times in the evening when memories sweet will arise of one once fair,
As I doze in my chair and I dream of the past, I can see her sitting there;
My appeal is in vain for the one that I loved, for her figure now is fat,
But each evening she runs her plump hands through my hair, and I know she wants a bat;
When we fight, as we do, she will blubber and wish she had wed some other beau,
So do I, hence I sit at her side and I sigh for the days of long ago.

PROBLEM IN PSYCHOLOGY.

The one question which has not been perpetrated on a world weary of guessing at the answer is: Why does a man sing when taking a bath? He does not sing because he is happy; man is happy at other times, yet he does not sing. Furthermore, your cold-shower-bath-taker does not sing; it is only the enthusiastic lukewarm-water-tubber who warbles, "Roamin' in the gloamin'," "Mother Machree," "The end of a perfect day" or such snatches thereof as he remembers. Neither does a man sing because he feels secure against murder, mayhem or arson in the sacrosanct privacy of the bath room. Security is no adequate explanation of the sub-aqueous tenor. A man sings in his bath, only because he has lost his dignity and is happy in the loss. Were the loss unpleasant, he would not sing. A fat man in a bathing suit has lost his dignity unwillingly. Hence, he does not sing. A man dressing for dinner will sing until he puts his shoes on. Dignity comes in with clothes, and departs with them.

CHARM OF MISSOURI SHOWN BY ARTISTS

Downtown Exhibit of Scenic Art Is Being Increased by New Works.

By F. E. A. Curley.

The scenic charm of Missouri and the Ozark country, as interpreted by native artists, already provides a varied and popular field for the display of Missouri talent. This is strikingly witnessed by the extensive and still growing downtown art exhibition, now housed in the former Republic Bank Building, 716 Locust street, under the auspices of the St. Louis Art League.

Besides the St. Louis painters, artists of other Missouri centers and from the Ozark country as far as Little Rock, Ark., are represented in a comprehensive display of more than 400 works of art, occupying a quarter mile of wall space.

Since the present display is intended as a new constructive public enterprise, with the civic purpose of making art useful in exploiting Missouri, and thus promoting the interests of the people and their business institutions, the ordinary procedure as to art exhibitions is being varied in several respects. For instance, some of the artists still are painting new pictures for this exhibition, and the installation is being changed and improved from time to time, although the first catalogue was issued some time ago, and the prize announced have been awarded.

Show Has Single Theme.

The special theme, as described by the committee, is the allurement of nature in the favored regions about St. Louis, as expressed in the soft enchantments of the Ozarks, in the colorful atmosphere that hovers above Missouri rivers, streams and parks, or in the beautiful symphonies that art-trained eyes discern even in city streets. This theme admittedly presents its limitations and restrictions, however, and artists who do their painting in the East or confine their painting here merely to "working up" the vacation sketches made at seaside resorts and picturesque places far away, of course, are barred.

It is an educational movement for the Missouri artist as well as for the public, a "know your own Missouri—and paint it" movement. The injunction, however, is not put forward too literally, and photo-

CHARM OF MISSOURI SHOWN BY ARTISTS

Downtown Exhibit of Scenic Art Is Being Increased by New Works.

By F. E. A. Curley.

The scenic charm of Missouri and the Ozark country, as interpreted by native artists, already provides a varied and popular field for the display of Missouri talent. This is strikingly witnessed by the extensive and still growing downtown art exhibition, now housed in the former Republic Bank Building, 716 Locust street, under the auspices of the St. Louis Art League.

Besides the St. Louis painters, artists of other Missouri centers and from the Ozark country as far as Little Rock, Ark., are represented in a comprehensive display of more than 400 works of art, occupying a quarter mile of wall space.

Since the present display is intended as a new constructive public enterprise, with the civic purpose of making art useful in exploiting Missouri, and thus promoting the interests of the people and their business institutions, the ordinary procedure as to art exhibitions is being varied in several respects. For instance, some of the artists still are painting new pictures for this exhibition, and the installation is being changed and improved from time to time, although the first catalogue was issued some time ago, and the prize announced have been awarded.

Show Has Single Theme.

The special theme, as described by the committee, is the allurement of nature in the favored regions about St. Louis, as expressed in the soft enchantments of the Ozarks, in the colorful atmosphere that hovers above Missouri rivers, streams and parks, or in the beautiful symphonies that art-trained eyes discern even in city streets. This theme admittedly presents its limitations and restrictions, however, and artists who do their painting in the East or confine their painting here merely to "working up" the vacation sketches made at seaside resorts and picturesque places far away, of course, are barred.

It is an educational movement for the Missouri artist as well as for the public, a "know your own Missouri—and paint it" movement. The injunction, however, is not put forward too literally, and photographs by members of the Missouri Photographic Society and others illustrate the fact that painting is only one of the arts now called upon.

There also are many etchings, and special efforts are under way to develop the application of this medium which lends itself so well toward making nature's charm available for all. Picture post cards are being prepared, in which the finest interpretations of Missouri's beauty will be reproduced for the enjoyment and convenience of everybody.

So that people may drop in whenever it may be most convenient, before and after as well as between their business engagements, and as an added feature of evening life in the downtown district, the new galleries are open from 8 a. m. until after the close of the theaters at night.

The present scenic charm of Missouri exhibition, occupying the ground floor and balcony, will continue, as planned, until the end of July.

"Year Without a Summer" Prophet Tells of System

six-room house would be sufficient to light 2,700 ordinary electric lights.

"The degree of fluctuation now observable in the sun would mean a difference of two or three lights," he said. "With 2,700 lights supposed to be on, who would miss the effect of only two lights?"

The only comment obtainable from Marvin regarding the forecasts Browne declares to have been fulfilled by the facts, was that anyone could guess what weather would obtain in a general area, and then cite small episodes which seemed to bear out the predictions.

Nor would Marvin discuss Browne's forecast that 1927 would see a repetition of the "summerless" year 1816.

Sun Spots Cycles, Tidal Pull of Moon and Other Things.

Browne's explanation of the connection between 1816 and 1927 is somewhat involved. He said that he based his forecast for 1927 primarily upon the present location of the warm and cold water areas in the various oceans. To these, he said, he added the influence of the tidal pull of the moon, which, this year, is in a position where its influence is increased. To these two elements he added the influence of th sun.

"One of the best known cycles is solar radiation," he explained, "is the sun spot cycle averaging slightly over 11 years. Five of these cycles amounting to 55.8 years run co-incidentally with three lunar-solar periods (when the sun and the moon exert a maximum combined influence on the earth) of 18.6 years.

"In other words, every 55.8 years there is a return of coincidence of the lunar-solar and the sun spot cycles, which exercises a profound and measurable influence on oceanic conditions and on the weather of the world. One of these took place in 1816. There was a recurrence in 1872, but the third one from 1816 is due this year and is already in operation.

Traces Weather Clear Back to Egyptian Pharaoh's Famine.

"I have traced the influence of these cycles not only back to the famine of Diocletian, 300 A. D., but back to the famine of Pharaoh, about 1700 B. C. Their effect will vary through more or less perfect conjunction with other causations, but they are always pointers to adverse weather and crop conditions as far back as history furnishes records of weather catastrophes."

Browne has stated his forecast confidently, and as far as the United States Weather Bureau is concerned, defiantly. Even if 1927 does prove to be a year of extremely disastrous weather, as Browne predicts, the Weather Bureau will make no concession beyond admitting that Browne was lucky. Browne is a commercial forecaster and has built up an extensive clientele among farmers, brokerage houses and business men. If his predictions are not fulfilled, his service and his forecasting business may suffer.

But amateur weather prophets everywhere will watch the progress of the summer with increased interest.

Teapot Tempest Blows Professor Out of Yale

supreme dramatic agency at Yale.

Then came "the February affair."

Woolley at a drama conference last February criticised Prof. Baker's tea parties. This, to the eminent head of the Drama School was but a symptom of the lack of affinity between Prof. Woolley and himself and, taken from the viewpoint of Prof. Baker, it was fundamental.

One of the adjuncts of the drama school is the experiment theater, where productions of the school's pupils are produced solely by the pupils. Several times a year such productions are given and to these are invicted the society folk of the university city. Only invited guests are present, and one of the conditions of being invited, is that each guest shall submit within a week after the play a written criticism of the play seen.

This criticism, divested of maker's name, is subsequently read to the drama classes. It gives the public's reaction to the production. One of the pretty little amenities of the occasion is the serving of tea, after the play, thus making the occasion, both social and intellectual.

In the national drama conference at Yale last February Woolley took the occasion to criticise it generally, but it was emphatically interpreted by university authorities as a slap at Baker. The faculty lightly reprimanded Woolley for it, saying his action did not display the harmony which should exist between those intent upon working "for God, for country and for Yale."

More Beneath Than Surface Shows

Now the question is, will the Dramatic Association continue next year to function without Woolley, or will it function as a component part of the School of Drama, thus doing away with the confusion arising from so many dramatic activities in the university?

Aside from the casual observer of things collegiate, the whole turbulent upheaval has, college men say, a deeper significance than appears on the surface. Not in many years has a class questioned the doings of the corporation. Never before has it demanded hearing until the corporation had to listen to the young radicals. The sum total of the rebellion has been a mere drop in the bucket, say the radicals, in favor of more democracy in collegiate affairs, namely, the creation of a committee of the corporation to deal exclusively with undergraduate activities.

BANK EVADES TAX ON CHECKS

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 25.—An entirely new form of money has been introduced to banking customers by the Midland Bank, which has devised a system for the payment of any amount under two pounds, without a check.

Payments by Midland Bank clients can now be made by a printed receipt slip similar in appearance to a check. The slip shows the date, the amount in words and in figures and the customer's signature. When it has been filled in it may be presented for payment for cash, to be charged against the customer's account. The new method is popular, since it evades the twopence tax on all checks.

sudden affliction drives him away from his task to seek the advice of a specialist in Paris and Sir Austen Chamberlain takes the train to Zermatt, to contemplate in rapture mountains he had no intention of climbing—a true picture of Locarno ecstasy that gazes beatifically at peaks with the telescope of huge self-satisfaction, but will face none of the rugged difficulties of ascents.

Stresemann Disappointed.

Herr Stresemann is left at Geneva to talk amiabilities with M. Paul Boncour. No wonder the German Foreign Minister feels as if he had been fooled again. To the "Journal de Geneve," he expressed his disappointment.

"For myself, the worst moment of every session is when the return train is preparing to leave the station at Geneva. For I know when I arrive in Berlin I shall be reproached with not having obtained enough . . . "

M. Gauvain's comment on this interview is a typical specimen of French journalistic irony: ". . . on the banks of the Leman, M. Stresemann thinks of the moment when, returning home, he will be surrounded by children who will run between his legs and ask, 'What have you brought us back?' "

Very amusing, no doubt. But the laugh will not extend to Berlin. There, these repeated postponements and disappointments are taken more tragically. Every time they recur, they make Herr Stresemann's policy of reconciliation look ridiculous, thus strengthening the Nationalist revival, and that is the enemy of peace. The victorious militarism of France and the again defeated militarism of Germany are working together for the same end—the restoration of the shattered temple of the God of War.

COMMERCIAL AIR LINES FOR LATIN AMERICA PLANNED

Regular Flights to Cuba and Other Southern Countries to Be Developed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Assistant Secretary McCracken in charge of air activities in the Commerce Department, disclosed today that three tentative propositions looking to establishment of air lines between the United States and Latin-American countries had been discussed with department officials.

These propose lines with Cuba, the Panama Canal zone and some Mexican city. The secretary predicted that commercial air development between the United States and Latin-America would precede that with Europe and said that nonstop flights in his opinion were forerunners of regular air lines.

"Several persons have asked suggestions for nonstop flights," he added, "and I have directed them toward Latin-America."

LONDON BUILDS UNDERGROUND MAIL COLLECTION SYSTEM

Tube Railway More Than Six Miles Long to Remove Many Vans From Streets.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 25.—London's $7,500,000 underground mail collection system will be finished this summer, and will remove from the city's streets most of the picturesque vans which now perform that function.

Work on the tube, begun in 1913, was stopped during the war, and has since been delayed owing to the high cost of material and the coal strike of last year.

The railway is six and a half miles long, from the Eastern District Postoffice at Whitechapel to the District Postoffice at Paddington. Intermediate stations include Liverpool street and the General Postoffice. The proposed extensions include King's Cross, Euston, Cannon street and Waterloo.

The tunnel is 80 feet below the surface and nine feet high. There are 90 cars, and by running three-car trains 45 tons of mail can be carried hourly in each direction. The trains travel at 35 miles an hour, without drivers.

Operators in control cabins regulate their speed by means of illuminated diagrams before them. The stations consist of island platforms in two sections, between which the control cabins, the lifts and the means for conveying the different classes of postal matter are placed.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBIT AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Total of 120 Pictures Selected as Winners in Contest by Camera Magazine.

...nd loveliness from Venice and Algeria, Antwerp and Kyoto, Saskatoon and Semarang are displayed in 120 photographs on exhibition in the art room at the Public Library until July 5.

The exhibits are the winners selected from 1345 prints submitted from almost every civilized country and many, as attests their grotesque charm, not so civilized. This was the seventh annual competition conducted by American Photography, a magazine for camera enthusiasts. The collection has been called the finest ever shown in St. Louis.

Treatment ranges from an unassuming picture of a pretty girl to the latest—up to April, this year—in light and shadow and the most conventionalized and unconventional of cubistic backgrounds.

The first prize winner, a nude "Study in Movement" by Prof. Rudolf Koppitz of Vienna, might well have been called "Eurydice"—a gleaming figure, born to freedom, led swooning away by three black-gowned and inexorable Mesdames of dullness.

Second was "The Study of the Talmud," a white-bearded preceptor and his black-beared disciple, by A. S. Weinberg of Gronigen, Holland, and third was "The Village Stream," by Raymond E. Hanson of Melrose, Mass., a scene of shadows and age and tranquility.

Perhaps the most striking of the whole exhibit is the fourth prize winner, "Foam," by S. K. Katsu of Los Angeles. Somewhere, apparently right beside the noisy city, judging by the reflections, he saw foam swirl into an unforgettable pattern on black water, and immortalized the scene with the camera.

ATHLETIC SHOW ON PROGRAM FOR BENEFIT BASEBALL GAME

An elaborate program will precede the Cardinal-Philadelphia baseball game at Sportsman's Park on Tuberculosis Benefit day, July 28. It will consist of tumbling, human pyramids, fencing and racing featured by the annual junior marathon, in which 100 boys already have entered.

In addition there are more than 30,000 gifts contributed by merchants and manufacturers.

New features of this year's program will be the playground championship 75-yard race for girls, which will supplant the shuttle relay race, a feature of the last five years, and a 100-yard dash for women.

Eczema Itched And Burned Severely Cuticura Healed

"My baby started breaking out with eczema when he was about two months old. It was in blisters and itched and burned severely causing him to scratch. His clothing aggravated the breaking out, and he lost much sleep on account of it. He was cross and fretful and kept me awake nights.

"I tried different remedies which seemed to help for a while and then the trouble would break out again. When he was about nine months old I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It helped him and when he was thirteen months old he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Chas. Urban, Larrabee, Iowa, Aug. 4, 1926.

CAR INSPECTOR'S WIFE IS GREATLY IMPROVED

Declares that the Popular Herb Extract Remedy Is the Favorite Medicine in Their Home—Recommends It to Her Friends.

"Your herbal remedy is one medicine that I do not hesitate to recommend to my friends, and I can truthfully say that I don't think there is a preparation on the market that will equal it for quick relief and beneficial results," says Mrs. L. Hays, who resides at 1521 Herder Street, St. Louis, who states that the Herb Extract remedy (formerly known as Herb Juice) is the favorite remedy in her home.

MRS. L. HAYS

"Before I started using your Herb Extract medicine," stated Mrs. Hays, in a recent interview with the local representative, "I was troubled a great deal with dizziness, bilious attacks, tired, worn-out feeling, brought on by constipation. But nothing I used gave me very much relief, in fact, I was in misery most all the time. I read so much in the papers about your herb medicine I made up my mind to leave off the other medicines and give it a trial. I find that it is just as other people recommend it and it surely does give quick, lasting relief, more so than any remedy I have ever tried. In just a few days after I began using it I began to improve in a general way and now since I have been taking it for several weeks my condition is greatly improved, and I know your herb medicine is responsible for this great improvement. Stomach is now in fine condition, entire system is well regulated and I have no trouble from gas and indigestion. And the dizziness, bilious attacks and worn-out feeling have quit bothering me since my system was so well regulated. It has helped me in such a very satisfactory and substantial way, I can now easily understand why so many people praise it above all other medicines for beneficial results. It is now the favorite remedy in my home and I never miss a chance to tell my friends and acquaintances about it and how wonderful it is to regulate and tone up the system." Union-Laclede Battle a By-Product Of Chas. A. Munroe's Spectacular Purchase and Sale of Gas Company

Chicago Trader Tried to Take an Early Profit of a Million at Electric Company's Expense —Now Mayor Threatens Municipal Ownership.

The battle between two powerful St. Louis public utilities, which was brought into the open by the suit of Mayor Miller to oust Laclede Gas Light Co., with legal ammunition supplied by Union Electric Light and Power Co., is a by-product of the three-year sojourn here of Charles A. Munroe, who carried away with him on his recent return to Chicago, $4,450,000 or more as the profits of his brief control of Laclede.

The story of Munroe's effort to take an early profit of $1,000,000 or more at the expense of Union Electric, which he attempted in a side expedition, as given to the Post-Dispatch by men familiar with the scheme, adds another interesting chapter to the narrative of the Chicago trader's major campaign, recently related by the Post-Dispatch, and which was the most spectacular financial stroke in the annals of St. Louis.

Along with the gas company, Munroe acquired in 1924, a small electric business which the company was conducting and which was selling not more than 10 per cent of the city's consumption of electricity. Munroe's major operation was to get the Public Service Commission to declare a valuation upon Laclede as much as possible in excess of $40,000,000, the basis on which he had bought and he eventually succeeded, as has been related, in getting $52,000,000.

Fattened for the Market.

Munroe was not one to overlook a bet and he was quick to perceive the trading value of the Laclede's electrical business. As a money-earner, it was not much, but as an irritant to Union Electric, it had a potentially big sales value.

Almost the universale basis of sale of any electric property is some multiple of its annual gross business, usually four or five times the gross business. Munroe shrewdly surmised, if, indeed, he didn't actually know, that Union Electric would want to deal with him for Laclede's electric business to complete its monopoly of that business in the St. Louis district. Munroe's problem, then, was to swell his annual gross business as much and as quickly as possible, so that he could demand—and probably get—a big price if Union Electric should show an inclination to buy, as it later did.

Accordingly, at his first conference with his subordinates in Laclede, Munre emphasized the necessity of going out after new electric business, and what resulted is a record of distraction to which he drove the Union company.

There was considerable new building in St. Louis at the time. The St. Louis Theater was being completed, and when Union Electric salesmen went out to complete the formality of contracting to supply the theater with electricity, they found Munroe's Laclede salesmen on the ground offering lower prices than Union's published schedule of rates.

In Union's interpretation of rates, the St. Louis Theater fell into the classification of commercial lighting customers. Munroe offered the theater wholesale power rates, the lowest upon the schedule, and got the business.

Uses Tax Exemption to Pare Rates.

Moreover, Union Electric pays to the city 5 per cent of its annual sales of electricity as a tax, but Munroe, because of favorable provisions of his franchise, paid virtually no tax on his electric business.

Munroe employed that saving also to shave Union rates. He captured several large contracts—the City Club, apartment buildings, an office building or two.

The Union company felt that it was being subjected to unfair competition. It felt certain that an appeal to the Public Service Commission for a construction of rates would result in a declaration that Munroe could not apply wholesale rates to the character of customers he had, but Union hesitated to appear in public as contending against lower rates. Meanwhile Munroe went about picking the pluma. His distribution system was not such that he could accept all business offered him. His lines did not spread over the city, but it seemed that they did reach wherever a profitable new customer, using a large amount of electricity appeared.

Union was none to well satisfied either with Munroe's conduct of his valuation case. His demands for high valuation were not popular in St. Louis and Union knew that the effects of unpopularity of one public utility is felt in some degree by all utilities in the same community.

Offers $150 a Share Profit.

There seemed only one solution—to buy out Munroe, both his gas and electric business, and there were some conferences upon the subject. Union mentioned $250 a share as the price it was willing to pay for the stock in Laclede which Munroe got at approximately $100 a share. Munroe turned up his nose at the offer.

At times, Laclede electric service would fail. Laclede customers then would flood Union's switchboard with demands to know what was the matter with the lights. The public did not differentiate between Laclede and Union at all times. Union began to suffer in public favor from the failure of its competitor's lines.

Then it became apparent that if it could not buy out Munroe's entire business, Union must take his electric business and once more Munroe was approached.

He had established the trading position he had set out to create. In two years he had increased the volume of his sales of electricity 60 per cent. His reports to the Public Service Commission indicated that some of the new business had not been profitable in money; that, in some instances it had been taken at cost of production or less, but the volume was there and Munroe knew that the trading basis would be volume.

$6,500,000 Offer Rejected.

The Public Service Commission had placed a value of $6,500,000 on Munroe's electric business. Union agreed to pay that and something more for good measure. Munroe, as before, refused the offer though it was approximately $1,500,000 more than he had paid.

Union and its holding company, North American in New York, then began to figure how much they could aford to pay to get Munroe out of St. Louis. In the course of that consideration, the charter and franchise of Laclede came under the scrutiny of the Union company's attorneys. Goodwin and Rassieur of St. Louis. The upshot of the examination was the conclusion of John Goodwin of that firm that the Laclede's charter was not, as it always had been held, a perpetual charter, but had, in reality expired in 1917. He held that the company had ceased to exist as a corporation in that year and that, if it ever had been constitutional, Laclede's franchise was not perpetual but had expired in that same year.

Goodwin was summoned to New York last month to defend his opinion before attorneys of the North American Co. It was not the first time that North American attorneys had encountered the problem. North American formerly owned Laclede and in one period of that ownership, 23 years ago, desired to issue securities upon Laclede, whereupon its attorneys of that period held that Laclede held a perpetual franchise. The present day North American attorneys combed Goodwin's contradictory opinion and ended by indorsing it. Thereupon North American lost interest in buying Munroe's gas property at any price.

However, its attorneys simultaneously held that Laclede held a valid franchise to sell electricity in St. Louis until 1940 and Union Electric's interest in acquiring that franchise to complete its control of the electric business here has continued.

Not more than 10 days elapsed before a further development gave still further interest in Laclede affairs. The Post-Dispatch announced that Munroe had contracted to sell control of Laclede to Harley L. Clarke, president of the Utilities Power and Light Co. The price it understood that Clarke had agreed to pay alarmed North American. It feared that inflation of Laclede securities would follow which might affect adversely the market for securities of all public utilities in St. Louis. And Union Electric has carefully nurtured that market. It has sold more than $20,000,000 of preferred stock to St. Louis residents and has succeeded in maintaining that stock at par.

So North American tried to block sale of Laclede to Clarke at so high a price. It appealed to officers of the Chase National Bank, through which the deal was arranged, but encountered deaf ears and the contract for sale was completed.

Attacks Validity of Franchise.

It was then that Union Electric determined to attack the very life of Laclede through Mayor Miller. They placed before him the opinion of their lawyers that Laclede's gas franchise had expired and this was followed by the Mayor's request upon the Attorney-General that he co-operate in a quo warranto proceeding in the State Supreme Court to interpret the Laclede franchise.

The Union company's action was followed by a statement of its president, Louis H. Egan, renouncing the theory of reproduction new as the basis of valuation of public utilities—the establishment of rates on the basis of a fair return upon the sum required to reproduce the property at present prices. Egan declared that he subscribed to the theory that utilities should be permitted to earn only upon the sum they had prudently invested in service of the public.

Moreover, it may work out in some future period of lower prices, that the public might initiate revaluation of public utilities on the reproduction basis and that might serve to wipe out actual investment. An example here is the Cahokia plant of Union Electric, built during a period of high prices and which might cost much less to build at some future time.

North American is the first large public utility to declare adherence to the prudent investment theory, and will become anathema to other large utilities that have set up the reproduction new theory and have impressed it upon courts with considerable success. On the other hand, other utilities sensing the dangers of reproduction new may be brought forth to the support of the North American stand and it may be that the St. Louis situation will develop a real check to the onrush of the reproductionists.

Issue in Doubt.

Meanwhile, the issue of battle in St. Louis is in doubt. The Mayor hopes that success of quo warranto proceedings if the Attorney-General consents to initiate them will enable him to negotiate with Laclede for new rates on the basis of a lower valuation than the $52,000,000 granted by the Public Service Commission and can turn that lower valuation into lower rates for gas users. There appears, in the path of such procedure, State Supreme Court decisions as pointed out in the Post-Dispatch recently that the sole arbiter of public utility rates in Missouri is the Public Service Commission, and that any contract the Mayor may make can be set aside at any time by the commission.

Hovering over the battlefields as a warning to all privately owned utilities is the specter of municipal ownership, conjured by the Mayor when he said that if Laclede did not come to reasonable terms he would advocate buying the gas company and operating it as the city now operates the waterworks.

Head of North American Explains His Objections.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Frank L. Dame, president of the North American Co., yesterday gave out a statement which, among other things, said: "I regret that Mr. Clarke (H. L. Clarke, purchaser of Laclede Gas Light Co.) should try to put the action of the city of St. Louis in the light of an attack by the Union company. I personally went to the Chase Securities Co. and assured them I was opposed to having Mr. Clarke pay a price for the properties upon which he could not expect dividends which would pay for the cost of money. I stated that the high prices being paid for properties were the greatest menace to the public utility business, as they required revenue greater than could be taken out by dividends. I told him we were not bidding for the property."

FOR 'MUTILATING GRAVE'

Moved Floyd Collins' Casket Into Cave.

By Associated Press.

CAMPTOWNSVILLE, Ky., June 25. Harry B. Thomas, Horse Cave dentist, was indicted by the Edmonson grand jury today on a charge of "mutilating the grave of Floyd Collins."

Dr. Thomas, who purchased Crystal Cave from the Collins family some months ago, is being sued for $50,000 for removing the casket from the grave to the interior of the cave, allegedly for exhibition purposes. The Collins brothers have asked for an injunction restraining the dentist from exhibiting the casket.

PRAISE FOR MISSOURI STATE PARK SYSTEM

Secretary Torrey of National Conference Calls It One of Finest in Nation.

Missouri has acquired within a surprisingly short time, and with reasonable expenditure, one of the finest State park systems in the nation. This declaration was made by Raymond H. Torrey of Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Conference on State Parks, following a recent inspection tour of three preserves in the Ozarks, bought by Missouri a few months ago. Previously he had seen other units in the system, now numbering 12 parks.

Torrey, accompanied by C. D. Montieth, Chief of Parks, visited the new reservations in Franklin, Wayne and Dent counties. In a statement to the Post-Dispatch he said they offered land and water areas of the highest quality for the purposes of the State Game and Fish Department, for game propagation, fishing, camping, bathing and general outdoor recreation. The various areas, he thought, were "high types of the outstanding scenic and recreational values of this Missouri mountain region."

"Two general features of the Missouri State park system are in line with the most progressive thought in the development of such preserves. The Game and Fish Department is acquiring tracts of ample size, with capacity for all sorts of game propagation and recreational uses, and it is seeking to locate its parks with reference to easy accessibility from its centers of population, at present from St. Louis, Springfield and Jefferson City and eventually from Kansas City and St. Joseph.

Park Standards Higher.

"Forward-looking State park directors in many states, appreciating the growing demand for outdoor recreation and wild life conservation, are setting their standards larger and larger as to the size of the areas they acquire. They are coming to realize by experience that the most valuable outdoor preserves, from the popular viewpoint, are those within a few hours of large cities.

"Missouri possesses in the Ozarks a regio of high and rugged relief, heavy woodland, magnificent springs which keep the streams flowing in summer with clear, cool water, suitable for game fish; a region made by nature to conserve wild life and provide recreational outlets for human population.

"Few cities in the United States are so blessed as St. Louis and Kansas City, and other urban communities in Missouri, in having such an elevated, wooded and well watered mountain plateau so near their doors. New York and the northern New Jersey cities possess such highlands close by; Philadelphia and Pittsburg have them somewhat further away; San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle, on the Pacific Slope, and Denver, in the Colorado Rockies, are similarly fortunate, but there the parallel stops.

Provides for Future.

"The Ozarks are big enough for the future growth of the metropolitan communities in Missouri, and the present and prospective park acquisitions of the Game and Fish Department provide for the recreational needs of the people of the State and of tourists from other parts of the country, for today and for the future.

"The three new parks provide great reserves of conservational and recreational material. The parks about the great springs in the Southern Ozarks, which he saw in 1925, when they were new, have since come into great public use; the newer preserves offer variety and room for the great increase in outdoor enjoyment which the earlier parks have stimulated.

"Even in their undeveloped state, since their acquisition on Jan. 1, visitors already have begun to swarm into them, and to spread the news of their charms, so that large popular use, as with the earlier parks, is following close on their purchase and the initial preparations to receive the public.

High Rank for Missouri.

"Surveys of the State parks of the United States, which have been made during the las three years by the National Conference on State parks, show that Missouri, with 12 such preserves, totaling 36,000 acres, holds a high rank in this form of public service. Its general park plan is in line with the ideal of the National Conference—a membership organization composed of State parks and forest officials and private supporters throughout the country, and supported by their contributions—of bringing such preserves, for conservation of wild life and promoting human recreation, within reach of all the people of the nation.

"Forty-four states now possess such parks or forests, more than 500 in number, and more than 7,000,000 acres in total area. The prograss Missouri has made in this field in the last three years and promises to continue will raise her to high rank in this respect."

Radio Stations Lose Appeal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Four New York radio stations, which objected to the new wave assignments given them June 15 by the Federal Radio Commission, have been denied permission to make changes. The commission announced its decision against the appeals of WBRS at Brooklyn; WCGU, WBNY and WHAP, all in New York City. In every case the radio station sought a longer wave.

MINE WAGE PARLEY FAILS

By the Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Any mine owner who will pay the Jacksonville scale of wages will be given union workers during the suspension of mining in the Central Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields, it was decided today by the miners' full Scale Committee of that district.

The committee met following the adjournment of the joint wage conference yesterday, when the miners refused to accept a reduction in wages offered by the operators. The temporary agreement, whereby the Jacksonville scale remained in effect pending the negotiation of a wage contract, expires June 30. A formal suspension order, effective July 1, will be issued next Tuesday.

GAS FRANCHISE IS DEFENDED BY I. H. LIONBERGER

Counsel for Laclede Company Says Ouster Action Is Move "to Promote Policy of Pernicious Rival."

HEARING BEFORE GENTRY TOMORROW

Attorney Says North American Co., Former Owners of Laclede, Approved Soundness of Its Charter.

A defense of the charter and franchise of Laclede Gas Light Co., now under attack by the city of St. Louis, at the instigation of Union Electric Light & Power Co., has been issued by Isaac H. Lionberger, for 25 years general counsel of the Laclede. He charges that Union Electric's attack was designed to embarrass a competitor whose rates for electricity were lower than its own.

The Attorney-General will hear the application for quo warranto informally at Jefferson City tomorrow and reserve for a week his decision whether to lend his name to a test of the charter and franchise in the Missouri Supreme Court. Lionberger's statement in full was as follows:

"This hearing seems to have been precipitated by the Union Electric Light & Power Co., a corporation composed of many formerly competing electric companies of the city of St. Louis. The Union company is now controlled by the North American Co. of New York.

"The North American Co. was formerly the owner of a majority of the stock of the Laclede Gas Light Co. When it bought that stock it made a full and thorough examination of the history of the company and was advised by its New York counsel that the validity of the charter of the company was beyond question and perpetual.

Cites Previous Attacks.

"The attack which now threatens us, therefore, seems to have been organized by a rival and a competitor who, failing upon a former occasion to get rid of the competition of the Laclede company by reason of the intervention of the Law Department of the State, now seeks to drive a rival from the field by means of that department—in other words, to use the Attorney-General's office as a catspaw to get chestnuts.

"Nevertheless the questions raised must be considered. The charter of the Laclede company is attacked upon various grounds; that it is invalid; that it has been exploited, and that by its abuse strangers have withdrawn millions of money from this community.

"With respect to the charter of the company, I invite consideration of the decisions of the Supreme Court and the opinions of City Counselors who conducted the litigation against the company in which such validity was questioned. The point was first raised in a proceeding to set aside the tripartite agreement between the city, the St. Louis Gas Light Co. and the Laclede Gas Light Co., made in 1873, upon the ground that the Laclede company had no power to make a contract extending beyond its corporate life, namely, 1887. The Court of Appeals upheld this contention. Its decision was reversed by the Supreme court of the State.

"In subsequent litigation between the city and the Laclede Co. the same point was raised. In no instance was the attack on the charter upheld. A table of these cases has been made for your information.

"The city counselors who conducted the suits of the company, Bell, Marshall and Schnurmacher, after the litigation was over advised that under the decisions of the courts there remained no doubt with respect to the validity and duration of the charter of the Laclede Gas Light Co.

Validity Previously Recognized.

"The same opinion was given by Sullivan & Cromwell, attorneys for the North American Co., when that company purchased a controlling interest in the stock of the Laclede Gas Light Co. For many years every Department of the State—the Public Service Commission, the Secretary of State, the local Assessors and the State Board of Assessors—have recognized the existence of the company and the validity of its charter.

"The questions now raised were therefore repeatedly raised and urged upon the courts, but in no instance successfully.

"As to the insinuated abuse of its charter by the Laclede Gas Light Co., permit me to call your attention to certain facts. The Laclede instantly and frankly submitted to the supervision of the City Public Service Commission and then, on a transfer of its responsibilities to the State Commission, to the control of that commission.

"The rates charged by it were less than the contract rates fixed by the Tripartite Agreement and under Ordinance 15494. For many years and ever since, they have been supervised and allowed by the State Commission. The company was not permitted to raise its rates during the War, although the cost of coal, labor and raw material more than doubled and by reason of such advance the company was unable for several years to earn interest on its bonds. It did not resort to the courts even under such circumstances but waited patiently until the Commission had made a complete examination of its affairs and consented to its request.

Taxes Increased.

"The present rates do not afford the lawful return upon the $52,000,000 of property declared by the Public Service Commission of the State to have been appropriated to the public service.

"Its recent application for a readjustment of rates did not involve an increase in rates but the exoneration of a class of consumers from the burdens resulting from the unremunerative service which the company was compelled to give to others.

"The Laclede company sells gas of 600 B. T. U. at less than $1.00 per thousand, while the North American Co. sells gas of less high B. T. U. to the county at $1.05 a thousand.

"The taxes paid by the Laclede recently ammounted to six percent of its gross receipts, and during the last year the tax upon its property and franchise, professed on the valuation of the Service Company, has been ed three and one half percent so that we shall have to pay and a half percent of our gross receipts to the public authorities. The company pays a higher proportionate tax than the Union.

"The valuation fixed by the Public Service Company was far less than the reproductive cost of the company's property. The city consented to that valuation by not appealing from it. The company consented to such valuation rather than take the matter into the courts.

Denies Exploitation.

"That strangers have exploited the property of the company and withdrawn from us millions of money is absurd in view of the following facts:

"The Munroe Syndicate paid to the stockholders of the Laclede Gas Light Co. $12 a share more than it was worth in the local market, and all this money came into St. Louis and none went out of it.

"Mr. Munroe as a scientific gas man added to the gross receipts of the company hundreds of thousands of dollars of new business never before known to us, and so widened the service and usefulness of the company to many hundreds of industries.

"The city lost nothing and gained much; the shareholders gained $12 a share on their stock by reason of Mr. Munroe's intervention; rates have not been increased since his intervention.

These then are the facts presented for consideration.

"1. A rival corporation, the Union company, is the plaintiff in this case.

"2. Such company has suffered a sea change in its opinion with respect to the validity of the charter of the Laclede Gas Light Co. Its owner formerly owned the Laclede company and was then of opinion that there could be no doubt with respect to the validity of the act which it now attacks.

"3. The Union has a sinister motive which is evident under such circumstances.

"4. The repeated attacks upon the charter of the Laclede company and the invariable reply of the Courts to these attacks.

"5. The fair, conservative and conciliatory attitude of the Laclede company with respect to the intervention of the Public Service Commission.

"6. Its consent to a less than reproduction cost valuation of its property without appeal to the courts.

"7. The 2½ per cent tax on its gross receipts and the enormous advance in the cost of labor and coal resulting from the war.

Rates Less Than Union.

"8. Its rates are less than those charged by its adversary the Union, and its taxes are greater in proportion to its sales.

"9. No money has been withdrawn from St. Louis. Its citizens got more for their stock than it was worth in the market when they sold it.

"10. The present price of the shares of the company is predicated upon the valuation fixed by law and the new business developed by the superior knowledge of its managers, which has been of incalculable benefit to the industries of the town.

"11. The Union company, plaintiff in this case, former owner of the Laclede company, now asserts what it formerly vehemently denied. It has a motive to strike at us.

"12. If a quo warranto proceeding shall be begun and sustained, nothing good for the community can be accomplished. By the law of the land, the owners of the Laclede property are entitled to a fair return on $52,000,000 of property dedicated to public use. The courts have so decided over and over again.

"13. The public must have gas and electricity. It is concerned with the cost of the service only. Rates for gas and electricity are fixed by the Public Service Commission, due regard being had for the property invested and the law of the land. A forfeiture of the charter of the Laclede company can not under such circumstances result in any public good. That a judgment of ouster will be rendered against the company is incredible in view of the prior decisions of the Supreme Court. The law department of the State ought not to be used to promote the policy of a disingenuous rival of the Laclede.

Charter Previously Recognized.

"14. The Laclede Gas Light Co. has been recognized as an existing corporation under a valid charter by several departments of the State with which it has come in contact.

By the Secretary of State, who has permitted the increase of the stock of the corporation since the alleged expiration of its charter, and exacted the fees prescribed by law on such increase.

By the City of St. Louis. Ordinance No. 35,165, approved July 8, 1926.

By the Street Department of the city, in the issue of many thousand permits to string wires and lay pipes in the streets of St. Louis.

By the local and State Assessors in the taxation of the franchise of the company as an existing franchise, such franchise having been valued for the purpose of taxation at $9,000,000.

By the courts of the State in 76 Mo., 86 Mo., 102 Mo., 130 Mo. and 155 Mo.

By three former City Counselors, Bell, Marshall and Schnurmacher."

Mrs. J. D. Hawkins Given Divorce.

Mrs. Edna May Hawkins of East St. Louis was granted a divorce yesterday at Belleville from Dr. John D. Hawkins of the National Stockyards. She alleged desertion. They were married in 1906 and separated in 1924. She was granted custody of a daughter and he of a son.

HELD AS SUSPECT IN ALLEGED MURDER PLOT

Carpenter Said to Be Involved in Plot to Kill M. P. M'Donnell, Plumber.

A police guard has been assigned to watch over the person of Myles P. McDonnell, who is to be one of the principal witnesses in the State's anti-trust suit against the St. Louis Association of Master Plumbers, following a report by an unnamed man that he overheard four men discussing an offer of $250 for McDonnell's murder last Thursday.

According to police, the discussion was carried on at Grand boulevard and Easton avenue. Two of the men are alleged to have offered the others $250 to get McDonnell out of the way. One of the men to whom the offer was made is said to have objected that the inducement was insufficient. Acting on this information, police told McDonnell of the plot and policemen have been assigned to guard him and his plumbing shop at 4467 Olive street. One of the alleged plotters, a carpenter, was arrested and is being held incommunicado.

A hearing in the suit in which McDonnell is a witness will be resumed here tomorrow. McDonnell is expected to testify that he was dropped from membership in the Master Plumbers Association for refusing to contribute $3,800 to a "kitty" for distribution among unsuccessful bidders on a contract awarded him. He also is expected to discuss the alleged practice of fixing prices on plumbing contracts through equalizing bids.

McDonnell had not heard of the alleged plot against his life until informed of the reported conversation between the four men last Thursday.

EIGHT TAKEN IN RAIDS BY NARCOTIC AGENTS

Two Physicians Among Those Arrested in Illinois by Fededal Officers.

Two physicians, two women, said to be narcotic peddlers, three men, said to be peddlers, and an alleged addict, were arrested in a series of raids in Williamson, Saline and Hardin counties in Illinois last week by Federal Narcotic Agents Senters and Bagley of East St. Louis.

A warrant charging sale and possession of narcotics was issued for a third physician, and another warrant, charging sale was issued for a man said to be the principal "runner" for the group.

The physicians arrested are Drs. William J. Whiteaker and Ezra Hart of Harrisburg. Mrs. Etta McFarland and Mrs. Carrie Leavell were arrested at Harrisburg, and search is being made for Mrs. McFarland's husband, John R. McFarland, named as the runner in a statement by Dr. James J. Joiner of Rosiclare. Dr. Joiner was released after questioning, but is named in a warrant charging sale and possession. Charles Miller of Marion and William Brown were arrested as peddlers, and Amos Malone of Harrisburg as an addict, charged with possession.

Bank at Meta, Mo., Reopens.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 25.—The Farmers and Merchants' Bank of Meta, at Meta, Osage County, which closed June 4, with total resources of approximately $240,500, was reopened today under the same management, it was announced at the State Finance Department. The bank had $10,000 capital and $10,000 surplus and reopened with the surplus intact.

STATE ROADS RUTTED DESPITE FAIR WEATHER

Load Limit of 14,000 Pounds Is Being Enforced on Labadie Detour.

Despite the last several days fair weather earth roads in Missouri are wet and rutted, highway department reports from the various divisions indicate. Gravel roads are bumpy except where the weather has permitted extensive maintenance work.

All main highways in the State, however, are open to through traffic. Road conditions in southeast Missouri have virtually returned to normal, though heavy rains Monday and Tuesday did damage on several minor roads causing them temporarily to be blocked.

Load Limit On Labadie Detour

The 9 1-2 mile Labadie detour at Grays Summit on U.S. 66—the St. Louis-Springfield-Joplin highway via Rolla which was opened last week is being carefully watched by highway crews to prevent delays. The several long, narrow hills on this detour gave trouble early in the week when heavy truck traffic could not negotiate them. As a result a load limit of 14,000 pounds has been established and is being enforced by deputy sheriffs. Trailer trucks are prohibited passage and the only heavy vehicle allowed on it is the cross-state busses.

Labadie detour, according to George Ridgway, assistant divisional highway engineer at Webster Groves, should be eliminated by July 4 at which time it is expected the concrete on U. S. 66 west of Grays Summit will be completed, making this highway concrete from St. Louis to approximately 5 miles beyond Bourbon about 100 miles from St. Louis.

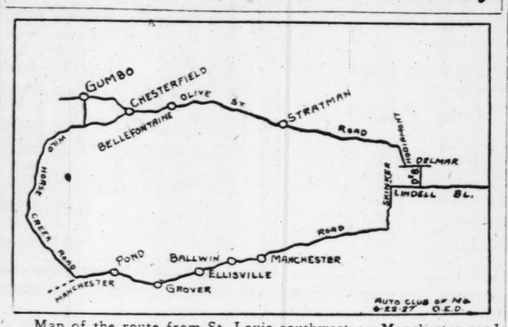
A 60-Mile Circuit Tour Through The Wild Horse Creek Country



Map of the route from St. Louis southwest on Manchester road over Wild Horse Creek Road and back to St. Louis over the Olive Street road.

THERE is no more appealing countryside in all of St. Louis County than that traversed by the Wild Horse Creek road. To relate that this region has as bucolic a tang as the most isolated of Ozarks country is scarcely believable and even after the motorist has wandered through its dreamy confines it is hard to realize that the metropolis is but a few minutes ride away.

As the motorist turns to the right off the Manchester road, 40 miles from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch building, the Wild Horse Creek region is entered over the road bearing the same name as the country itself.

Rustic Scenery.

From the crest of the first hill one looks upon a dense hillside of treetops. There is a tiny cemetery among the cedars, in the blue distance rolling fields of grain. Off to the left, not far from the road, is a battered gray two-story frame survivor of slavery days.

One or two log cabins are visible in the few clearings—a glimpse of pioneer Missouri. One almost expects the sudden approach of a settler there in coonskin cap and homespun carrying a long rifle and followed by his dog.

The descent of the hill is made through expansive orchards. On the left, nearly hidden from the road by shade trees, stands a white-washed backwoods cabin of 70 years ago. In a dilapidated shelter near the house, are two nondescript vehicles of uncertain vintage, apparently unmoved for a decade. This cabin was once the home of Johann Kuhschwanz, a legendary settler of German extraction, concerning whom is told the legend of the Wild Horse Creek.

Legend of Wild Horse Creek.

It seems that many years ago, on a moonlit midnight, the neighborhood was startled out of its sleep by the wild beating of horse's hoofs. From the rapidity with which the beats fell upon the road the good people knew that something unusual was happening. And, as one by one they thrust their heads out of the windows, they caught a fleeting glimpse of a rotund little man, without head

TAXES INCREASE 153 PER CENT IN 6 YEARS

Average Per Car in 1926 Was $21 as Against $8.55 in 1918.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—While the increase of motor vehicle registrations for the United States in 1926 was 10 per cent, the increase in the total amount of special taxes, exclusive of the personal property tax, collected from motor vehicle owners by the 48 states and the District of Columbia was 16 per cent.

This is brought out by the American Automobile Association in its motor vehicle registration and taxation map for 1926.

The average per vehicle tax levy for the United States was $21.60 in 1926, as compared with $20 in 1925, an increase of 8 per cent in 12 months. The per vehicle tax has increased 153 per cent since 1919, when it was $8.55.

Special taxes collected from car owners by states totaled $475,885,583, as compared with $408,877,708 in 1925, an increase of $67,007,875.

The states' revenue from gasoline tax increased 27 per cent in 1926, the total being $187,603,231, as compared with $148,258,087 in 1925.

Seven states had more than 1,000,000 registrations in 1926, these maintaining the same order as they had the two previous years. They were: New York, 1,815,434; California, 1,600,475; Ohio, 1,480,246; Pennsylvania, 1,455,184; Illinois, 1,370,503; Michigan, 1,118,785, and Texas, 1,049,869. Indiana, with 772,326 registrations, was next in line.

In state fees, drivers' licenses and gasoline taxes, the highest five were: Pennsylvania, $35,827,131; New York, $28,786,421; Michigan,

Circuit Tour of Big Springs Country

True canyon beauty at Rocky Falls near Winona, in Shannon County, Mo., the heart of the Big Springs country.

AN interesting vacation tour that can be made to last one to two weeks, according to the manner of travel, runs through the Big Springs country in the southeast Missouri Ozarks. This region presents recreation possibilities not excelled by any part of the State.

There are many roads travelable into it, a good circuit trip on which virtually the entire region can be seen is over U. S. 61 from St. Louis to Fredericktown, thence over U. S. 67 to Council Bluff, west from there over U. S. 60 to Cabool and north over U. S. 63 to Rolla, whence U. S. 66 is traversed to St. Louis.

Flat River, 67 miles beyond St. Louis, is virtually the northern gateway to the Big Springs country. In the changing topography of the region which lies beyond this point, the tourist begins to recognize that the Ozarks have been entered. The road is changed, too. No longer is it concrete as between St. Louis and Flat River

RUMORS OF MERGERS CURRENT IN DETROIT

Passenger and Commercial Field Executives Approached

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, June 25.—Renewal of rumor of contemplated mergers in the automotive industry is current. This has been a frequent occurrence for several years past, but just now strength is added to the probabilities by the fact that a party of Eastern capitalists has been in Detroit very recently, making a survey of the situation and sounding out executives as to the possibilities of combination. Several chiefs in both the passenger car and the commercial field have been approached and numerous suggestions have been made. The survey has taken in plant, equipment, capital and most important of all, personnel of management.

There are, of course, a number of individually strong firms here, not now affiliated with any combination of automobile makers which form desirable merger material, and the present activity has gone into considerable detail in suggesting possible get-togethers. The strength of existing combinations, with their facilities for economies of purchase and their lowered cost of manufacture in quantity, is naturally the prime factor in the merger talk. Those of the executives who have been approached disclaim any intention of merging—but the fact remains that

Product of the past two years, Hupmobile Six embodies every substantial advance that the six-cylinder principle has achieved.

But it goes still farther, with advancements of its own, wrought from Hupmobile's long engineering experience and ingenuity—new performance superiorities, new ease of handling and control, and a decided economy that older types do not afford.

In beauty, in staunchness, in luxury of equipment, no finer cars are available within five hundred dollars of the Hupmobile Six price.

United to these exterior features is the fundamental excellence of the Hupmobile Six engine and chassis—built a full 10 per cent higher in quality of materials and workmanship—making this Six unquestionably the closest-priced six in America.

Modern Plant Facilities

Good automobiles are made by good builders in good factories. The Paige plants are modern, well located and well equipped, with a factory organization of many years standing.

With these facilities at their disposal the three Graham brothers will devote their twenty-five years of industrial experience to so building Paige sixes and eights that they may still further merit the confidence of the American public.

We invite you to inspect Paige cars at our showroom, and get a demonstration.

OAKLAND-PONTIAC CO. DEALERS HOLD MEETING

E. M. Lubeck, Western Manager, Stresses Necessity for Efficient Service.

All Oakland-Pontiac dealers and associate dealers in the metropolitan St. Louis district met in St. Louis Monday and Tuesday, June 20 and 21, for a general sales and service convention.

E. M. Lubeck, Western sales manager of the Oakland-Pontiac Motor Car Co., was in charge of the meeting. C. F. Worfolk, of the factory sales development department assisted Lubeck.

Banquet Follows Meeting.

Other Oakland-Pontiac executives at the meeting were Bruce Morris, of the Pontiac factory staff, and C. L. Voss, local regional manager. The meeting was held at the Statler Hotel and was followed by a banquet there Tuesday night.

The convention here was one of similar meetings being held in all sections of the country for the benefit of Oakland-Pontiac dealers.

In addressing the dealers here Lubeck stressed the necessity of efficient service and said that the success of every automobile dealer was dependent upon the type of service he rendered. Clean service stations, courteous service managers and assistants are also a necessary item to every dealer, he said.

Reverting to the activities of the Oakland-Pontiac factory Lubeck told the dealers that the company's business had in the past year expanded to such an extent that its merchandising program must now similarly be expanded.

Substantial Gains in 1927.

"Each month so far in 1927 we have made substantial gains," said Lubeck, "reaching a record production in May of approximately 24,000 cars, or more than 1000 cars for every working day. By the end of this month we will have completed better than half of our year's schedule of 200,000 cars.

In amounts collected from gas tax, California with $16,502,123, led the list; next came Ohio with $13,287,266; Pennsylvania, $11,781,782; Florida, $11,431,486, and Michigan, $10,081,776.

The five states with the highest per vehicle tax were: Florida, $45.30; North Carolina, $44.60; Oregon, $40; South Carolina, $35.90, and Arkansas, $24.50. Illinois, with $10.20, had the lowest per vehicle tax levy.

OLDS TRAINING COLLEGE MEN FOR EXECUTIVE POSITIONS

Olds Motor Works is laying the foundation for a group of trained men who will have practical and theoretical training in production, service, wholesale and retail selling, says a factory statement.

"At the conclusion of the college year last spring, nearly a score of university graduates were given apprentice positions with Oldsmobile. During the past year they have received practical training and instruction in engineering and production methods at the Oldsmobile factories.

"Eight of these graduate apprentices have been selected for further sales training, and after their year's training in the factory they will be given practical experience in automobile selling. This will be followed by a period of six months' actual retail selling experience in Oldsmobile branches, and an equal period as factory representatives in the wholesale field. It is expected that the course will be completed next spring.

"The factory instruction course covers sales and service methods, from the receipt of cars in the field to the actual sale to the consumer. Sales policies, the operation of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation and the Oldsmobile 6 per cent certificate plan are thoroughly studied.

CHEVROLET CO. HERE INCREASING OUTPUT

23,054 Units Built Here Since June 1 — May Output Was 23,683.

The output of the St. Louis-Chevrolet Motor Car Co. division is steadily being increased, according to A. W. L. Gilpin, regional manager.

"In April," says Gilpin, "a high mark for 1927 was set when 23,456 cars were put out here. This was an average of about 1000 cars per working day.

Heavy June Output.

This figure, however, was increased in May with the output of 23,683 cars. June output should be materially higher than May, for the first three weeks of this month 23,054 cars have been turned out.

The St. Louis zone in April, according to Gilpin, led the United States in cars produced in its price class.

The tenor of activity at the local plant is increased this week by the presence of several hundred dealers from all parts of the St. Louis territory who are renewing their dealership contracts for the coming year. The Chevrolet Motor Car Co. fiscal year ends July 1.

Dealers Renewing Contracts.

All dealers who have visited the plant here report large business increases in 1927, and some, according to Gilpin, have been forced to expand their facilities to handle increased business.

The dealers while in St. Louis are being entertained by the factory and by local firms. The Martin-Parry Corp., builders of commercial auto bodies, entertained 350 dealers and salesmen at their assembling plant, 4451 Duncan avenue, Monday night, and at the factory daily sales and service meetings are being held under the direction of Gilpin and O. E. Nonn, zone sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co.

60-MILE CIRCUIT TOUR OVER THE WILD HORSE CREEK ROAD

covering, clinging for dear life to the back of a white horse, his face toward the animal's tail. They traveled with the rapidity of the wind and were soon lost to sight.

Morning confirmed the suspicions of the countryside. Johann Kuhschwanz was missing, as was also an old mare that had had the run of the neighborhood. How Johann ever came upon the back of the animal in that peculiar position, and at that hour of the night, or what his ultimate destination was, never was ascertained, nor was he ever again seen, according to tradition.

Thus did the country take the name from the untrammeled antics of Johann Kuhschwanz's charger on that night many years ago.

Missouri River in Distance.

As the motorist leaves the little whitewashed cabin of Johann, there is a wide view of gloomy forest and bright glades, of farms far down in the valley, and of the distant blue hills about the Missouri river. The road now follows the summit of a ridge, then takes a shaded dip down into the valley. On the right is a leafy, boulder-strewn hill that rises sheer from the creek which runs along its base. Farther along, past a symmetrical cleft in the wooded hill, the road becomes more intimate with the stream, crossing it and its little branches many times within a mile or two.

Now the full spell of the country comes upon one. Moss-grown boulders lie in the shaded bed of the stream. Here one may park one's car and wander over light-bathed fields or darker-hued sylvanias, or just sit and dream—for this country has not been made for man who would work but for he who would linger and dream.

The return to St. Louis is made over Olive Street road, into which Wild Horse Creek road merges.

Here is the log of the trip.

STUDEBAKER BUSSES PUT TO UNUSUAL USES, SAYS FACTORY

The uses to which motor busses are put are wide and varied. In fact some of the ways are unique, says Studebaker Corporation of America.

"Some time ago the officials of the Johnstown (Pa.) baseball club were confronted with a transportation problem," the factory says. Railroad schedules were not convenient in touring the differenet cities of the Middle Atlantic League. The difficulty was solved when a Studebaker 18-passenger parlor car bus was chartered for the season.

"The Ladies' Band of Portland, Ore., uses Studebaker busses exclusively in touring the Western states. Last summer this organization toured cities in Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa, and never missed an engagement.

"The Showman's League of America estimates that more than 100 show troupes use busses, many of them Studebakers. Many vaudeville acts use busses when on the road. Among these are Joe Dealy's well known road shows and Ross Franklin's Waco orchestra, two organizations that have toured thousands of miles in Studebaker busses.

In the mountain country of Tennessee a Studebaker bus has been turned into a "railroad train" by substituting railroad wheels for automobile wheels. This bus is the only vehicle on the Little River Railroad and delivers 50,000 miles of service to its owners each year.

"In addition to the unusual uses to which these vehicles are put each year, there are more than 2500 Studebaker busses in service on regular bus lines throughout the country. It is possible to go from coast to coast in Studebaker busses exclusively.

Reo Pullman Auto Horse Box

This specially constructed body accommodates two horses with grooms and equipment, and is being rapidly adopted by many race horse owners for transportation purposes.

HUPMOBILE DISTRIBUTOR INCREASES DISPLAY SPACE

The display floor space of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., Hupmobile distributor, has been greatly increased by removing the parts department from the first to the third floor of its building at the northeast corner of Nineteenth and Locust streets, and by curtailing the size of the general office.

"This move," say the company, "was necessitated by increased business both in our automobile and farm implement lines during the past year."

Old Fords Made Like New

Bring us your old Ford. In six days we will make it over like new at a very low cost.

You get the same guarantee as on a brand-new Ford. Pay in ten monthly installments if you wish.

No Better Ford Mechanics in America

Our Ford mechanics are among the best in America. All of our foremen and many of our workmen have been with us for ten years. They work on Fords only. Our stock of genuine Ford parts is one of the most complete in the country. Our shop equipment is of the finest. There is no better auto painting than ours.

Drive in and let our Supt., Walter Paul, look over your Ford. He will tell you how little it will cost to make it like new.

SPECIAL REO CARS USED TO TRANSPORT RACE HORSES

"The problem of transporting thoroughbred horses has been solved in England, where the Reo Pullman horse box is rapidly being adopted as the ideal vehicle for moving blooded stock," says the factory.

"Horses can be loaded into the Pullman at their own stables, taken direct to the racecourse and unloaded there, avoiding the poise, bustle and excitement of railway stations, and the delays and shunting so common to steam travel. In addition, the horses are transported from race to race among familiar surroundings and with all the comforts of their home stables. Their grooms ride in an adjacent compartment, and can keep a careful watch over them at all times.

"The specially constructed body accommodates two horses with grooms and equipment. The horses are carried forward of the rear wheels, the mangers being fitted over the wheel arches.

"A feature of the Pullman is the ease with which the horses can enter and leave it, thus avoiding any excitement or unnecessary shock."

nounced yesterday that the 7-mile detour beyond Farmington on U. S. 61—the St. Louis-Flat River-Arkansas border route via Sikeston—has been eliminated and the road limit has been raised to 15,000 pounds. This detour ran through Libertyville, following the old county road, and was necessitated by construction work on the main highway.

WILSON MOTOR CO. A LEADER IN PAIGE SALES CONTEST

St. Louis was among the leading cities in the United States in May in the monthly sales contest of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., with three prize winning salesmen, according to a factory announcement. The salesmen were J. B. Baerthel, J. H. Kirkland and W. T. Sapp of the Wilson Motor Car Co.

"For the first four months of 1927," says the factory, "the local sales organization has won an excellent rating, placing a salesman among the leaders with unusual regularity. Prizes are awarded the salesmen making the best showing each month.

"In the April contest, as in the race of the previous month, Chicago and New York tied for first place, each placing 10 salesmen among the prize winners. Cleveland was third with eight salesmen; Philadelphia, fourth, with seven; Boston, fifth, with six, and Ottawa, Canada, sixth, with five prize winners. The grand individual prize for the month went to Earl Stoyer, of Schuylkill Haven, Pa.

"In the way of family endeavor the premier honors were carried away by the three Siller brothers of the little mining town of Hancock, in Northern Michigan. The brothers, Edward M., Michael C. and E. F. Siller, sold 28 Paige cars during the month.

FORD COUPE DRIVEN 31 MONTHS COST $.039 A MILE

In an analysis recently made by the warehouse and trucking department of the Procter & Gamble Co. to determine which of the company's automobiles had the best allaround record, the highest rating went to a Ford coupe driven 31 months by Charles Robinson of the Philadelphia district at an average cost of 3 9-10 cents per mile.

Robinson credits the long life of his car to keeping it well greased and oiled, in accordance with the new lubrication plan recently adopted by the company. In addition, he tightens every nut once a week and keeps the tires pumped up to the proper gauge."

This car was purchased July 26, 1924, and has now been in operation for 31 months, with the following record:

Mileage to March 1, 1927, 54,148 miles; depreciation and insurance, $662.66; gas, $648.96; oil, $102.07; repairs and replacements, $297.04; garage and storage, $143.25; tires, $182.09; miscellaneous, $61.44. Total cost to date, $2098.51. Total cost per mile, $.039.

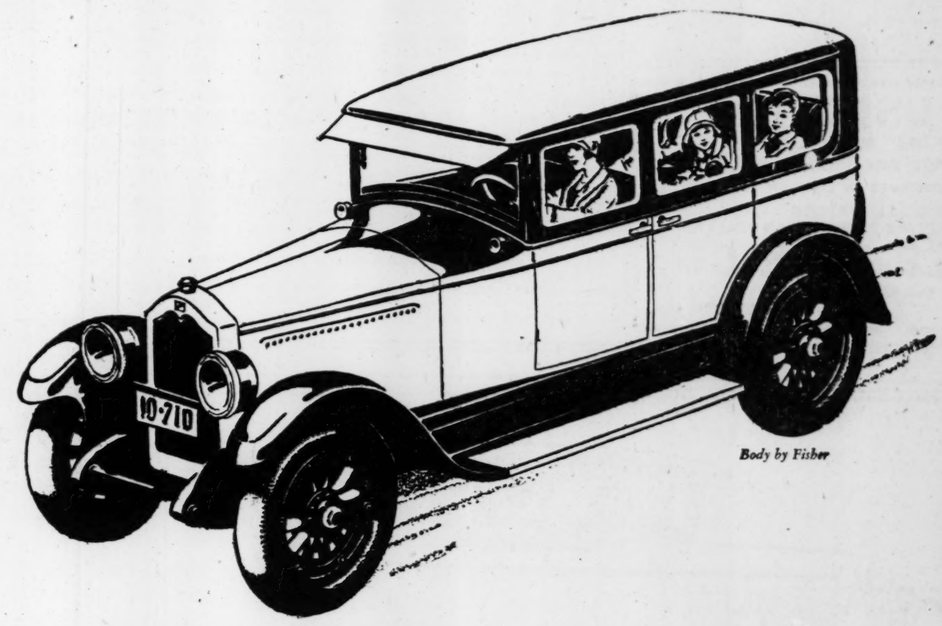
WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM



Body by Fisher

Unmatched in Luxury or in Value

Search where you will, you'll never find motor car value to equal this luxurious, powerful Buick four-door Sedan, priced at $1695 delivered in St. Louis, completely equipped.

The princely beauty of its Fisher Body, the luxury of its appointments and the comfort of its interior will win your admiration instantly.

But wait until you drive it! What speed, what power, and what flexibility in traffic the Buick Valve-in-Head Engine provides. And this famous engine is not only vibrationless beyond belief, but amazingly economical to operate.

When once you've seen this car and driven it, you'll understand why Buick is far outselling all other sixes in St. Louis — because, in every way, Buick gives you more than other cars, at lower cost.

There are 18 Buick models, priced in St. Louis from $1359 to $2209, completely equipped.

NEW FORD CERTAIN TO AFFECT AUTO INDUSTRY

Average Output Has Been 57 Per Cent of Gross Yearly Auto Production.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, June 25.—The possible far-reaching effects of the change coming in the Ford car may best be gleaned, says B. H. Cram, president of Cram's Automotive Reports, Inc., from the following figures which show the important part Ford has played in this industry in the past 10 years:

	Industry Pass. Car Production.	Ford Pass. Car Production.	Ford Pct. of total.
1917...	1,740,702	785,433	45.12
1918...	943,436	708,555	75.09
1919...	1,657,552	939,424	56.67
1920...	1,905,560	1,074,536	56.38
1921...	1,514,000	1,013,958	66.92
1922...	2,406,996	1,351,353	56.12
1923...	3,624,237	2,030,050	56.80
1924...	3,243,285	1,993,418	61.47
1925...	3,839,992	1,990,665	51.81
1916...	3,936,933	1,810,000	45.97

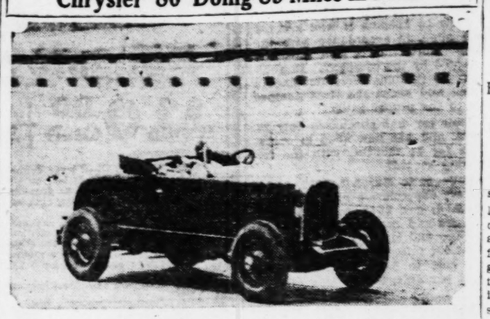
Ford's average yearly production, as compared with the whole industry, has been approximately 57.24 per cent for the last 10 years.

Of the 19,237,171 passenger cars registered in this country Jan. 1, 1927, it is estimated that more than 10,000,000 were Fords.

English Motorbus Service.

Motorbus Pullmans are now operated between Liverpool and London for tourists desiring to see England from the highways. Meeting the boats at Liverpool, the passengers are taken through Warwick, Kenilworth, Startford-on-Avon and the Washington country, with Sulgrave Manor.

Chrysler '80' Doing 89 Miles in Hour



Ralph de Palma, making a new American stock car record of 89.091 miles in an hour for the 300 cubic inch class with his Chrysler "80" on the Atlantic City speedway. This is the greatest distance ever covered under A. A. A. supervision in that time by an American stock car of the 300 cubic inch class with stripped chassis, and is within seven-tenths of a mile of the free-for-all stock car record established by a car of 400 cubic inches.

The test was made under the supervision of the American Automobile Association and will stand as official, the car having been carefully checked after the run by Paul Duma and Joe Dawson of the A. A. A. control board.

The only special preparation made for the trial was removal from the roadster of fenders, running boards and windshield glass. The car regularly has a gear ratio of 3.77 to 1, a high compression cylinder head, and a force feed gasoline system.

While the total distance covered in this record run was 89.091 miles in the hour, this speed did not register the full capacity of the Imperial "80" roadster. The pace in the trial steadily accelerated from a rate of 88.757 miles an hour to 89.153 miles at the 50-mile mark.

De Palma took it over the course in two preliminary trials of 35 and 40 miles and was clocked at 89.5 miles per hour.

PEERLESS PRESSED FOR DELIVERIES, SAYS HEAD

"The Peerless Six-60 is justifying the two years we spent in developing it," says Edward S. Ver Linden, president of Peerless Motor Corporation. "Dealers are pressing the factory for deliveries, and the production department is working as fast as Peerless standards will permit to meet the demand.

"The six-60 is the lowest priced car ever produced by Peerless, yet it incorporates many features that stand for quality among men who know automobile construction. Like all Peerless six-cylinder models, it has a heavy seven-bearing crankshaft. These bearings are of tte new "Ring-True" type, and are machined to such a point of fineness that they are interchangeable. Nelson-Bohnalite pistons, air, water and gas filters are listed among the refinements of the six-60.

"All six-60 models are equipped with Ross cam and lever steering gear, snubbers, windshield wipers, rear-view mirrors and other accessories that used to be called extras."

BUICK HAS SERVICE SCHOOL FOR DEALERS

Factory Experts Give 3-Month Instruction Periods in Service and Sales.

Automobile manufacturers are seeking the solution of the problem presented by the fact that the car owner of today is buying his automobile upon its merits in performance and also upon the intelligence and efficiency displayed by the service organization in keeping it in proper operating condition, says the Buick Motor Co.

"In this connection, the importance of a well equipped, well-manned service organization to the car manufacturer cannot be overestimated, the factory says.

Sponsoring Training Course.

"For the past four years, the Buick Motor Co. has sponsored for its dealers a full-time course of training in Buick authorized service at its Flint (Mich.) factory. This course extends over a period of three months, and through it have passed students from every State in the Union and 20 foreign countries. Men have been sent to Flint for this training by Buick dealers throughout the country, and these men, upon their return, have been able to increase the efficiency of their service organization.

"Most of these men have had previous experience and have been able to benefit themselves through this training by winning promotion to responsible positions in the Buick service organizations. For this reason the course has gradually developed into one especially designed for the training of men experienced in Buick Service and who are considered key men within their organization.

New G. M. Course.

"With a thought to provide training for these young men, the General Motors Institute of Technology now announces a new course in Buick Authorized Service conducted on the co-operative plan. The student, while taking the training, will spend part time in the institute and part time in the shop in alternate four week periods, extending over one year. The advantage of these working periods is two fold. It gives the student experience in actual work on the various assemblies of the Buick under manufacturing conditions, thereby giving him confidence in his own knowledge of Buick construction, and likewise provides him an earning power to cover his school charges and to defray his living expenses during the course.

"This course extends over a period of one year; six months at the institute and six months in the Buick factories. At the institute intensive training will be given on all phases of Buick service, particular attention being paid to the mechanical and electrical construction.

The Subjects.

"Among the subjects covered in the course are: Elementary Practical Mechanics, Construction of the Buick Automobile, Elementary Electricity, Blueprint Reading and Shop Drawing, Shop Practice for Garage Mechanics, Automotive Electricity, including Ignition, Battery Service, Delco-Remy Electrical Systems, Automotive Electrical Testing and Trouble Diagnosis, Closed Body Service, Accessory Service, the Buick Flat Rate System, Acetylene Welding and Forge Work, Buick Service Tools, and Station Equipment, etc. Class and laboratory work is followed by two months' actual experience in the Buick authorized service station during which time instruction will give in the principles of Personal Efficiency and Salesmanship, accompanied by special lectures on the policies governing service sales and management.

ELCAR GOES 295 MILES IN 5:37

With hood sealed, a shockless chassis Elcar, making a nonstop economy run from Elkhart, Ind., to Akron, O., covered the distance of 295 miles in 5 hours and 37 minutes, averaging 52.68 miles per hour. Fifteen and a half miles were made to the gallon of gasoline.

Curb Market Auto Service.

An open-air market system has been introduced in Los Angeles, Cal., where customers can shop from their cars. The motorist can drive directly alongside the store counter, make selections and purchases, and drive on without getting out of the automobile.

Look under the hood of the Falcon-Knight

Fine performance and motoring satisfaction depend on quality and type of power plant. Know about the motor before buying a car. Raise the hood of the Falcon-Knight and you will see America's finest type of motor—the six-cylinder Knight sleeve-valve engine with seven-bearing crankshaft.

This famous Falcon-Knight engine is simple in construction and eliminates complicated moving parts found in the ordinary type of motor. It is free from carbon annoyance and valve trouble.

The power flow is smooth and quiet at all speeds, giving uninterrupted performance for a remarkably long period of time.

I am the Little Jordan Tomboy

Dashing—Daring—Debonair—that describes it—the Little Jordan Tomboy.

I LOVE youth—have ideas and everything.

Of course I am really just a fascinating motor car—but with the spirit and swank of a charming somebody.

I am the Little Jordan Tomboy.

Loving action I'm going somewhere.

Being somebody I am always doing things.

A flare of life—a willing pal for the next adventure.

That's where I get my name—the Little Jordan Tomboy.

A thousand miles of open road before my saucy nose.

Seventy miles on the straight-away—if you like it.

A flying phantom among the sluggish old fashioned cars in the traffic press.

Clean cut lines—healthy freedom and an outdoor atmosphere.

Dashing—daring—debonair—those are the words.

A flash of color and a touch of something in the little chapeau of Burbank.

A little nickel to brighten me up, but not too much.

A dicky seat for the mixed foursome and a rakish extra tire to nod at those we pass.

I can turn with the flash of a polo pony and run like a disturbed rabbit.

That's all—that's what I am. Somebody loves a Tomboy.

TEXAS TO LAY GREEN COLORED PAVED ROADS

Move Being Made to Obviate Usual Glare of White Concrete Highways.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., June 25.—Green colored concrete highways will greet the eyes of automobile travelers over the new and extensive system of roads that is to be constructed in Cameron County, which is situated in the extreme southern part of Texas.

An issue of $6,000,000 of bonds was voted recently for the purpose of building permanent roads of concrete. In order to obviate the glare that usually comes from concrete pavement it is proposed to mix a green coloring fluid with the paving material.

Experiments are now being made with the view of ascertaining the quantity of coloring matter to be used and the additional cost it will entail.

From an artistic standpoint, the green colored highways also will have an appeal that is not found in the white or drab colored pavement, it is asserted.

The color likewise will harmonize with the rich semi-tropical verdure and growing crops of the region which the roads will traverse, the promoters of the novel idea declare.

FRANKLIN GENERAL MANAGER DELIVERS CAR TO LINDBERGH

F. B. Walker, general manager of the Franklin Automobile Co., Syracuse, N. Y., was in St. Louis Tuesday to deliver to Col. Charles Lindbergh a Franklin special sport sedan which the famous aviator accepted in Paris. The presentation was made by Walker in behalf of H. H. Franklin, and was in commemoration of the fact that Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" airplane was powered with an air-cooled engine, as also is the Franklin automobile.

Lindbergh's car has body, hood, fenders and shields of La Force gray, striped with two heavy lines of blue bell blue. It has wire wheels carries two spares, being placed in the front fenders. Top wheels, carries two spares, being black, with a heavy line of silver leaf striping the window reveals. A special aviator's trunk is placed on the rear. Lettering on the body and special laprobe "C. A. L." The upholstering from the belt down is colonial grain blue-gray leather, while from the belt up is broadcloth.

REO CHASSIS USED FOR TRUCK REFRIGERATOR CARS

The motor truck refrigerator promises to become a major development in the trucking industry, according to the Reo Motor Car Co.

An increasing tendency on the part of truck operators to utilize specially equipped, self-refrigerating motor trucks for the safe transportation of perishables has been noted," says the factory.

"One of the most recent instances of the use of refrigerator trucks is the advanced step taken by the Eskimo Pie Co. of New York. In order to keep its ware in good condition during long-distance deliveries, this company has purchased a number of Reo speed wagons to be used as refrigerators.

"These trucks, although of moderate size, contain a complete refrigerating plant, power for the plant being supplied from the transmission. The trucks are lined inside with zinc, insulated with cork, and keep the perishable product in as good condition during transit as if it were stored in the company's own icebox."

110,000 WHIPPETS SOLD IN FIRST YEAR

Construction Trend Is Toward Whippet Type Car, Says Willys.

"The trend of the American light automobile is distinctly toward the type of construction embodied in the Whippet," John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, declared at the end of the first year's production of this car during the past week.

Willys remarked that the Whippet had established a remarkable record in the first year of production during which time sale of it reached 110,000.

New Engineering Principles.

"The Whippet was brought out only after years of engineering development at our factory in Toledo," Willys said. "When we first presented the car to the public of America in June of last year, it was considered by some as a radical departure from the engineering standard of that date. We declared at the time that it would only be a matter of a short time until other manufacturers would come to realize that Willys-Overland had solved the problem in the light four cylinder field by producing a car economical to operate, safe to drive by reason of four-wheel brake equipment, and easier to handle under all conditions because its type of construction was along the most scientifically sound engineering principles.

"It is an established fact that since the introduction of the Whippet many other American manufacturers have adopted the Whippet style of construction. Further, other American automobile manufacturers are planning to follow the principles of construction so typically Whippet, which include low center of gravity design, economy of operation and four-wheel brake equipment among its features.

A statement by Willys-Overland, Inc., says:

Fourth in Industry.

"Production figures now available for the first quarter of 1927 place Willys-Overland in fourth position in the automobile industry in production of gear-shift cars for that period. In addition to that notable position, registration figures for the same period also disclose that the Toledo manufacturer is well in advance of the same period of 1926 and leads the industry from the standpoint of gain in sales as a whole by 20.5 per cent. In that period Willys-Overland gained 17.6 per cent compared to the industry's loss of 2.9 per cent.

"The record May production figure of 27,569 cars at the Willys-Overland plant indicate that the company will maintain the outstanding position acquired during the first quarter of this year. The May production shows a gain of 64.8 per cent over the same month of last year, when 16,725 cars were produced. Compared with the April production of 25,671 cars, May shows an increase of 9 per cent.

Up to May 31, Willys-Overland production since the first of the year totals 108,788 cars compared to 84,760 cars produced in the same period of last year, a gain of 28 per cent for 1927. Incidentally, this represents a record year in the history of the Toledo organization.

MERGER RUMORS AGAIN CURRENT IN DETROIT FIELD

they have been approached in earnest, and it would not be at all surprising if before fall there were some additional combinations in the industry.

Detroit Honors Lindbergh.

Like Homer, Col. Lindbergh is claimed by many cities, though unlike him the honor that it is desired to show comes while the airman is still in the flush of his achievement. Detroit, among others, feels that Lindbergh is a native son, and the Council has a plan by which Forest avenue, one of the city's principal thoroughfares, is to be renamed Lindbergh avenue. The fact that the colonel was born on Forest avenue, Detroit, seems sufficient reason for this contemplated honor.

Dearborn Celebrates Centennial.

Henry Ford's well stocked museum of ancient vehicles was called upon to furnish material with which his native village of Dearborn celebrated its centennial. The celebration took the form of a transportation pageant, in which appeared more than a score of four-wheelers and two-wheelers, for which the country had been scoured by Ford in preparing his permanent exhibit.

Of particular interest was the wagon carrying the Dearborn band, organized in 1862. Henry Ford, an uncle of the manufacturer, played fife in the original band. The vehicle that carried the band was the same band-wagon that transported the musicians who played for Lincoln's second inauguration. It was restored to usefulness several years ago and given a place of honor in the Ford museum.

Yellow Truck Output Increases.

V. G. Phillips, sales manager of the Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing Co., reports that within a year the production has risen from 20 units daily to 110 daily and that the company has unfilled orders on hand for 3000 units. In May of this year, the plant produced 1275 units, compared with 519 in May a year ago. The present rate of production, Phillips says, is to be maintained until manufacturing facilities shall have been combined in the new plant at Pontiac, where the output for 1928 calls for 35,000 units.

Improved Oakland Plant.

Almost coincidentally with the completion of the new plant for Pontiac cars by the Oakland Motor Car Co., the company is making Oaklands in a remodeled factory. While machinery and equipment were being moved out to permit plant remodeled, much of it was completely rebuilt before reinstallation. Several hundred thousand dollars' worth of new machinery and equipment was installed. Among the improvements is a motor conveyor assembly line, of the same type as is used in the new Pontiac Six plant. Improvements in the Oakland plant involved the movement of 775 individual pieces of machinery, and this was accomplished in two weeks.

Michigan Gas Tax Opposed.

Thorns beset the path of those who would secure a referendum vote on Michigan's three-cent gas tax, which is so unpopular in Detroit. Following decision by the Attorney-General that the State constitution expressly forbids submitting measures of this kind to popular vote, Detroit's own corporation counsel's office now holds that the committe's draft of the referendum petition was improperly worded. Richard W. Reading, City Clerk of Detroit, is chairman of the committee, which includes members of the Legislature that passed the tax, the Board of Commerce and the Detroit Automobile Club.

Entries for the National Air Tour have already totaled 15, representing commercial airplane makers from all over the country. June 25 was set as the dead line for entry, and for entrants up to that time unanimous consent of pilots already entered was made a requisite.

Seventy-five Whippet automobiles have been purchased by the United States Government for use in the anti-Borer war in the Ohio territory, according to Perry C. Gartley, Detroit branch manager of Willis-Overland Inc.

EXCURSION STEAMERS OUT OF DETROIT OPEN SEASON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, June 25.—Steamship lines operating passenger service out of Detroit on the Great Lakes have announced their opening dates of sailing.

The Northern Navigation Co. opened its season June 20 with the "S. S. Hamonic" making its first trip to Duluth, followed by the "Huronic" and "Noronic." These steamers cruise an interesting route all summer.

The Great Lakes Transit Corporation will start its fleet from Detroit June 17.

The D. & C. boats ply between Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo. Their schedule also includes sailings north to Mackinac Island, through the locks of "The Soo" to Houghton, the port of call in the upper peninsula mining regions and thence to Duluth.

The Detroit and Cleveland division of the C. & C. line is serviced by two side-wheelers, "City of Detroit III" and "City of Cleveland III," which trun alternately from Detroit each evening. During July and August they make daylight trips Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The Chicago, Duluth & Georgian Bay Transit Co. begins its summer schedule from Detroit on June 30. These steamers include in their itinerary a cruise through Georgian Bay.

The White Star Line operates daily service between Detroit and Port Huron, traveling on the boundary line between the United States and Canada. Other steamers ply to Canadian resorts, Belle Isle and Bob-Lo (Bois Blanc).

Everything you want at a price you want to pay

Everyone wants Pontiac's six-cylinder performance—it's so supple, powerful and satin-smooth!

Everyone wants economy, stamina and endurance—the ability to keep sailing along at full throttle speed for hour after hour!

Everyone wants Fisher bodies—for Fisher bodies are the choice of the leaders in every price class!

And that's why Pontiac Six sales today are taxing even the magnificent new $10,000,000 Oakland-Pontiac factory—for the New and Finer Pontiac Six gives you everything you want at a price you want to pay!

Only $775 for the big, roomy blue Duco finished Pontiac Six Sedan! Only $775 for the smart Coupe or the dashing spirited Roadster with new disappearing dickie seat! Increased production and General Motors' vast resources made possible these impressively low prices on a Six so soundly built and constructed to such exacting quality standards. And because those prices are so low, thousands are forsaking less powerful and smaller cars for the New and Finer Pontiac Six at a rate that is making history!

1928 MOON AND DIANA CARS ARE ANNOUNCED

Three Chassis Models With 25 Distinct Body Types Make Up the New Lines.

Following closely the Moon Motor Car Co.'s recent celebration of its twenty-first anniversary as a successful automobile manufacturing concern, comes announcement of its 1928 line of 6-cylinder and 8-cylinder cars, this company being among the first to announce the new cars for 1928.

The new Moon line for 1928 includes perhaps the widest range of body styles, types and sizes ever put into production by the company. There are three chassis models with 25 distinct body types.

The new Royal models constitute the outstanding feature in the new line, representing the ultra de luxe cars.

The price range is from $995 to $2295. The lineup includes the Six-Sixty, Series "A" and Diana models and offers a much wider choice of body color combinations than heretofore.

Moon "Royal" Six-Sixty models are roadster, cabriolet roadster, two-door sedan and four-door sedan. The Royal roadster has plain pillow type pigskin leather upholstery, and a color scheme in which body, fenders, which are of the new plain crown type, lamps and splash aprons are all lacquered to match. Other features include a smart hand tailored top with natural wood bows, aluminum rails on rear deck, fully upholstered rumble seat, nickel door pads, sturdy stub spoke wheels in natural finish, mirror and automatic windshield wiper.

The Royal four-door sedan has the cadet visor type of sunshade, a distinctly new patented, swing-type windshield operated by a regulator handle in the cowl bar. As in all Moon and Diana closed bodies, this car has a narrow front-pillar, safety-vision body which is being turned out in a number of attractive color combinations. Hardware is of Butler silver finish. Other equipment includes silk curtains, silk assist cord and robe rail. Dome light, walnut instrument board and interior trim mouldings, single oval instrument panel, rear vision mirror and automatic windshield wiper.

All Moon Six-Sixty models have crank case ventilator, air cleaner and thermostat as standard equipment. Mechanically the Moon Six-Sixty line remains substantially with numerous minor improvements.

The Series "A" line has had added a collapsible top cabriolet roadster at $1795, a four-door sedan special and a royal roadster. Mechanically the Series "A" line is unchanged.

To the Diana models have been added a collapsible top cabriolet roadster at $2295 which was recently announced, and a Royal roadster with lacquered fenders and small wood artillery wheels. Mechanically the Diana models remain unchanged except for minor improvements.

All Moon and Diana models have the latest development in four-wheel hydraulic brakes, and cam and lever type steering gear.

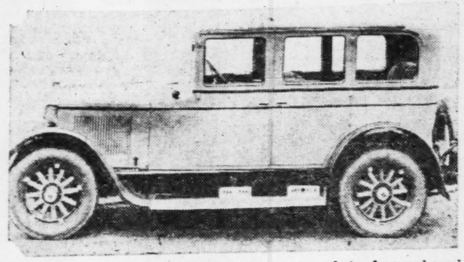
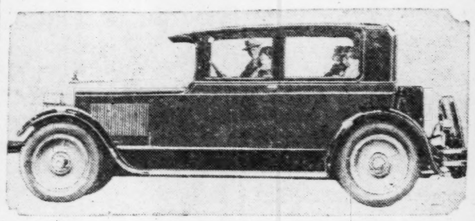
What's New in Cars

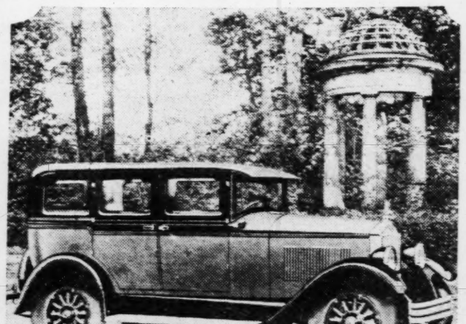


The Moon 6-60 four-door Royal sedan, one of the featured models in the 1928 line of Moon 6 and Diana 8 cars just announced.

SUN AUTO—



This Peerless 8-cylinder 2-door, 5-passenger coupe has many new and novel features.



This is a 2-color job with Chase velmo upholstery, and bumpers. Spare tire and windshield wiper are standard equipment.

New Peerless Coupe on Display

The newest addition to the Peerless 8-cylinder line is a 5-passenger, 2-door coupe now on display by De Luxe Motor Car Co. Peerless-Falcon-Knight distributor.

The new car is powered with the V type, 80 h. p. 90 degrees Peerless engine and is priced at $2795 list.

The body of the new car is done in dark blue and the running gear is black. A double beading runs along each side of the body. Single beading is carried along the hood. White hairline stripes parallel the beading. Stripes of the same color trim the hood louvres.

Disc wheels are standard.

The upholstery is silk mohair in combination blue and black. Silk side curtains and toggle cords, double dash lights, and inlay work on doors and dash are interior refinements.

New Colors for Pierce-Arrow "80" Coupe

A new color scheme on the Pierce-Arrow series 80 two-passenger coupe with rumble seat is on display by the Western Automobile Co., Pierce-Arrow distributor. The car is priced at $3495 delivered, which includes full equipment.

The car has a light gray body and sea green running gear. The wooden wheels are of the same color. Green beading effectively sets off the body gray.

The top and sun shield are on green grain leather. The upholstery of the rumble seat is of gray Spanish grain leather, the front compartment is upholstered with gray, tufted wool.

The rear window of the coupe can be opened from the interior, permitting conversaion with occupants of the rumble seat.

New Auburn "8" Cabriolet on Display

The newest addition to the Auburn line of 8-cylinder cars is the new Auburn 8-88 cabriolet with rumble seat being displayed by St. Louis-Auburn Co. The new car is priced at $2095 list.

The body of the new car is black, the running gear creme. Beading is black with two parallel center-lines of white.

The collapsible top is of brown mohair.

The new car is upholstered both in front and rear compartments with brown Spanish grain leather. A novel feature is found in the removable seat rest in the front seat which can be folded back into the back of the seat.

Autos Aid Cotton Industry.

The cotton industry disposed of more than $100,000,000 worth of cotton to automobile builders in 1925, upwards of 226,000,000 square yards of fabric valued at $63,000,000 being used for tires alone. More was used this last year, and 1927 is expected to be a banner season.

NEW NASH MODELS TO BE HERE WEDNSDAY

Southwest Nash Co. to Display 3 New Series Priced From $900 to $1900.

The Nash Motors Co. has announced next Wednesday, June 29, it will introduce three entirely new series of cars with many changes and improvements in its entire line.

The Southwest Nash Co., 3000 Locust street, is St. Louis' distributor for Nash cars. The company has dealers throughout St Louis and St. Louis metropolitan territory.

Great interest has been aroused throughout the automobile industry in the forthcoming Nash announcement, says Nash Motors Co., for the new models which will be presented will mark a new step forward in the manufacture of motor cars both in beauty of appearance and in mechanical improvement.

Changes have been made in body lines which will make the new Nash models the most striking ever produced. In all three series, including the special six, advanced six and the standard six, a number of very important mechanical refinements will be presented to increase performance and ease of operation.

The Nash is sold in three price fields ranging from $900 to slightly over $1900.

MEDICAL INSURANCE FREE TO STUTZ CAR PURCHASERS

Free insurance, covering medical care in case of injury to owners and guests is given to all purchasers of Safety Stutz cars.

"The policy has wide coverage against bodily injuries arising while driving or riding in a Safety Stutz and occurring through the turning over or upsetting of the car or collision. The liability will pay physicians and surgeons and hospital bills, nurses' fees and ambulance or transportation charges from the scene of accident and necessary incidental expenses," the factory says.

"No one wants to think of accidents or the personal injuries that arise from them in the use of automobiles. As a matter of fact, however, the records show that users are daily increasing personal protection and we supply it free of charge with all new cars."

That New Car Feeling

REMEMBER the sensation of new car ownership the first few months you drove your car? Re-enjoy it! Get the same thrill out of driving your car this season. Paint it yourself—with Steelcote Rubber Auto Enamel.

This year's models, with their two-tone finishes and their bright colors can be matched from more than twenty colors of Steelcote Enamel.

Put it right on over the old paint or lacquer. It covers readily, leaves no laps or brush marks. Dries overnight to a glass-like surface; elastic enough, because of its Pararubber base, to prevent cracking, peeling or creeping. Gasoline, road oil or tar does not mar the beauty of Steelcote finish.

Your dealer has color chart showing actual material on metal.

BRITTON ELECTED A. A. A. FIRST VICE PRESIDENT

Roy F. Britton, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri, a member of the board of directors and Executive Committee of the American Automobile Association, was elected first vice president of the A. A. A. at the annual meeting of that organization in Philadelphia, June 16 and 17.

Matt F. Morse, general manager of the Automobile Club of Missouri, Boyle O. Rodes and George M. Berry, members of the board of governors of the State organization, also attended the meeting. The latter three are also members of the A. A. A. board of directors.

Announcing the NEW Chrysler "RED-HEAD" Engine

FOR those who seek supreme performance—speed, pick-up, hill climbing ability, going beyond even the qualities of its standard sixes — Chrysler announces its new "Red-Head" High compression engine.

The new "Red-Head" Engine is the latest proved achievement of the great Chrysler engineering organization.

This high compression engine—a Chrysler development—is scientifically designed and ingeniously constructed to take fullest advantage of the greater power element of high compression fuels.

The new Chrysler "Red-Head" is the first engine of regular production to utilize in speed and pickup the extra measure of power inherent in those high compression motor fuels formerly used only in airplanes and racing cars, and now being given wide public distribution.

The new "Red-Head" engine will be of particular interest to owners of the Chrysler "60", "70" and Imperial "80" who desire even greater power and speed.

Chrysler's new high compression engine characteristics can now be included in these models at a low and reasonable charge.

LIONS' DEN CAMPS TO OPEN TOMORROW

Bus Line to Street Cars Will Run Three Times a Week During Summer.

The Lions' Den Reservation, donated last year by the South Side Lions' Club to the Boy Scouts of St. Louis for a week-end camping grounds, will be opened to scout campers every day in the week, beginning tomorrow, local headquarters announced Friday. In consequence of the new policy, the bus line conducted by the council on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, from the south end of the Bellefontaine car line to camp, will now run every other day, going down one day and returning the next.

The new bus schedule, in effect tomorrow evening, will be as follows: Leave St. Louis Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 9 o'clock, Friday evenings at 5 o'clock, and Saturdays at 9 and 4 o'clock; leave camp Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7 o'clock, and Sunday evenings at 4. The fare will be 25 cents one way. Special busses will be run on holidays.

Field Executive in Charge.

The Lions' Den Reservation, officially opened last summer as an overnight camp auxiliary to the main St. Louis Boy Scout camp at Irondale, is a 250-acre woodland, located 30 miles south of St. Louis on the old Lemay Ferry road, near Seckman, Mo. It is in charge of Merle Shippey, field executive of the South District, who will have general supervision over the whole camp, and direct charge of boys coming unaccompanied by adult leaders. As last year, there will be five types of camps, designated classes A to E.

The class A camps, of which there are six, one more than last year, are completely equipped, with 12 pup tents, a covered kitchen, field range with attached oven, cooking utensils, axes, lanterns, water buckets and kitchen cutlery. For these camps, which accommodate 24 boys and a leader, a fee of $2 a day is charged. The class B camps are for troops wishing to bring their own equipment, only the field range and oven being furnished. No charge is made for the use of the B camps, but, as in the case of all types, application for their use must be made in advance at local headquarters.

Furnish Own Equipment.

The individual or class C camp is for boys unaccompanied by their scoutmaster or assistant. Scouts attending this camp have arranged for them a program under the direct supervision of Director Shippey, and will act more or less as a unit. These campers must furnish their own equipment, except pup tents, which may be rented for 5 cents a night if desired. Otherwise there is no charge. This camp is conducted particularly for troops whose scoutmasters are prevented by business duties from attending overnight camps.

The class D camp is for scouts wishing to spend only the day on the reservation. Tables, benches and stoves are furnished without charge. The class E sites are for picnic parties.

In all the camps the scouts are expected to bring their own individual eating utensils, soap, towel and clean rags.

Nearly a thousand boys attended the camps last year, according to Director Shippey's report, and 259 attended a special week-end camp held there this year over Decoration day.

Girl Scouts Conduct Nursery at Church

GIRL SCOUTS of Troop 10, of St. Peter's Evangelical Church, Warne and St. Louis avenues, as a "good turn," are conducting a nursery in the church basement every Sunday for small children whose parents are attending the services. A noticeable increase in attendance at the church has been noticed since the inauguration of the nursery.

Troop Notes

South District.

Troop 245 performed a troop good turn on June 16.—Each patrol was given the names of eight members of the school Patron's Association, and instructed to see that each boy visited one or more members of the association to urge him to be present at the final meeting of the school year. That this work was effective was shown by the number present at the next meeting—nearly three times the normal attendance. In addition to this visiting, the troop gave a short entertainment the night of the meeting. As the date was Flag Day the entertainment was chiefly on that subject, opening by everyone standing and saluting the Flag as it entered, and repeating the pledge of allegiance. A reading, "The Makers of the Flag," was given by Scout Junior Ferguson, and a short essay on the history of the flag, with large colored drawings to illustrate, by Scout Pikerley. The Troop Drum and Bugle Corps also participated.

An inter-patrol contest with points awarded for various events is being carried on in the troop. Points are awarded as follows: for all present at troop meeting, 5 points; all present or accounted for, 3; all present on troop hike, 10; all present or excused on troop hike, 5; every test or merit badge passed, 2; winning inspection, 5; satisfactory appearance at inspection, 3; special service to troop, 5 to 25; winning a contest, 10; second in contest, 5; dues for any month paid on time, 8 points. The contests referred to include knot relay, fuzz-stick whittling, first aid, handicraft, water-boiling, observation, and nature study.

The troops is planning a hike for July 2, 3 and 4, and possibly including July 5, 6 and 7. Each patrol will select its own site and conduct its own camp, grades being given for the manner in which they do this. The grade will be divided into: selection of site, 20 per cent; tent pitching, 10; morning inspection, 10; cooking fires, 10; sanitation, 20; discipline, 20 per cent.

Twenty-two scouts, five fathers, and two committeemen of Troop 178 took a trip to a place near St. Jacobs, Ill., last week-end, going in automobiles as far as possible, and hiking the rest of the way. The time at camp was occupied passing tests and playing games. Seven new scouts were admitted into the troop at an investiture ceremony conducted at the last meeting, and were treated to refreshments after the ceremony.

An Individual Achievement contest which has been running in the troop was concluded last week, and was won by Ellwood Graham, followed in order by Wilson Rainer, John Nicalost, Vincent Smith, Melvin Helbig and John Graf. As awards for winning, the first three were given bank accounts, and the others checks. There now are 51 scouts in the troop.

West District.

Troop 75 of the Washington School, 1181 North Euclid, has received a letter from the school Picnic Committee thanking the Scouts for their assistance in handling the police work at the recent school picnic held at West Lake Park. When the trucks arrived at the park bearing the parents and children and as the baskets were being unloaded, the crowd surrounded the baskets so that those in charge were unable to handle the situation. Scouts were called upon to assist and formed a guard around the baskets and in a few minutes, as they expressed it, brought order out of chaos. In addition to serving as guards and doing police work, the troop drum and bugle corps furnished music for the picnic.

Troop 5 of the West Presbyterian Church has arranged an intensive camping program for the summer. A number of outdoor meetings will be held in Forest Park, and at least four hikes will be staged during the summer.

Troop 58 of the Westminster Presbyterian Church is being reorganized under the leadership of J. Paul Canover, a former scout and scout leader of Jersey City, N. J. All former members are to be notified as soon as the organization plans are completed.

Scoutmaster Goldsmith of Troop 20 has moved to California, but the troop has back one of its old leaders, Jack Dembo, who has been a Scout and leader of Troop 20 for five years. The entire membership of the troop will attend the Municipal Opera tomorrow evening, as the troop ideal is to develop the Scouts culturally as well as physically. The next few weeks will be devoted to formulating a summer program for the troop.

North District.

Scouts Knollmann and Meinhardt of Troop 206 assisted in the raising of the flag at the dedication of the Strodtman Playground last Monday. The remainder of the troop was also present at the ceremony. Two of the boys passed the scouts' pace test at the last meeting, which was attended by seventeen members.

Troop 3, with other troops from the North District, took part in the dedication services of the Genevieve Strodtman playground at Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Palm and Branch streets, last Monday. Mayor Miller and other speakers were on the program. Mr. Anderson, a new member of the troop committee of this troop, is taking the scouts on a hike to Lions' Den today in his truck.

Troop 42 now has 47 members, two new scouts having recently entered. They are Henry Evans and Norman Stockhol. At a recent Father and Son's hike six tests were passed, and a ball game was played in the afternoon.

Troop 147—The Patron's and Mother's Club of Walbridge School asked Troop 147 to attend and help at their annual school picnic, which was held at O'Fallon Park. Twenty-five uniformed scouts marched in the parade. At Union and Lillian two scouts went to each picnic car. They helped to avoid jamming, pushing, and helped to get the people situated. On the picnic grounds the scouts were asked to run errands and help with the stands. A policeman also asked the scouts to help him direct traffic in the park. Everyone had a good time at this picnic.

Fifteen scouts from Troop 147 attended and helped at the Lindbergh reception. At the last meeting the troop planned to take its annual three-day Fourth of July hike. The scouts had a test passing hike yesterday. Many new scouts have been added to this troop.

Suburban District.

Twenty-six scouts attended a joint hike taken by Kirkwood 2 and Webster Groves 15 to Indian Springs, near St. Albans, last Saturday and Sunday. After the tents were pitched and supper cooked and eaten a council fire was built, around which songs were sung and stories told. After attending church at Centaur, Mo., Sunday morning, the scouts went swimming in a creek fed by water from nearby springs. Exploration trips were made in the afternoon, scout tests were passed, and a game of baseball played. The scouts broke camp after supper Sunday and expressed their thanks to Scoutmaster Cahill of Webster Groves 15 and Troop Committeeman Crutsinger of Kirkwood 3 for driving the two trucks and to Mrs. H. Blankemeier of the Mother's Committee and Mr. Joucal of Kirkwood for the trucks used on this hike.

Hermann Schwarz, nature director of the St. Louis Council gave a talk on birds to a joint nature meeting of Overland 1, Overland 2, Home Heights 1 and Troop 197.

A benefit moving picture show, to send all scouts of Kirkwood 2 to Camp Irondale this summer, will be given by the Mothers' Committee of the troop at the Kirkwood Theater June 27 and 28. The film shown will be "Slide, Kelly, Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from the south end of the Bellefontaine Slide." The money received from the shows will be placed in a permanent camp fund and loaned to the scouts this summer, the troop having a year in which to return it. Another hike will be taken next month, according to troop plans.

1000-YEAR-OLD GOSPEL FOUND

LONDON, June 25.—No early manuscript as magnificent as the 1000-year-old Anhalt gospels, at auction in London, has come into the market for many years. The work was written in a beautiful hand on 128 leaves of vellum in Saxony or Thuringia in the Tenth century and has been in the library of the dukes of Anhalt-Dessau since the Sixteenth century.

Notable features are pages containing the canons, which are placed within columns painted to resemble marble. Some pages have fine marginal drawings; others are written in uncials in gold on a purple ground. There are wonderful full-page miniatures of the four evangelists within frames. St. Matthew and St. John are represented writing their versions of the gospel. St. Matthew is in a white under robe, with a purple upper robe; St. Mark is in a robe of gold. Enthroned, St. Luke has his feet on the terrestrial globe. In one hand he is holding an orb and in the other a palm branch. The volume is bound in the original wooden boards and the lower cover is decorated with a gilt copper plate engraved with the crucifixion and emblematic figures.

ADVERTISING ON MAIL WAGONS ENDED BY GERMAN OFFICIALS

Postal Department Sacrifices Source of Considerable Revenue From Business Firms.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 25.—All advertising signs on mail wagons and letter boxes must disappear, whereas "internal advertising" on postal formulas, in the telephone book and in time tables will be allowed to continue, the German Postmaster-General decrees.

By this act the Postal Department has voluntarily sacrificed a very considerable revenue. During the first nine months after "ads" on mail wagons and letter boxes were introduced, the Postal Department derived a net profit of $450,000. In 1925 this increased to $658,000. In 1926 it reached $680,000.

The reason given for abolishing this method of advertising is twofold: First, as compliance with repeated demands of many advertising firms to abolish this method of a Government Department to help certain firms in a position to or willing to pay for such ads; second, because many parliamentarians in the Reichstag objected to having the Government's bright yellow mail wagons disfigured "by hideous signs promulgating the best margarine on the market" or "the most desirable dentifrice."

"I've just had the ride of my life"

And this is the car—a Chandler—$995 f.o.b. Cleveland

I'M not a race driver, by any means, but I do like the way this Chandler moves when you shoot on the gas.

Now I know why so many friends of mine have been praising Chandler. And I can easily see why Chandler is making such widespread gains in sales, and enjoying such a successful and prosperous year.

For real performance, as well as style and comfort, I nominate Chandler. It ticks off the miles like an 18-jewel watch—and eats up distance at a pace that makes the famous charge of the Light Brigade seem like a slow motion movie!

My wife votes the straight Chandler ticket, too. She says it's the nicest car to drive she ever knew. She likes the marvelous ease with which it steers, and how handily she can park it in spaces she'd pass up in the average car.

And we both like the way it stays on the job. No sick spells. No whining or whimpering. And the car lubricates itself from end to end the moment you press a plunger with your foot!

Just check up all I'm saying by seeing this car, and driving it yourself. You'll understand, then, why I say my first ride in a Chandler was the ride of my life.

G. M. TRUCKS TO TOUR THROUGH SIX STATES

Part of Plan to Increase Sales and Service Organization of G. M. Truck Co.

A caravan of the latest models of GMC trucks within a fortnight will start on a tour of Missouri, Southern Illinois, Arkansas, Western Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi as part of a plan to build up a strong sales and service organization for the General Motors Truck Co., it has been announced by O. H. Perkins, branch manager of the General Motors Truck Co., after a conference here this week with H. C. Bradfield, director of advertising of the company, with offices at Detroit.

Bradfield while here, also conferred with A. B. Hurst, Memphis branch manager, and H. F. Newton, J. F. Bowen and A. V. Grego, St. Louis and Memphis wholesale representatives of G. M. trucks.

To Tour Two Weeks.

The caravan tour will cover several thousand miles and will be in motion for two weeks. Perkins will have charge of its itinerary.

Speaking of the value of fast duty motor trucks in commercial enterprise, Bradfield said:

"In this country newspapers and good roads have been in advance of other forces in the pioneering of economic changes. With an influencial newspaper's large circulation, the merchant gets his story to the farmer, the residents of the cross roads. With fast duty trucks he cuts down the delivery time and makes a repeat customer. It is newspaper circulation, hard surfaced roads and live merchandising methods that enable the wide-awake merchant to reap the harvest in trade that is offered to him. The high speed truck with powerful motor, pneumatic tires and positive brakes is a real asset to the newspapers in the quick delivery of their circulation and to the merchant in the delivery of his product."

Conception of G. M. Trucks.

Bradfield explained how the idea of the General Motors six-cylinder trucks was conceived after the Hoover conference at which public safety and standardized laws of traffic were discussed. At that conference road commissioners and traffic officials asserted that the slow truck was a traffic hazard. Vehicles "piled up" behind it and passengers in them were endangered when they attempted to pass on crowded highways. A double track highway was the only other possible solution mentioned, except speeding up the trucks.

"The fact that the driver in the modern truck is as comfortable as if he were driving a sedan is a recognition of another factor in this economic of transportation," according to Perkins. "That is man power. Department stores, wholesalers and manufacturers are testing this service, which matches their sales possibilities. The men who deliver their goods are their representatives. A company can get a higher type man if he does not have to battle every mile of the way with cold, rain and a clumsy motor. Frequently these new drivers are salesman taking orders for their next trip when they are making deliveries."

CIRCUIT TOUR OF THE BIG SPRINGS SECTION OF OZARKS

—but gravel. It winds 'round billowing hills, through deep valleys and occasionally across little stream beds.

U. S. 61 merges with U. S. 67 a mile north of Fredericktown. It is on U. S. 67 that the tourist continues southward to Poplar Bluff.

U. S. 67 is a gravel road in fair to good condition and traverses some of the most bucolic sections of the Big Springs country. On this road there are innumerable hamlets where the leisurely tourist may stop for the night. And along the route, at Saco, Coldwater and Twelve Mile—little villages typically backwoods—the adjacent St. Francis River and its tributary the Marilo Creek offer good fishing.

At Silva, 30 miles beyond Fredericktown, construction work on U. S. 67 necessitates taking a detour route over State Highway No. 34 to Patterson and thence southeast to Greenville, a mile north of which U. S. 67 is again intercepted.

Greenville Fishing Rendezvous.

Greenville is a logical rendezvous for tourists bent upon fishing. It has good hotel accommodations and at its town limits flows the St. Francis River, noted for its good fishing.

Five miles below Greenville is Hendricks, a little village. On a county road three miles west of Hendricks is Keener, where is located Keener's Cave and Spring.

The spring, the eighth largest in the State, flows into beautiful Black River at the base of a rugged eminence. Up its face many feet, opens a cave which leads down to an underground lake. This cave is known to residents of the country as the "Lost Cave of the Romaines," and is a series of underground chambers.

In this section is good fishing in the clear waters of the St. Francis and Black rivers, in Cane Creek and in other Ozarks streams.

Returning to U. S. 67, the motorist continues south to Poplar Bluff, the largest town in the Big Springs country and the terminal for tourists bound for resorts and fishing places on U. S. 60, eastward and westward, on U. S. 53, 42 and State 21 and 25.

Below Poplar Bluff is a country virtually unexplored by tourists. Better roads, an increasing number of good resorts and the ever alluring Black River, are drawing many motorists to that country this year.

Tourists will do well to stop at Poplar Bluff for several days, especially if they are bent upon fishing. At Harviel on U. S. 67, five miles beyond Poplar Bluffs, is Cane Creek, and eight miles beyond this point is Neelyville, on a branch of Little Black River, all good fishing haunts, though there are no accommodations for staying at night.

Carter County Beauty Spots.

Tiring of Poplar Bluff and its environs, the tourist can take a northwesterly course over U. S. 60 to Van Buren, in Carter County. In Carter County are some of the real beauty spots of the Big Springs country. Four miles from Van Buren is Big Spring State park, a reservation of thousands of acres hedged on one side by the Current River and confined on the other by towering hills. The park is being used also as a game preserve and occasionally tourists see flocks of wild turkey and small herds of deer. But the main attraction is Big Spring, a spectacular water reservoir of water flowing at the rate of 300,000,000 gallons daily.

In the park campers have been provided camping grounds, a bathhouse has recently been built and bathing in the spring creek is an inducement to visit the place.

Continuing west on U. S. 60, the tourist arrives at Winona, eight miles beyond Van Buren, where is located Rocky Falls and several acres of beautiful "shut-ins." From Winona one should go north 10 miles on No. 19 to Eminence and Round Springs and Round Springs State Park. West of Eminence are Alley and Alley Springs State Park. Good fishing is found in the Current River at Alley.

Cave at Alley.

There is a cave in the cleft hillside of the range which skirts Alley Springs. This cave should by all means be seen. Thus far one and a half miles of the cave have been explored, and in some respects it vies with Onondaga Cave at Leasburg, though on a smaller scale.

A meandering road leads from Alley south to No. 60 near Birch Tree and if the tourist be an experienced driver he should by all means return to the highway over this road. It winds through dense forest, trails crazily up billowing hills, dips into valleys and trundles through stream beds. It is a wild country. Occasionally the tourist meets wild hogs upon the road and shaggy cattle, for this is open range country and the farmers have no fences.

Five miles west of the point where this county road merges with U. S. 60 is Birch Tree. Five miles north of Birch Tree, in the heart of the Jack's Fork river country, is Rymer's Rustic ranch, one of the pleasantest vacation spots in the Big Springs country.

From Birch Tree one can go south over No. 19 to Alton, where are a number of summer resorts and springs. Near this point also is Eleven Points River, famed for bass.

On Western Rim.

The tourist would return to Birch Tree thence go west on U. S. 63 to Cabool. Then he would be on the western rim of the Big Springs country and, traveling northward over No. 63, can go through the towns of Houston, Raymondsville and Licking.

Licking, by the way, is the jumping off place to Salem, 25 miles to the northeast, where is located Indian Trail State Park.

The return to St. Louis can be begun from this point, going north on No. 19 through picturesque Dent and Steelville counties to Cuba on U. S. 66, or the route to Licking can be retraced and U. S. 63 taken to Rolla, whence U. S. 66 is taken directly into St. Louis.

PENNZOIL PROVES ECONOMICAL
A cablegram from Clarence D. Chamberlin (New York-Berlin aviator) and his companion, Charles A. Levine, states that only six and one-half gallons of Pennzoil motor oil were consumed in the 3800-mile flight, the factory says.
"This is slightly more than one-half of the amount the flyers expected to use. The low consumption of oil accounts for the large amount of Pennzoil remaining in the plane when it was forced down by shortage of gasoline.

NEW WILLARD "A" AND "B" UNIT DOES WELL IN TEST

A new Willard A and B radio power unit, which has just been introduced, was tested in St. Louis the past week and performed with smoothness, quiet and all around efficiency, completely eliminating the use of A and B batteries.

The new unit was used with a one-tube regenerative set, with a 5-tube set, with a 6-tube set, with a 9-tube superheterodyne, and with an 8-tube set which has 3 stages of radio frequency, detector, 2 stage of resistance couped audio, a stage of tuned double impedance audio and a push pull stage that employs two 171 type power tubes and produces really tremendous volume. It worked equally well with each of these varied receivers.

It operated quietly and without AC hum, appeared to hold up steadily under load even with the 9-tube superheterodyne and the big 8-tube receiver, and, in fact, performed excellently through the tests.

For the Lead-In Insulator.

Instead of drilling a hole through the sash or window casing, or even in the glass, which usually defaces the building, to bring in the lead-in, cut a strip of wood the width of the window and two or three inches high. The board can be easily drilled to place a porcelain insulator and then set on the sill under the sash.

What KSD Will Broadcast This Week in Detail

Beginning with tonight's Capitol Family two-hour concert and the Atwater Kent Hour, KSD, radio station of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will broadcast another excellent schedule of features this week.

A recent addition to Major Edward Bowes Capitol Theater "Family" who already has proven a radio personality of distinction, Richard Hale, baritone, will be heard through KSD this evening.

The "American Singers," Charles Harrison, first tenor; Redferne Hollinshead, second tenor; Vernon Archibald, baritone, and Frank Croxton, bass—will be heard again in the Atwater Kent Hour through KSD tonight.

"Stars of the Summer Night"—Woodberry

"Santa Lucia"—Neapolitan Boat Song
The American Singers.

II.

The American Singers.

Monday on KSD

When Roxy steps before the microphone tomorrow evening for the weekly broadcast of his Gang through KSD, he will introduce as his feature artist for the period Beatrice Belkin, one of the coloratura sopranos of The Gang. It will be her performance, although many other solo artists of the gang will also appear to support her. The supporting entertainment will be furnished by the large symphony orchestra, the hundred-voice mixed chorus, the Russian Choir, the big theater organ with its three organists, the studio organ and the cathedral chimes.

Beatrice Belkin is from Lawrence, Kan. She studied at the University of aKnsas, and graduated in a general course.

Miss Belkin made her debut with the Philadelphia La Scala Opera Co. in such parts as the title roles of "Martha" and "Lucia" and as Gilda in "Rigoletto." Recently, at the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs in Chicago, she appeared with a distinguished cast in "Falstaff." She has become well known to movie audiences for her appearances in New York and other cities. She joined the Roxy Gang while it was "on tour" and has given many recitals throughout the East.

Tuesday on KSD

Wood-winds will be featured in this week's Eveready Hour, to be broadcast through KSD Tuesday evening.

With flute, clarinet, saxophone and organ, under direction of Nathaniel Shilkret, the Eveready Orchestra will lay special emphasis on the instruments with vibrating reeds, in three numbers.

First of these will be a traditional Indian tune, "My Bark Canoe," for a quartet of saxophones. The second will be the classic "Gavotte" by Gossec, by a quartet consisting of four clarinets, to which a flute will be added as a solo instrument. An Irish melody, "The Collun," for baritone, saxophone and organ will be the third number.

Virginia Rea, Eveready soprano, will sing "La Capinera" with flute accompaniment, and "My Heavenly Nest."

An intermezzo from the opera "Goyescas," by "Granados," for cello and organ; Victor Herbert's "Fleurette;" Beethoven's "Turkish March" for two pianos, and a "Negro Dance" arranged by Shilkret are included in the program.

Miss Rea also will sing a popular waltz, "Dawn of Tomorrow," written by Shilkret and Joe Green, during the customary 15-minute period of dance music with which the Eveready Hour summer programs are concluding.

The episode of the adventures of the "Coca Cola Girl," Vivian, to be broadcast through KSD on Tuesday evening, will have a golf links as its setting.

Here the radio audience will, figuratively speaking, "see" Freddy, a more or less expert golfer, and Vivian, a novice. In the midst of the game, James unexpectedly turns up, having escaped in a most unusual fashion from the bandits who had captured him last week. Jim, in getting away from the bandits, steals their car and through the scheming of Freddy, this fact becomes known. The episode closes as James gets into difficulty with the police on account of this theft.

KSD's broadcasting Tuesday night is to conclude with the Radio Cavalcade.

Wednesday on KSD

Another of the recitals that have made the Organ Master periods so interesting is to be given through KSD Wednesday evening.

This will be followed by the usual broadcast of the Ipana Troubadours, who are to play the following program: "Hallelujah," "Say It With a Red, Red Rose," cello solo, "You Are Free;" "Saluta," "A Little Smile, A Little Kiss," "Sixty Seconds Every Minute," string trio, "Chanson Boheme;" "Gorgeous," "Ya Ya!"

Wednesday night's program is to conclude with the weekly appearance of the Goodrich Silvertown Cord Orchestra and the Silver Masked Tenor, who have changed their broadcasting night from Thursday.

Thursday on KSD

A special program by the National Concert Orchestra, under David Buttolph, is scheduled through KSD at 6 Thursday evening. It is to open with the overture to Mozart's bright opera, "Cosi Fan Tutti." The overture, composed in 1790, contains a foretaste of sparkling melodies which run throughout the opera. The opera deals with Andalusian wager, founded on an early Viennese legend, that, as 30,000. George J. Carey, a fiancees will prove unfaithful to their lovers. The closing selection will be "Prelude in G Minor," by Rachmaninoff, world-famed pianist and composer.

The program follows:

Overture to "Cosi Fan Tutti"—Mozart
Marche Joyeuse .....Chabrier
Sarabande .....E. Chansson
Prelude in G Mino..Rachmaninoff

Then will come "Songs of the City" New York (as sung by "The Four Bards," another special feature.

Thursday night's broadcasting through KSD is scheduled to conclude with a period of dance music by Isham Jones and his orchestra.

Friday on KSD

Rosario Bourdon, director of the Cities Service Concert Orchestra and the City Service Cavaliers' quartet, who will broadcast through KSD Friday evening, has promised an exceptional program of classical and semiclassical music.

Bourdon, a noted 'cellist, was a success upon that instrument when he was but 7 years old. At the age of 9 he created a sensation when he appeared in public. Going to Europe for study he graduated from the Conservatory of Ghent with the highest honors when but 12 years of age. His American debut was at Montreal. In 1901 he joined the Cincinnati Orchestra under Van Der Stucken, and in 1904 became cellist in the Philadelphia Orchestra with 'concert appearances as soloist. Of late years he has been a noted recording orchestra conductor and arranger.

The second KSD feature on Friday evening will be the Paramount concert.

The usual concert by the La France orchestra, with the baritone of the golden voice" as soloist, will occupy the third broadcasting period.

Next will come the Dreamers.

KSD's Friday night schedule will conclude with a period of dance music from WEAF.

Saturday on KSD

The Goldman band of 50 pieces under the baton of Edwin Franko Goldman, will play a mixed program through KSD next Saturday evening, its music being transmitted from the campus of New York University where the band plays for audiences numbering as high as 30,000. George J. Carey, a xylophone player, will be soloist.

Among the works to be played by the band Saturday night through KSD will be: "Triumphal March" (Mancinelli), overture "Pique Dame" (Suppe), "Valkyre" (Wagner) two movements from the "Farewell Symphony" (Haydn), "Prelude" (Liszt) and "On the Go" (Goldman).

NEW KELLOGG A. C. SET DISPLAYED IN ST. LOUIS

The new Kellogg A. C. batteryless receiver, which was exhibited to dealers and distributors for the first time at the Radio Trade Show in Chicago, has seven Kellogg alternating current tubes and employs four stages of tuned radio frequency, a detector and two audio stages. The chassis of the new Kellogg A. C. set is precision made and is completely shielded, eliminating interstage coupling and doing away with oscillation.

Battery maintenance is a thing of the past with the new Kellogg receiver, the "A" battery being eliminated by the AC. tube and the "B" and "C" batteries being replaced by the Kellogg "B" power unit. The heater unit of the Kellogg AC. tube is operated directly from the house lighting circuit and is so designed that it operates perfectly without hum from the AC. circuit.

The balancing arrangement in the new Kellogg is a combination of Kellogg and R. F. L. design, an entirely distinct balance method being required for use with the AC. tube.

Kellogg's exclusive control—inductive tuning—is a feature of the new battery-less set. This simply means that variable condensers are discarded and the tuning is done by varying the inductance through fixed condensers.

DEVICE FOR TUNING RADIO RECEIVER FROM A DISTANCE

A remote control device that permits tuning a radio receiving set by remote control has been introduced and jobbers are receiving them. This apparatus can be connected to any single dial radio receiver and permits the listener to tune the receiver, turn it off and on, increase or decrease volume and otherwise operate it while a considerable distance away. One radio jobber called it a "Lazy Man's Tuner."

In addition to the many uses apparent for radio listeners who are bedridden, or unable to reach over to a receiver and go through the motions of tuning, this device should materially increase the use of remote control loud speakers so that the radio set that brings the morning exercises to the family bedrooms need not be located in the sleeping quarters, but may be kept in the lower hall and operated by remote control.

Leo Potter, president of the Algonquin Electric Co., which is showing this device announced that production was being increased.

In addition to this remote control apparatus, the Algonquin Co. showed Algonquin speakers and Thermiodyne receiver at the Chicago radio trades show.

KSD WILL BROADCAST PHILHARMONIC CONCERTS

Luyties-Moser Wedding Under Trees in Garden

In a lovely garden-like enclosure, with a tall hedge of flowers and greenery surrounding a soft green terraced lawn, Miss Elizabeth Luyties, one of the most popular young women in St. Louis society, became the bride last night of Paul D. Moser, formerly of Stamford, Conn., at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic August Luyties, in Brentmoor. The scene was lighted by dozens of vari-colored lanterns, which shed a soft glow on the bride and her attendants as they walked from the house down a stone flagged path to an altar of flowers at the far end. Bronze standards of garden flowers formed the background for the ceremony, and suspended from the branches of an overhanging tree hung a wedding bell of tulle and white blossoms. The Rev. Dr. Edward Schofield Travers of St. Peter's Church read the service.

Miss Janet Wallace, maid of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Cuendet, Miss Eleanor Simmons, Mrs. Walter J. Hock of Detroit, formerly Miss Dorothy Simmons; Mrs. Donaldson Lambert, Mrs. Garneau Weld and Mrs. Charles Mulliken, bridesmaids, most of whom were contemporary debutantes with the bride, were gowned alike in cream lace veiling crepe Elizabeth of the same tone. The square-necked, sleeveless bodices were of bands of the lace, and the three tiered skirts were held at the waist with lace girdles fastened by pink pearl Chanel ornaments. Blue satin slippers with yellow bows completes their costumes and corresponded in tone to the delphinium and Perbet roses they carried.

The bride wore an imported gown of white brocaded lame with a silver cast, depending upon the richness of the material for its trimming. It was made simply with a V neck and long tight sleeves and a slightly draped skirt. A court train, fashioned from a rare rose point lace scarf sewn on net depended from her shoulders and her tulle veil was arranged from a bandeau of rose point. She carried lilies of the valley.

Coleman Moser of Stamford, Conn., was his brother's best man, and another brother, Karl Moser, William H. Luyties, brother of the bride, were groomsmen, with George Love of Pittsburg; David Randolph Calhoun of Chicago, formerly of St. Louis; William Kent of New York; Donald Lourie of Chicago and Kenneth Drummond, Newel Auger, Henry M. Cook and Mr. Lambert, Mr. Mulliken and Mr. Weld.

After the ceremony a garden reception was held, with small refreshment tables at one end of the enclosure resembling an out-of-door tea garden. The bridal party, with a few extra guests, had dinner in the ball room of the Luyties home, at a table with great centerpieces of larkspur and lilies of the valley interspersed in masses of delphinium and butterfly roses. Vases of summer flowers adorned the lower rooms of the house, and color was added to the wedding scene by hydrangeas, roses and hollyhocks around the improvised garden wall.

Mr. and Mrs. Moser will spend their honeymoon in Canada and the East, going to New York to see Mr. and Mrs. Luyties sail July 16 to join their son, Frederic Jr., and will occupy the Luyties home in Brentmoor until fall, when they will take an apartment. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Moser of Stamford, Conn., parents of the bridegroom, were here for the ceremony, as were a number of other out-of-town guests.

Miss Kreismann Becomes Bride of William A. Field Jr.

MISS RUTH KREISMANN, daughter of former Mayor Frederick H. Kreismann of the Embassy Apartments, and William A. Field Jr., of Chicago were married last night.

The ceremony took place at St. Michael and All Angels' Church before a lily-banked altar. The Rev. Dr. Robert E. Brock of St. George's Episcopal Church officiated. Smilax was festooned about the chancel, and the steps leading to the altar were lighted by tapers in tall seven-branched candelabra.

The bride's costume was of pale shell pink satin, fashioned period-style with a close-fitting bodice and full skirt, quite long, with a train built into its folds. Duchess lace formed the deep yoke and long tight sleeves. She wore Mr. Field's wedding gift, a platinum and diamond shoulder pin.

A rose point wedding veil was arranged to her hair with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a white prayer book, marked with showers of orange blossoms.

Mrs. Stewart McCormack, twin sister of the bride, attended her as matron of honor, and Miss Marguerite Moll as bridesmaid. They were gowned in flesh and orchid chiffon, respectively, with ribbon girdles of both shades, and sprays of French flowers adorning the full skirts. Each wore a large hair-braid hat to match her gown, trimmed with lavendar and pink bows. They carried pink roses and delphinium.

Murray Vickers of Cleveland was Mr. Field's best man, and his brother, Thomas Field, was groomsman. John Hadley, Isaac Orr, David Kales of Chicago and Mr. McCormack were ushers.

A reception followed at the Kreismann home. A smilax covered lattice studded with Miss True is a graduate of Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and is a member of the Portland Junior League. Mr. McCandless is a graduate of Cornell and was a prominent member of the younger social set in St. Louis until he moved to Portland two years ago. He is a brother of Lansden McCandless who married Miss Eleanor Stanard two years ago and Mrs. John Pickering Thomas of Portland, formerly Miss Alice McCandless, and of Mrs. Robert D. Brewer of Bingham, Mass., formerly Miss Margaretta McCandless.

Formal announcement of the engagement was made at a luncheon given Wednesday by Mrs. True at a country club in Portland.

Weddings and Engagements Of the Week

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Louise Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Warren Watson of Cairo, Ill., formerly of St. Louis, and Elmer F. Rebholz, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rebholz, 748 Dover place, St. Louis.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Agnes L. McClennen of 5643 Julian avenue and Elmar A. Bear of Davenport, Ia., were married June 23 at St. Peter's Episcopal Church. The Rev. Edward S. Travers, rector of St. Peter's, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore a champagne colored two-piece dress of crepe romaine. Her hat was an early fall model, fashioned of grosgrain ribbon in harmonizing shade. She wore corsage of orchids and valley lilies.

Following the wedding, dinner was served at the Hotel Coronado. They will be at home after July 1 at 5952 Julian avenue.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. W. D. McClennen of Wright City, Mo. She graduated from the Missouri State College, and later attended Washington University.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Garmon Bear of Davenport, Ia. He attended the University of Missouri and Washington University. They will make their home at 5952 Julian avenue.

The wedding of Miss Agnes Gramann, 5633 North Magnolia avenue, and Joseph Stoffel, took place Wednesday at St. Aloysius Church, Pearl and Magnolia avenues, the Rev. Father Francis Brand officiating. Breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents and a reception, attended by more than 250 guests, was held in the evening.

The bride wore a gown of white satin embroidered in pearls and rhinestones. Her veil fell from a coronet of chantilla lace and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

The brdiesmaids were Miss Catherine Seher and Miss Agnes Rempe. Miss Seher's dress was of a sunset shade of gros de londre and Miss Rempe's of yellow gros de londre. Alvera Gramann was flower girl.

As groomsmen, Mr. Stoffle had Maurice and Edward Shurman and the ushers were Clarence Stitz and Charles Perulfi.

Mr. Stoffle and his bride will reside at 3618 Dunnica avenue.

The marriage of Miss Mary Shelley of Louisville, Ky., to C. LaMoine Mott, 3140 South Grand avenue, occurred Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at St. Pius Church, the Rev. Lyons officiating. Mrs. Mott is a graduate at the Louisville Normal School. Mr. Mott is traveling representative of the Federal Reserve Bank in St. Louis, covering the eastern and southern territory. He is a graduate of Washington University.

Mr. and Mrs. Mott will be at home at 3140 South Grand avenue after July 5.

Entertains in Honor Of Mrs. W. E. Givens

One of the attractive parties of the week was given Monday by Mrs. Frank W. Harrison of Skinker road in the jade room of the Congress Hotel in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Winfield Eugene Givens of Caracas, Venezuela. The reception table was arranged along the west end of the room and was adorned with a great center piece of pink roses surrounded by smilax and silver candelabra containing pink candles. Mrs. Harrison received her guests in a gown of black chiffon, and Mrs. Givens wore rose crepe and a corsage of roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Ida Miller, mother of Mayor Miller, Mrs. Robert Parker Murray, Mrs. Charles H. Wray and Mrs. Bernard L. Green assisted the hostess. During the afternoon Mrs. Harry Symons and Mrs. Adele Lawson sang, accompanied by Mrs. Bowling.

Mrs. George E. Dyson of 1327 Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights, were given a surprise dinner party Thursday at Van Horn's Farm in celebration of their thirtieth wedding anniversary.

Parties and Other Social Events

Mrs. Edwin Thurman Smith, of 7171 Kingsbury boulevard, entertained four hundred guests Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, at a reception and garden party.

The house was decorated in a profusion of field daisies, cornflowers, wild roses, correeopsis, holly hock and gaillardias. Refreshments were served in the breakfast room, garden room and on the terrace.

Assisting Mrs. Smith were: Mrs. Frederick H. Britton, Mrs. A. D. Crowe, Mrs. J. A. Hope, Mrs. Oliver Krathe, Mrs. N. Scott McGruder, Mrs. A. D. McKinney, Mrs. A. D. Nortoni, Mrs. Lon Sanders, Mrs. Jessymin Lewis and Mrs. Mary Lee Francis Donnell, and Miss Margaret Billups, Miss Carol Crowe, Miss Helena Harding, Miss Grace Jones, Miss Lorraine Meyer and Miss Mary Delle Woods.

Mrs. Casper S. Yost of Forest Park Hotel, gave a luncheon Wednesday in the Italian room of that hotel, in honor of Mrs. Harry E. Wagoner, who, with Mr. Wagoner, is starting on a European trip this week. The luncheon was also a farewell to Mrs. G. Kraebner, who, with her son, will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Wagoner. Mrs. Frank E. Ruf [illegible] as assistant hostess, and the other guests were Mrs. A. G. Baare, Mrs. George Corlis, Mrs. C. A. Doolittle, Mrs. Lon O. Hocker, Mrs. F. H. Littlefield, Miss Elizabeth Morse, Mrs. Anna Oatman and Mrs. Katherine Snodgrass. A feature of the luncheon was a poetic toast to the departing voyagers given by Mrs. Yost.

Among the guests at the senior prom at Yale University, which was held Monday night were Miss Martha Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward K. Love of Westmoreland place, Miss Anne Kennard Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brookings Wallace of 4976 Pershing avenue, Miss Mary Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter of 8 Portland place and Miss Elizabeth Scudder, daughter of Charles Scudder of 33 Portland place, debutantes of this season. Edward K. Love Jr. was graduated from Yale Tuesday. John K. Wallace, a student at Yale, was an honoree at the prom. Miss Carter was the guest of her fiance, G. Herbert Walker, who was a member of the graduating class.

Mrs. Frank E. Kauffman of 4387 Westminster place, gave a bridge luncheon Tuesday for her guest, Mrs. H. D. Rice of Dayton, O. There were five tables for cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Kauffman's granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Hill, is spending this month with her grandparents. She has recently returned from Europe, where she accompanied her parents, and will go to a ranch in Colorado during July. Mr. and Mrs. Hill and younger members of the family are now in Italy. Mrs. Kauffman will pass part of the summer in Chautauqua, N. Y.

A number of pre-nuptial parties are being given for Miss Virginia Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Hill of the St. Regis Apartments, whose marriage to Forest L. Fowler of San Antonio, Tex., will take place Tuesday.

Thursday Miss Helen Russell gave a bridge luncheon for Miss Hill at Hotel Coronado and yesterday afternoon a trousseau tea was given by Mrs. Hill at her home. Mr. and Mrs. Hill will entertain the bridal party at a dinner tomorrow evening preceding the rehearsal. Miss Hill spent last week at her former home in Poplar Bluff, Mo., where she was the guest of honor at a number of parties.

Among the informal parties last week were a number for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sartori Jr. of Meadowbrook, Pa., who are the guests of Mrs. Arthur H. Gale III of 339 South Kirkwood road.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Shanfeld of 4045 Gates avenue will be at home July 3, from 8 to 11 p. m. in honor of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

Miss June Lorraine Hiemenz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hiemenz of 3431 Minnesota avenue, entertained the following at the home of her parents Tuesday afternoon in celebration of her birthday anniversary: Jane and Marietta Muckerman, Jane Tichacek, Mary Lee and Thelma Buettner, Doris and Nancy Muckerman, Ruta and Margie Pheme, Estelle Kanzler, Rose Newman, Gertrude Ries, Mary Elizabeth Rotter, Gene Steppan, Mary Ann Hickey, Louise Herweck and Frank Witkoski.

Mrs. Charles G. Swoboda of 2758 Accomac avenue, and her mother, Mrs. J. E. Kocour entertained Thursday evening, June 16, for Mrs. Swoboda's daughter, Miss Anola Swoboda, and her niece, Miss Charlotte Wiedemann, who were graduated this month from the McKinley High School. The home was decorated in the class colors, blue and silver. The guests were classmates and friends of the young guests of honor. About 70 guests were present.

Mrs. C. E. Mohrstadt of 4173 Cleveland avenue, entertained at luncheon Friday in honor of Miss Marie Schopp, who will depart next week for Europe, where she will stay three months. The guests were Mrs. Harry P. Riefling, Mrs. Horace Beedle, Mrs. F. Walter Ruiderheide, Mrs. John Edding Jr., Mrs. Harry P. Rosecan, Mrs. John Prentis and Miss Vera Mohrstadt.

Missourians in Social Events at Washington

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Farewells to the retiring dean and doyenne of the Diplomatic Corps, the Baron de Cartier, Ambassador of the Belgians, and Madame de Cartier, have taken the center of the Washington social stage, now President and Mrs. Coolidge are enjoying the thrills of ranch life in the Black Hills.

One of the most notable entertainments for the Ambassador and Baroness de Cartier was the dinner for 250 given in their honor on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean.

The Belgian diplomats sailed Friday for Europe, and Sir Esme Howard and Lady Isabella Howard, who recently visited the Northwest, will succeed to the post of dean and doyenne of the Diplomatic Corps in Washington.

Donald MacDonald III, grandson of the late Senator from Wisconsin, has gone to Canada, where he is the guest for the summer of Col. and Mrs. Stanley Covington Robertson at Victoria, B. C. En route to Canada, he will spend some time in Seattle.

No matter what the season, Washington is ever the center of conventions. Last week was no exception with 1000 guests and delegates from 30 countries attending the first International Congress of Science. Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Jardine entertained at a reception in honor of the delegates and guests at the Pan-American Union Building on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hamilton, who have been in St. Louis, have returned to their home in Washington.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, accompanied by her daughter and granddaughter, Princess Cantacuzene, and Princess Ida Cantacuzene, will tour France this summer. Princess Cantacuzene and her daughter sailed two weeks ago but Mrs. Grant will not depart until this week.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins will be one of those who will direct the program of the evening at the joint celebration by patriotic organizations of the Fourth of July in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamse M. Thomson, who came to Washington for the Lindbergh celebration, went to Mr. Thomson's mother's home, Summit Point, W. Va., before leaving for New York.

Mrs. James Carson Breckinridge and her children are the guests of Mrs. Thomson also in Summit Point, W. Va.

The Secretary of War, Dwight F. Davis, returned from St. Louis on Friday. He had been there attending the entertainments in honor of Col. Charles Lindbergh.

The newly appointed United States Ambassador to Argentina and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss are in Washington en route to California, where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bliss and will remain several weeks before sailing for the Ambassador's post at Buenos Aires.

The Duc and Duchess de Richelieu, who have been visiting in Washington, will sail for France, where they will pass the remainder of the summer in their chateau there.

Hindenburg Honors Smithy.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 25.—Johann Ruckschaedel of Wunsiedel, Bavaria, was surprised and pleased recently when he received a handwritten letter, accompanied by a cash present of 50 marks, from President von Hindenburg. The occasion was the 104th birthday anniversary of the retired smithy. The president expressed the hope that the smithy after an active life of toil would continue to enjoy tion again.

PERFECT MANNEQUIN TO BE CHOSEN AT PAGEANT

Search Begun For the Most Nearly Faultless Young Woman Style Model.

A search for the most nearly perfect young woman style model is being conducted by the American Retailers' Association in every section of the United States.

The successful models competing in each zone are to be brought to St. Louis during the Fashion Pageant in August, where final choice of the winner will be made. Newspapers in various states are co-operating in the plan.

The young woman chosen as the most nearly perfect model will be given a prize of $1,000. None of the young women to be brought here in the contest will act as models during the Fashion Pageant, since it is customary to use St. Louis girls only in showing St. Louis-made styles.

Direct Train to Berlin Restored.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 25.—For the first time since the World War, the special trains which used to bring passengers arriving at Bremerhaven from New York directly to Berlin, have been put in operation again.

FOR PERFECT PERMANENT WAVING

So softly, safely waved

HERE, for the first time, is a permanent waving process that will wave and re-wave with absolute safety even the most "difficult" and delicate hair. Bleached or grey, coarse or fine—Nestle Circuline adapts itself to the individual needs of each different hair texture, assuring always a lovely wave—soft, beautifully flowing, natural.

For remember, Madame, the Nestle Circuline method is absolutely safe, free from injurious chemicals such as potash, lye or ammonia .... And, too, Circuline is so gentle it requires but seven minutes of temperate heat, 100 degrees less than is needed for an ordinary marcel wave!

When you go to your Nestle Circuline hairdresser, be sure to watch her as she immerses one Circuline (pictured here) for each curl in clear, fresh water. For your own protection, look for the name "Nestle Circuline" stamped on the glassine wrappers .... your assurance of a genuine Circuline wave.

ADAPTO SHOES
for STOUT WOMEN and MISSES

"Comfort should be felt—but not seen"

When you look at ADAPTO Shoes you see only the reflection of the season's most entrancing modes.

But the moment you slip a pair of ADAPTO Shoes on your feet, you feel the comfort of the restful, high-arch support, and snug, narrow-heel fitting.

These features are due to the "combination last" upon which every pair of ADAPTO Shoes is built!

Ordinary shoes may have so distorted your feet as to render them incapable of immediate comfort and ease. If so, before trying on ADAPTOS, first visit our *Foot Service Department. Here your feet will receive professional examination free of charge—and, if they need it, skillful treatment at a nominal fee.

Beautiful Faces Always Attract

If your skin is old, blotchy, freckled or withered, it is a warning sign that you are neglecting yourself. Beneath that worn and faded complexion is a skin as beautiful and delicate as a young girl's. To bring to the surface your youthful beauty, you should peel away these and all other defects, with pure mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store or beauty counter. The wax causes the old disfiguring cuticle to come off in tiny particles, a little at a time, until all the old skin has disappeared. The fresh, young skin now in evidence is healthy and girlish, with no appearance of artificiality. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, June 12.—Fresh acclaim was accorded Miss Hetlen Barrigar, young American prima donna, by members of several royal families when she sang in Rome recently at a dinner given by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst. Present at the dinner were Princess Mafalda, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy; Princess Aspasia of Greece, Prince Philip of Hesse, Prince Andrew of Greece, Prince Christopher of Greece and Prince Potenziani, Governor of Rome. Miss Barrigar was born in St. Joseph, Mo., and she sang the leading roles of all important operas with great success.

Mrs. William Younger of San Francisco gave a musicale recently for Paris and California friends at her apartment in the rue Boissiere in Paris. Among those who accepted invitations were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Ganz of St. Louis, the former the noted pianist.

Mrs. Robert Burkham and Miss Margaret Burkham of St. Louis were recent visitors to Paris, registering at the Hotael de France et Choiseul. Miss Agnes Moody and Miss Mary Rafferty of St. Louis have been staying at the Hotel Wagram in Paris.

At the Ritz Hotel in London the other evening a party was noted, comprising the Prince of Wales, Lady Londonderry, the Hon. Mrs. A. Crichton and F. A. Sterling of St. Louis, Counsellor of the United States Embassy.

Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Holmes of St. Louis have arrived at the Hotel Plaza-Athenee in Paris from Lucerne, Switzerland.

At the summer farewell reception held last week by Mrs. Katherine Parrish of Philadelphia and Miss E. E. Jennings in the fine terrace gardens of Villa II Poderino in Florence, Italy, those present included Mrs. Gregory Smith of St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. St. Gemme and Miss Helen Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Bauchens of St. Louis have been several days in and about the French capital as guests of the Hôtel Regina. Thomas Watkins of St. Louis has been stopping at the Hotel Savoy.

Mrs. Charles A. Munn of Philadelphia entertained last week at th Hotel Ritz in Paris at a coming-out party for her daughter, Miss Pauline Munn. Among the 400 guests were Hallett Johnson of St. Louis. First Secretary of the United States Embassy in Paris, and Mrs. Johnson; George R. Merrell, Jr., Third Secretary of the Embassy, of St. Louis; Captain Drace White, originally of Montgomery, Mo., the Naval Aattache, and Mrs. White.

Mrs. Walter Russell, who has been in America for the past two months visiting her mother in St. Louis, has returned to Paris to join her husband at their home in the rue Tryon. Mrs. Russell's daughters have returned with her, Miss Beverly Baker and Miss Valerie Baker.

F. A. Drew Brown son of Mrs. Harold Leavitt Brown of St. Louis was among the Missourians registering at the Hotel Wagram in Paris during the past fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. John Montague Handley entertained at tea recently at their home in the avenue Victor-Hugo in Paris in honor of Mrs. Karl Sharp Howard of St. Louis. Mrs. John Kirpatrick gave a program of Dubussy and Victor Prahl sang a group of songs.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Maestre of St. Louis were recent visitors to Genoa, Italy, stopping at the Hotel Savoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Harper, the latter formerly Tiffin Highleyman of St. Louis, have returned to Paris and have taken an apartment at 25 quai de Bourbon, on the Ile Saint-Louis, for six months.

Organizations End Season's Work.

The National Society of 1917 World War Registrars and Gold Star Tree Court of Honor Committee held its final meeting of the season June 4 at Sherman Park Community Center with Mrs. Roderick H. Tait presiding. William Gray was the speaker. Others on the program were Miss Madge E. Hawe, Miss Anna McKenzie, Miss Dorothy Hennessy, Mrs. Harry E. Wagoner, Mrs. John F. Higgins, chairman of program, and Mrs. Harry W. Walker, chairman of Gold Star Tree Court of Honor Committee.

Saengerfest at Detroit in 1930.

CLEVELAND, O., June 25.—Detroit was selected today as the meeting place in 1930 of the thirty-seventh saengerfest of the North American Saengerbund. St. Louis was a strong contender against Detroit, but the delegates selected the latter city because it has never entertained the members of the Saengerbund.

What Price Satisfaction?

When you get a $5 permanent wave, remember you have to keep it for a long time, no matter how dissatisfied you are. Furthermore, your hair will be in no condition to receive another wave for at least six months. Does price mean as much as that to you? Perhaps you can't even consult your hairdresser—she may not be on hand when you need her. A fly-by-night hairdresser, here today, gone tomorrow; that may be the case.

Trust only a dependable shop where service and quality are proved. We operate a nationally known school and beauty shop and are enabled to give a reasonably priced permanent wave because we operate on a large scale. In connection with our business we also operate a supply department and we know from experience that the exceedingly cheap permanents can only be given by those places using inferior materials and supplies.

Don't take this chance with your hair. Get your wave from a reliable shop where the operators work under the strict scrutiny of a competent faculty. Let us show you what a difference there can be.

"Booked!"
"I'm surely booked to use all the Black and White Beauty Creations, which the girls here are so crazy about," says pretty Miss Helen Miller, 123- 107th Ave., Richmond Hill, L. I., "because I'm more than delighted with the dainty Black and White Face Powder! Powders I'd used before would cake in the pores and look so artificial, but this goes on so smoothly and evenly you'd never know it's there except for the added beauty it gives the skin. Its fine texture, marvelous clinging quality and natural tints make it simply ideal."

Activities of Women's Clubs and Associations

Members of the St. Louis Club of Business and Professional Women participated in a pre-convention meeting held Monday evening by the East St. Louis club in the Knights of Columbus Hall in that city. Several other Illinois clubs were represented, and Mrs. Templeman, the Illinois State President was present. After dinner each club presented one number of the program.

The next meeting of the St. Louis Club will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Town Club, at which time plans for the entertainment of the visitors will be discussed.

The Amacitia Club held its last luncheon-bridge of the season, Thursday afternoon, June 23, at the Mission Inn, where 30 members gathered for the affair. It was decided that the meeting should be the last one for the season, but that occasional social functions would be held during the summer months.

A number of week-end parties are planned by the club to be held at the country home of Mrs. Barbara Steinmetz of Blackwell, Mo.

Under the progressive policy carried out by Mrs. Nell Miller, president; Mrs. Alys Dameron Weed, vice-president and Mrs. Lillian Schroeder, secretary-treasurer, the club has enjoyed the best year in its history. While the club is primarily a social organization the members conduct an extensive charity program.

The regular June meeting of the M. A. E. McLure Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, was held at the home of Mrs. S. G. Pedigo, 17 Swan avenue, Webster Groves, with Mrs. H. O. Byrd assisting. Mrs. H. S. O'Bannon, president of the chapter, presided, and the following delegates were elected to attend the state convention in October at Richmond: Mrs. H. S. O'Bannon, Mrs. G. W. Warren, Mrs. M. P. Duke, Mrs. Hugh Brey, Mrs. W. H. Dickey and Mrs. L. W. Ray. The alternates were Mrs. W. A. Vivion, Mrs. Brent Williams, Mrs. J. C. Edwards, Mrs. S. G. Pedigo and Mrs. T. M. Young. Brigadier General Barton of the Eastern Division of Missouri was guest of honor at the meeting, as was also Commander Cortez Hutchens and Mrs J. M. Byrd.

This was the last meeting until September, when all business will be resumed.

The Woman's Missionary Society of West Presbyterian Church held its last meeting before the summer vacation Monday afternoon, June 20, in the church parlor, with Mrs. H. C. Gilger, the president, in the chair. The subject for the day was "Vanishing Frontiers," under the leadership of Mrs. H. G. Nicks. "The Prophecy of Sweet Fern," a play descriptive of scenes in Indian life, was presented by Mrs. Stephen H. Voyles, Mrs. John A. Mackay, Mrs. C. H. Krause, Mrs. James E. Dame and Mrs. W. R. Mantiply. The devotional was given by Mrs. J. C. Sartelle, taking as her subject, "Paul, the Submissive Mind." A play, describing life in a logging camp in the northwest, called "Hewers of Wood," was given in dialogue by George Potee and Rev. Howard M. Frank, assistant pastor of West Church. A musical number, "Autumn Song," by Tschaikowsky, was rendered by Mrs. Anna L. Evers at the piano, Miss Louise F. Evers, cellist, and Miss Sophie E. Evers, violinist.

Members of Mrs. E. S. Williams' Missionary Circle acted as hostesses at the social hour following the meeting.

The final meeting of the season of the Pioneer Chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, was held Thursday, June 16, at the Castleraegh. Thirty members were seated at luncheon tables decorated in summer flowers and flags. Following the luncheon a business meeting was held, at which time plans were made for the State convention, to be held in Marshall, Mo. Mrs. Ray Burns gave a short program of readings.

Douglas Oliver Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will give a garden party at the home of the regent, Mrs. G. F. Graner of 6538 Marmaduke avenue, Thursday, from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Missouri Circle, No. 58, of the Grand Army of the Republic, will give a benefit card party Wednesday, July 6, at the home of Mrs. M. O'Neill, 5891 Washington boulevard, from 1:30 o'clock to 4:30 o'clock.

Alpha Delphian Chapter met Thursday, June 16, at the home of Mrs. W. R. Woodard, 6330 Southwood avenue. Mrs. Woodard conducted the afternoon's program on French and Italian opera, assisted by Mrs. E. H. Sager, Miss Rose Brady, Mrs. Elise Vogel and Mrs. George Andrea. Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. F. J. Keyser; vice president, Mrs. W. R. Woodard; secretary, Mrs. E. L. Pleitsch; treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Sager; advisory board, Mrs. B. A. Thompson, Mrs. W. L. Hudson, Mrs. George Andrea. Representative at large of chapter, Mrs. R. C. Bridges.

The following officers for the Sylvian Delphine Chapter have been recently elected for the coming year: Mrs. Clara Pitzman, president; Mrs. Nellie Woerman, vice president; Mrs. Mabel Magness, secretary, and Mrs. W. L. Bohneukamp, treasurer. Members of the advisory board are Mrs. W. E. Sutter, Mrs. Myrtle Goesler and Mrs. Mary Roth. Sylvian Chapter gave its annual picnic Wednesday at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woerman on Telegraph road.

East St. Louis

Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Miss Patti Dean Berry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Berry of Winstanley avenue, and William Griffith of Des Moines, Ia. The ceremony will take place next Friday. Mr. Griffith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Griffith of Des Moines and is a graduate of the University of Iowa and of the Medical School of St. Louis University. Miss Berry attended Stephens College at Columbia, Mo. She has been secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association. After a wedding trip to California the young couple will live in East St. Louis. Several prenuptial parties are to be given this week for the bride-elect.

Mrs. James Clarence Leigh was hostess last Monday evening to the members of her bridge club. Mrs. Edmond Holten, formerly Miss Elizabeth Small was the guest of honor. The others present were: Miss Helen Weese, Miss Catherine Springer, Miss Exzilla Schanot, Miss Kathryn Cooper, Miss Margaret Shreve, Miss Leila Wood, Miss Helen Kramer, Miss Lucille Burton, Miss Edith Markert and Mrs. Hamer Evans.

Miss Virginia Eggmann, Miss Katherine Horner and Bart Schmitt Jr. are guests of Miss Kathryn Karr of Belleville this week. Miss Karr is entertaining guests at a house party at the St. Clair Country Club.

Miss Mary Louise, Miss Eunice and Miss Ruth Williamson left yesterday for New York City where they will spend the summer months. They will attend the summer sessions at Columbia University.

Miss Helen Barron, who has been home several weeks on a visit is returning to Madison, Wis., where she will attend summer school at the University of Wisconsin.

The regular ladies' day bridge luncheon was given Wednesday afternoon at the St. Clair Country Club.

H. Grady Vien is spending the week-end in Indianapolis, Ind.

ANEMIA BEING TREATED IN CITY WITH LIVER DIET

Treatment Meeting With Success in Hospitals, Says Dr. D. P. Barr of Washington U. Faculty.

DISEASE ONCE HELD INCURABLE

Physician Asserts 'Minot and Murphy' Method Is Not a Cure in Sense of Removing the Cause.

Another "incurable" disease is retreating before the advance of science. It is pernicious anemia, which is being treated with marked success in St. Louis with the "Minot and Murphy" liver diet, reported in the American Medical Journal by two Boston physicians last August.

"The treatment of pernicious anemia is truly discouraging," a medical authority was quoted in a recent discussion of the new treatment at the St. Louis Medical Society. "No patient with true pernicious anemia has ever been cured. Patients never get well, and expectation of life is not for a long period."

The statement of the former attitude toward the disease may serve to show the importance of the new method. It is not a cure in the sense of removing the cause, explained Dr. D. P. Barr, professor of medicine in Washington University and physician-in-chief of Barnes Hospital, but in many cases where it has been correctly used, the patients have been made normal in all practical aspects so long as the diet has been continued.

"It is a step of great importance, and one the public should know about," Dr. Barr agreed, when asked by the Post-Dispatch to describe the treatment and its effects. "All patients with pernicious anemia should have the advantage of a trial of it.

"Several years ago Dr. George Whipple, now dean of the Rochester University School of Medicine, performed an enlightening series of experiments on diet and blood regeneration. He found certain kinds of liver, especially beef or calf liver, would cause regeneration more rapidly than medicine or any other food.

"Various physicians through the country then began using liver in treating anemia. One of the doctors here, I know, used a great deal of it.

"Dr. George Minot of Boston had a large number of anemia patients under his observation, and immediately began following up the Whipple experiments. In a year or two he was able to say that if persons suffering from pernicious anemia were fed the proper amount of liver and in the proper way, they did better than on any other treatment.

"That has been confirmed, now, in many parts of the country. We have had a number of successful cases in this institution, although the number is not yet large enough to talk much about.

"The diet is comparatively simple, although it and its auxiliary treatment need to be worked out with precision and followed exactly by the patient. Just how it brings about its tremendous effect on blood regeneration still is in the realm of speculation.

"It seems less likely that liver directly builds up the bone marrow which manufactures red blood cells than that liver contains some specific—although this is not yet more than a theory—which stimulates the blood-building function.

"That seems the more probable since, in the last six months, Cohn in Boston and West in the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York have made an extract from liver which accomplished the same thing as liver itself."

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, June 10. —Both daylight saving and 24-hour hours' time are in operation in Holland. The 24 numeral dial was adopted by all the Dutch railways and transport companies and by the postoffice. The introduction of summer time always causes a good deal of confusion and not a few forgetful persons have fallen into fatal errors as a result. But this year the double change has made things much more complicated.

Heating Plants Cause 42 Per Cent and Railroads 8 Per Cent, Survey Shows.

Industries produce 50 per cent of the smoke which fills St. Louis air during the winter months, according to the first comprehensive smoke survey made by the Citizens' Smoke Abatement League for the 1926-27 heating season. The remaining smoke is caused by heating plants, both large and small, which produce 42 per cent of the smoke and by railroads which produce the remaining 8 per cent.

The survey was made by engineers employed by the league to definitely determine who was responsible for the smoke pall and to what extent they were responsible. The survey further shows that large heating plants cause 30 per cent of the smoke and small heating plants cause 12 per cent. The percentage of industrial smoke is divided almost equally between the brick yards and factory power plants, the former being credited with 26 per cent and the latter with 24 per cent.

Apartments of six families or more contribute 14 per cent of the smoke while office buildings and large heating plants result in 12 per cent of the smoke. Two and four family flats and other small heating plants are responsible for only 8 per cent. Hospitals and similar institutions cause 4 per cent. Residences are responsible for only 4 per cent.

A separate report was made for the East Side of the Mississippi river. The summary for this district was: Industrial plants, 63 per cent; heating plants, 26 per cent, and railroads, 11 per cent.

FAMILY LIFE IN U. S. TOPIC OF MEETING

St. Louis Welfare Workers Will Have Part in Conference at Buffalo in July.

Contemporary family life will be weighed in the balance at the 50th anniversary celebration of the founding of the Family Welfare Movement, Oct. 2 to 5, in Buffalo, N. Y., in which St. Louis welfare workers are to have a leading part.

"The program will mark the first attempt to study dispassionately the facts of contemporary family life," said Mrs. E. H. Steedman, president of the St. Louis Community Council, a member of the executive council for the celebration. "We want to get someone to make a study of the part the family plays in transference of culture and social heritage."

The study of American family life will be approached from the standpoint of behavioristic psychology, Mrs. Steedman added. Psychologists from this country and from Europe will take part in the educational program.

Dr. Frank J. Bruno of the Department of Social Work of Washington University is chairman of the celebration. He will be assisted, on the executive committee, by Mrs. Steedman and by E. G. Steger, general manager of the Provident Association.

The program includes the following lectures and addresses: "The Family Welfare Movement," Mrs. John M. Glen, New York; "The Biological Basis of the Family," Prof. H. S. Jennings, Johns Hopkins University; "Family Life and the Press," Dr. Henry Seidel Canby; "Social Heritage and the Family," Prof. W. F. Ogburn, Columbia University; "The Concern of the Community with Marriage," Mary E. Richmond, New York; "Education for Marriage and Parenthood," Prof. Ernest R. Groves, Boston University, and "The Effect of the Evolution of Industry on the Family," Paul Douglass, New York.

RETIRED PATROLMAN FILES SUIT FOR $1336 PENSION

Nicholas J. O'Hanlon Alleges Association Should Allow Him $81.86 a Month.

Suit for $1336.16 pension, alleged to be due, was filed yesterday by Nicholas J. O'Hanlon of 5150 Wells avenue, a retired patrolman, against the St. Louis Police Pension Fund Association. The case is not expected to affect general workings of the association or its 70 pensioners.

O'Hanlon, who is 65 years old, was dismissed as a patrolman for physical disability, after 41 years of service, on Jan. 22, 1926, and was offered a place as a turnkey, which he refused. The association trustees, acting under the rules, exercised their discretion as to whether his pension should be half or a fourth of his average pay for the last year, which had been $163.72 per month. They allowed him a fourth, or $40.93 a month pension, which he refused to accept.

He claims he should have received $81.86 a month, and the sum sued for represents the pension at this rate from the time of his retirement to June 1. He had paid into the association $96.85 as dues in the eight months of its existence before his retirement.

STRAW HATS WITH TUXEDOS

Berlin Hat Makers Urge It, but the Fashion Lags.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 25—The unusually early heat wave in Germany this year has raised a profound problem for Berlin's beau brummels: Is it proper to wear a straw hat with a tuxedo?

The hat industry answers emphatically yes. The fashion department of the German Hat and Cap Manufacturers' Association in a public statement points out that New York and London have already decreed that the "butterblume" or "buttercup," as the straw hat is known here, is a proper accompaniment to the dinner jacket, or "smoking," as it is called on the continent. The fashion, new to Germany, is not making progress, however. Some of the most exclusive men's furnishing houses advise their clients that straw hat and "tux" fit together about as well as evening dress and a sporting cap.

PLAN $1,000,000 THEATER FOR EASTON AVENUE

St. Louis Amusement Co. to Build Structure at Corner of Hamilton With Seats for 2200.

LEASES RENEWED IN SILK EXCHANGE

Building at Twelfth and Washington to Be Over-Hauled and Given Modern Equipment.

By Berry Moore.

The week's most interesting announcements concerned the southwest corner of Easton and Hamilton avenues, and the southwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue.

Plans were disclosed yesterday for a $1,000,000 building to be erected by the St. Louis Amusement Co., a Skouras enterprise, at the southwest corner of Easton and Hamilton avenues, now used for the Hamilton Airdome.

A theater for moving pictures and vaudeville, with a seating capacity of 2200, has been designed for the first floor of the proposed building together with stores for the Hamilton and Easton avenue fronts. The upper floors will comprise apartments. A permit was taken out during the week for the new building. The site has a frontage on Easton avenue of 200 feet and on Hamilton avenue of 146 feet.

Details of the enterprise, including height of the building, are withheld pending completion of financial arrangements. The building, it was stated, however, is contemplated on a pretentious scale, with a theater second to none west of Grand boulevard.

Silk Exchange Building.

The phenomenal growth of this part of Easton avenue which constitutes the chief thoroughfare of Wellston, west of the Hodiamont car tracks, as an amusement and business center, was the inspiration for the new big building enterprise.

The best transaction of the week embraced the eight-story Silk Exchange Building and site at the southwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue, a holding of the Moser estate, control of which was acquired under a long lease by the Lorraine Realty Co. Stanley Epstein is president of the company which was formed by a group of operators to acquire the lease.

Approximately 60 per cent of the leases of the building has been renewed by the Lorraine company at substantially increased rentals, the annual rentals of the building now aggregating around $50,000, according to Epstein. This, it is understood, represents a big increase over the rental to be paid by the Loraine company to the Moser estate under the lease. The new rentals were based on the increased value that would be given the property with the growth of Washington avenue and Twelfth boulevard, the former with the advent of new big amusement enterprises and the latter with the completion of civic improvements.

Tentanted by long established wholesalers and representatives of Eastern factories, the Silk Exchange building has had a constant rental record. The majority of the tenants have taken new five and 10-year leases, including Henry Sicher, who occupies three floors; Moss & Lowenhaupt Cigar Co., which has the first floor corner store room, the Silk Exchange barbershop, Classy Jean Dresses, Inc., occupying the second floor, and Hirsch & Co., who occupy the eighth floor.

The entire building will be overhauled and modern fixtures and equipment will be installed by several of the tenants on the first floor.

Tenants Renew Leases.

The building extends from Washington avenue to St. Charles street on the west side of Twelfth boulevard. It has Washington avenue frontage of 42 feet. Stores occupy both the Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue fronts.

The late Leo Moser purchased the building at the instance of the Mercantile Trust Co. before construction costs had advanced materially, and when prices on Washington avenue on Twelfth boulevard were at comparatively low stages.

Other Downtown Deals.

The week in realty was marked by a notable resumption of negotiations, which were placed in abeyance, owing to the Lindbergh celebration. These involve several important corners in the central business district and in uptown St.

Other Downtown Deals.

The week in realty was marked by a stable resumption of negotiations, which were placed in abeyance, owing to the Lindbergh celebration. These involve several important corner s in the central business district and in uptown St. Louis, chiefly on Grand and Lindell boulevards, picked for large building enterprises of various kinds.

The southwest corner of Eleventh street and Washington avenue recently purchased by Charles Cella is also challenging the attention of theatrical and moving picture interests. This site, which runs through to St. Charles street with the adjoining lot on Washington avenue, is regarded as constituting a capital location for a building of this character.

Need of Downtown Garages Pointed Out

The subject of metropolitan garages, as an attractive field for investment, is treated in a brochure issued by the Real Estate Mortgage Trust Co.

"Investigation has shown that large American cities almost uniformly have insufficient downtown garage space," it says. "Parking should and will be abolished in large cities; and that permanent garages must be built to serve neighborhoods containing stores, office buildings, hotels and theaters.

"Surveys have shown that about 45,000 automobiles, one-fifth of the number owned in Greater St. Louis, enter the downtown district daily. With an hourly charge of parked cars, the number of cars that can park downtown is 14,000 during the business day, when they park less than an hour, the possible number is larger, but all estimates show a great shortage of parking space.

"Because of the congestion caused by parking in the one-hour area and for some distance immediately outside that area, it is considered inevitable that parking will be abolished. The proposed municipal parking place on the river front would handle about 6000 cars, and thus would not half meet the demand which would be created if parking were done away.

"As curb parking diminishes, space parking must increase.

"Parking is being taken indoors. The large downtown garage is the logical answer to the problem. Because the need is greatest where land is most costly, the garages must be of multi-floor type. Proper location is a fundamental necessity. Efficient design has a vital influence on success. Maximum storage and minimum operating expense are dependent on design. Business management introduces the personal element, and experience and standardization of methods are essential. In practically every city of 250,000, garages located conveniently in the business district will prove profitable."

LARGE BATTERY FIRM TO OPEN BRANCH HERE

National Lead Battery Co. Obtains Warehouse Quarters in St. Louis.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports concluding negotiations with one of the largest battery manufactures in the country. The firm, which will open a branch in St. Louis, is the National Lead Battery Co., a Minnesota corporation.

The deal was consummated after investigation on the part of T. M. Brown, sales manager, and finally concluded by George P. Castner, vice president.

The Battery Company will occupy part of the Manufacturers & Merchants R. R. Warehouse Co. property in the Missouri Pacific and Frisco district at 3900 Chouteau avenue.

The Mercantile Trust Co. represented both parties in the transaction.

BUILDING CONTRACTS IN MAY SHOW 23 PER CENT DECREASE

Building and engineering contracts let in Missouri in May amounted to $13,157,100, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. The figure showed a drop of 12 per cent from April, as well as a drop of 23 per cent from May, 1926.

Last month's construction record included the following important classes of work: $6,058,600, or 46 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $2,121,300, or 16 per cent, for public works and utilities; $1,975,200, or 15 per cent for commercial buildings, and $1,435,000, or 11 per cent, for educational projects.

Construction started in Missouri during the first five months of this year amounted to $70,935,500, as compared with $69,254,900 during the first five months of last year, an increase of 2 per cent. Contemplated new work reported in May reached a total of $27,337,200, 4 per cent increase over April and 24 per cent over May, 1926.

NEW CABIN PATTERNED AFTER ANCIENT HUTS

Built for S. M. Shoenberg on Conway Road on Most Modern Style.

The log cabin shown in the picture on this page was built for Sidney M. Shoenberg, W. J. Bush of Ballwin, Mo., was the contractor, More lumber, mostly special work, was used than for an average six-room residence. It was necessary to run some special flooring 1x8 and 1x10 Y. P. rough one side for flooring and exposed ceiling. The floors were laid with the smooth side up, dressed and sanded.

Some of the unique features of the home are the fire place, bar, double deck bunk, log panel work in bath room, towel racks, ladders to attic, double T & G. sheathing covered with asbestos, slaters' felt, and creo-dipped shingles laid double to the weather, copper nails being used.

This is a reproduction of the old American log cabin combined with all the modern and ultra-modern devices that predominate in the more expensive homes of today.

The log cabin is on a 60-acre tract on the south side of the Conway road, west of the Ballas road.

MANY OFFICES LEASED IN BOATMEN'S BUILDING

Several Out-of-Town Firms Have Taken Rooms There in Last Year.

This year has so far followed through in the demand for office space, says L. O. Honig, assistant manager of the Boatmen's Bank Building, who states that many out-of-town firms have come to St. Louis in the last year.

Investment bankers are being attracted to St. Louis because of the great bond market which has been created here, stimulated by Liberty Bond drives during the war, and a number of life insurance companies are also recognizing the importance of St. Louis as an insurance center, Honig states.

Announcement of leases closed during the last several months includes the F. H. Smith Co. of Washington, three rooms on the nineteenth floor. The American National Co. of San Francisco, has leased two rooms; the Continental & Commercial Co. of Chicago has taken three rooms. Jack Mahony, commercial broker, one room. Wayne Ely, a lawer, has added another room to his suite. Walter Burch, an attorney, has taken room 817 and 818. The firm of Moore & Fitch has taken suite 1837. The firm of Hermann & Addicks, have taken suite 1051. The Universal Match Corp., has taken suite 951. The Old Ben Coal Corp. has moved to suite 343. Miller, Bryant & Pierce Co., of Aurora, Ill., has taken suite 440 and 441.

Leases have been closed with the Northern Pacific Railroad Co., Grand Trunk Canadian National Railway and the Chicago and Alton Railroad. The Canadian Pacific Railway Co., Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad Co. and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway are new in the new ticket offices on Locust street.

MULLIN-WALTERS REALTY CO. REPORTS SEVERAL DEALS

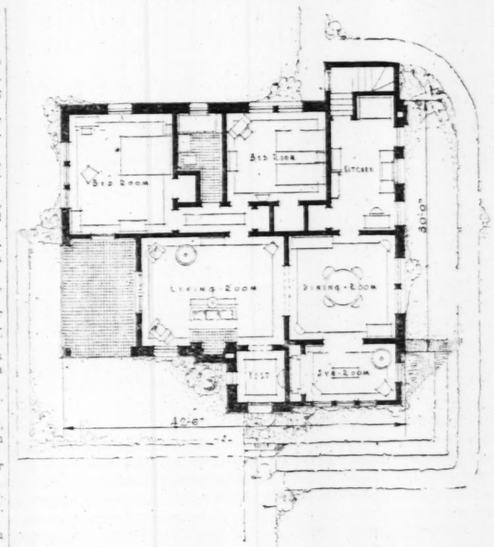
Five-Room Spanish Type Bungalow

Associated Architects' League of St. Louis.



Cozy, Convenient Bungalow Adapted to the Suburbs

This Home Breathes Comfort in Every Line and the Sun Porch Will Appeal to Every Member of the Family.

The bungalow featured today (Plan 6-ST-132) offers an exceptional opportunity to the homebuilder who has settled upon the bungalow type of residence for his suburban or country lot.

The architectural design, which is picturesque, has been worked out with the idea of creating a model six-room home. Consequently, the general proportions, as well as the smallest details of the bungalow, have been thoughtfully planned.

The color scheme has likewise received attention. For a stucco building, it is quiet and unobstrusive, although it has the snap usually characteristic of artistic work. The hood over the entrance is interesting and the brick heads and jambs around the windows add pleasing variation.

The circular-headed door opens into an attractive vestibule which, in turn, offers entrance into the large living room. A fireplace adds interest to the living room.

The dining room is idrectly connected with the living room. The case-opening windows of the dining room, and the French doors onto the porch, all center on the same axis. The cheerful sun room is located in the front of the bungalow, offering a delightful view of the street. A bed closet with provision made for an in-a-door bed, is a convenient features of the sun room.

The bath, which centers between the two bedrooms, opens directly into the hall. Each of the bedrooms has a large closet. A linen closet in the hall furnishes an additional amount of closet space, relatively more than is found in houses of the type.

Particular attention is called to the main bedroom, which is a most attractive room, with daylight let in from three sides.

The kitchen is an excellent example of a modern small house kitchen as its three windows permit a well-lighted and well-ventilated room, designed with the same thought for convenience as the rest of the plan.

Further information concerning this bungalow (Plan 6-ST-132) may be obtained by writing the Building Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A PRIVATE DRIVE IMPROVES A HOME

If Size of Lot Permits Have a Private Driveway to the Garage.

It is much more pleasant to drive the car directly into the garage by way of the street entrance, rather than to take a circuitous route through the alley to arrive at the same destination. Many alleys are, to put it mildly, too unlovely and unadorned to be enjoyable in broad daylight and even the bravest have an instinctive dislike of turning into a dark, unlighted alley in the middle of the night, in order that the car may be put away.

A private drive does away with these annoyances and more. It lessens the amount of mud that is tracked into the houses, provides the coal deliveryman with a means of getting to the bins without cutting up the lawn and, if judiciously laid out, a drive adds attractiveness to the grounds.

The width of the drive is determined in part by the space available or by the size of the house and grounds. A large house set well back from the street or road has the most possibilities and since graceful curves are more interesting to the eye than straight lines and the entrance to the grounds is usually to one side of the center of the house, the drive may often be laid out in a flowing line. In closely built-up districts where the space is restricted, the drive must necessarily be the shortest line from the garage door to the street. Motor cars are built six feet six inches from the center of wheel to center of wheel and so the narrowest drive can scarcely be less than seven and one-half feet. Nine feet is a very common and comfortable width for the ordinary drive but those leading to the larger homes are often 16 feet.

A type of short drive that is used only by the car is two trough-like tracks to hold the wheels. It is serviceable if a substantial subbase is built under it to keep it from settling.

The amount of material saved in building this kind of a drive is overcome by the cost of the extra labor required to set the forms in place. On steep inclines a set of steps may be built inside the track for the wheels.

Now and then it is desired to color the drive in harmony with some color scheme. Dark red coloring matter, preferably oxide of iron, mixed with the cement, is used to good effect and the result is as if colored tiles were inset within the frame of white, the tile effect being furthered by creasing squares in the cement surface while it is still plastic.

"Other colors are used but they are not uniformly satisfactory and the green in particular is quite fickle. Colors if used, should be quite thoroughly planned to be in complete harmony with the house.

CAREFUL CONSTRUCTION PREVENTS CREAKING FLOORS

A Tip to Home Builders About a Way to Avoid This Common Annoyance.

The following suggestions are offered as high lights in good building practice:

For best service and the elimination of such annoyances as creaking floor boards, all boards should be nailed over each joist, according to the following schedule:

4" and 6" widths.....2 nails
8", 10" and 12" widths...3 nails

Floor joists should have one row of bridging for each eight feet of unsupported span. The bridging should be carefully fitted and rigidly nailed. 2x2 lumber is the best bridging material.

Studding should have diagonal bracing and solid bridging, not only to stiffen the frame, but to form fire stops and to shut off the passage of air through the walls.

Insist on boards and dimension that are properly seasoned and that have been dressed after seasoning. This will eliminate cost in construction and shrinkage of the frame, with resultant cracks.

Putting on sheathing and subflooring diagonally increases the stiffness of the walls several times. It adds slightly to the cost, but this is more than repaid in the satisfaction that will be obtained from the home.

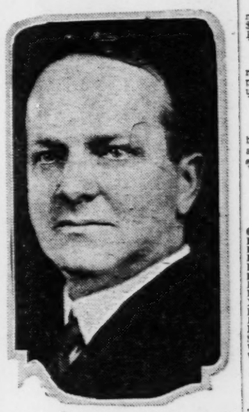
NEW VICE PRESIDENT OF REAL ESTATE FIRM



Charles Rippin, recently elected vice president of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., will assume the duties of his new post Aug. 1. He has been traffic manager of the Merchants' Exchange the last three years, serving as its treasurer and was general agent for the Missouri Pacific Lines from 1906 to 1912. In 1923-24 he was president of the National Traffic League, an association of leading business organizations of the country.

EXTERIOR FINISH OF HOME IMPORTANT

Brief Generalities Suggested for Good Exterior Construction.

The proper finishing of the exterior of the home is a subject of much thought and study on the part of the architect, and a matter which requires the utmost skill on the part of the builder in carrying out the plans. To cover the technique of good exterior construction would require a volume. The following brief benerailties are offered as suggestions.

All outside construction should be such as to provide rapid drainage of water and to prevent the accumulation of debris. No enclosed flat spaces on which water remains should be permitted. All horizontal work should be given a slope that will insure good drainage. All joints at the end of horizontal work should be constructed so as to prevent the seepage of water underneath.

The liberal use of metal flashings over windows and doors, in gutters, and on cornices will greatly lengthen the life of the building. On the outside edge at the ends of drip caps and window sills, an elevated edge of metal will prevent water dripping over the ends. This is especially beneficial on stucco construction, as it prevents streaking of the wall.

All end joints in the gutter should be liberally daubed with white lead. White lead should also be used in the joints in the porch floor.

A good priming coat of paint should be placed on the wood as soon as it is in place. If convenient, several days should elapse before the finish coats are put on. Nails should be countersunk and the depression filled with putty after the priming coat has been supplied. Lastly provision should be made for the proper circulation of air around the foundations of porch columns and at the bottom of balusters. This permits water to dry rapidly and aids in preserving the wood.

BUNGALOWS AND COTTAGES For Sale West

WHAT IS THE PRICE?

This is the predominant question. Well let's analyze it. What is the price of the choicest location God gave man for a home-site, with grand oak trees and all the beauties of nature's handiwork? What is the price of public improvements all installed now? What is the price of a well-built home, among other equally valuable homes, where there are no flats, apartments or other drawbacks? When you select a home in Pasadena Park, you get all these ideals, supplied in the fullest measure. And these are the things that constitute your money's worth, when you consider the price. See the furnished display bungalow at 810 North Hills Drive, Pasadena Park.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

MRS. W. E. T.—If your 1853 quarter has no rays and no arrows it may be worth about $8.00.

LEO. — The steamship Mauretania in 1910 made a record trip between New York and Queenstown in 4 days, 10 hours and 41 minutes, at the rate of 26.06 knots an hour. The fastest transatlantic yacht voyage was that of the schooner yacht Atlantic, which, in the race for the German Emperor's Cup in 1905, sailed from Sandy Hook to Lizard, England, in 12 days, 4 hours, 1 minute and 10 seconds, the distance being 3013 nautical miles, the average speed being at the rate of 10.31 knots. The best day's run was 341 nautical miles and at an average of 14.5 knots, while the best speed per hour was that of the yacht Atlantic, which, in 16 nautical miles per hour.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

POOR WIDOW. — You should have an agreement with the contractor to pay him until you have tested out his repairs.

BEE T. B.—You are entitled to claim custody of the child during the summer months, under the circumstances you state, but if they will not give her to you voluntarily, you will have to consult a lawyer.

R. R. E. B. — The law prohibits working women in certain occupations more than 9 hours in any one day or 54 hours in any one week. You should report the facts to the State Industrial Inspection Department, in the Fullerton Building, Seventh an Pine streets.

GRATEFUL. — If you were to have the party arrested and could not prove she stole the ring, she could have you arrested for damages. All you can do is consult the Police Department as often as possible and try to get them to do something.

JOE.—You can sue he coal company now if the accident was caused by their negligence or willful negligence of their employes, or if the accident occurred since the Workmen's Compensation law went into force last January. You should consult a lawyer.

MRS. C. W. — You can have a warrant issued for your husband. Inquire at the Warrant Office, in the Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets. If he has left the city you could probably have him brought back at your expense.

MRS. J. F. S.—The notice was received by you too late to take effect June 6, so you can stay another month. You should give the landlord a written notice that you will vacate July 6. This notice should be given him not later than June 5.

CLARA. — Legally you would have a right to distribute the statements if they were absolutely true. However, it would be dangerous, for the reason that it would be very difficult to prove the truth of the statements. We would advise you not to take the action contemplated.

CHAS. E. W.—In our opinion the heirs can hold the 1927 crop for the balance of the $200 rent due. A is, however, entitled to claim the $35 for repairs. A is also entitled to possession of B's farm implements, and if necessary can file a replevin suit for them.

J. V.—There may be a record of your birth in the country where you were born. Inquire of the Consulate of that country. When you are 21 years old you can take out your first naturalization papers. Apply at the Naturalization Bureau, in the Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets.

SALLY R. G. — You should inquire of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, in the Liberty Central Trust Building, for full information regarding the sending of hose to Ireland. (2) It would not help you would receive a child's share of his estate, regardless of his will. However, his insurance would be paid to the beneficiaries named in the policies.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

TOM.—You should be examined by a physician, as nothing short of an operation would relieve the condition you describe. It is possible that when the adhesions are relieved the stomach trouble will disappear.

THANK YOU.—Offensive breath is caused from many different diseases. Stomach diseases are one of the most common causes. You should consult a dentist to determine if the trouble is with the teeth or gums. If it is not, then you should see a physician for a diagnosis of the case.

MRS. P. V.—We urge an immediate and thorough examination in your case. You seem to be suffering from an ulcerated stomach, which may easily lead to cancerous growth if not properly attended at once. You may have an examination made free of charge at the Barnard Skin and Cancer Hospital or by a private physician, as you prefer.

L. M.—A blood test is made for the purpose of discovering any germ or other evidence of disease which may be present. The Wasserman blood test is made for syphilis. When this test registers 4 plus, it means that a maximum degree of syphilitic infection is present and should be having proper treatment for cure and the avoidance of further troubles.

MISS B.—We do not think that eating yeast will develop the bust, but the following mixture should be of benefit. One ounce each of lanoline oil, cocoa butter and oil of sweet almonds. Melt together over a water bath and beat until cold. After removing from fire, lay hot cloths on the breast each night then rub in the mixture gently but thoroughly in a circular direction for about 15 minutes.

A. B. C.—Epilepsy is a disease characterized by periodic loss of consciousness and convulsions. Among the possible causes are nervous disorders, alcoholism, infections, head wounds and syphilis, but the true pathology is not known. The spasm generally begins at the free end of one extremity, and rapidly involves all the muscles of the body. The epileptic cry or groan is heard and the patient falls unconscious. There is first a pallor of the face, which is quickly followed by cyanosis (congestion), frothing at the mouth or nose, vomiting and relaxation of the sphincters may occur. It is hereditary in a sense and only about 2 per cent of the patients recover.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank the minister for his consoling words and sermon in the funeral parlors of the late Mary Scott and pallbearers and all for their sympathy.

MR. AND MRS. A. Z. SHOWMAN. (c)

We wish to extend sincere thanks to our many friends and relatives for their kind consideration and sympathy sh

RETAIL MERCHANDISING SERVICE

An unusual and permanent sales position is available in St. Louis for an experienced man who has sold any line of goods, specialty or merchandising service, such as style, advertising or credit services to retail executives. The organization is a nationally known corporation whose business is expanding rapidly and the man we want must be between the ages of 28 and 40, a university trained man or one who has the equivalent through experience and self-improvement. He must understand the problems of the retail merchant and be able to meet him on his own ground. The above position will be adequate to meet the qualifications we demand. Every cooperation will be extended in training, field assistance and national advertising. Write a full letter, which will be treated in confidence, and an interview will be arranged with qualified persons. Please give phone number. Address Box G-35, Post-Dispatch. (c7)

LAND MEN

Southern California is attracting the land buyers; we are subdividing 12,000 acres into small farms within 10 minutes, paved roads, gas and electricity; every farmer our friend; selling start of 40,000 set prices is lowest in Southern California; good commissions to right organizations. Call or write Mr. Bond, 1201 Bond Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

PERSONALITY PLUS

I want three men this week willing to really work selling a tangible article that will produce from $60 to $100 per week. This is a comparatively new product, made by an old company and is no snap but offers a real opportunity for a future. Picture to the men we select. For essential, see Mr. Smith Monday morning, 1120 Arcade Bldg.

A PERMANENT SALES POSITION

The expansion program of a nationally known organization has created an opening on its sales organization in St. Louis. The man employed will be a university trained man or one who has the equivalent through experience and self improvement, and who has had sales experience in some high-grade specialty. He must be between the ages of 28 and 40, accustomed to meeting mature business executives on their own ground and able to work and study seriously. The connection offers an income commensurate with the qualifications we demand. Preliminary coaching and field training will be given and every cooperation extended in the way of leads from national and local advertising. Write a full letter which will be treated in strictest confidence, and if you qualify an interview will be arranged. Please give your phone number. Box G-36, Post-Dispatch. (c7)

BIG BUSINESS

Our sales are six times larger than last year, the biggest business we have had for seven years. Our salesmen are making big money, $900 to $1800 a month, because they are selling land adjacent to the huge General Electric plant, the best real estate investment we have ever known in 20 years in business in St. Louis. We furnish salesmen with real leads; about half of them result in sales; some salesmen average 80%. If you have a successful record as a specialty salesman in any line and you are now making less than $1000 a month, you are robbing yourself. Seven or our men recently quit jobs paying $25 to $75 a week to come with us and are now making five to ten times that much. Come in and talk it over any day between 11 and 1.

THE GREAT WAR'S STRANGEST STORY

How Two French Women, Madame Belmont-Gobert and Her Daughter, Hid a British Soldier in a Wardrobe, in Territory Occupied by the Germans Throughout the Whole War.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

THE Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House is packed to its walls. This audience, a cosmopolitan one, what with its dark faces of France and its several consulate gentlemen wearing their decorations of countries large or small that flung their arms to the aid of the Entente those 13 years ago—this audience, cosmopolitan though it is, remains essentially British.

On the platform fronting this magnificent room are some half-hundred people, dignitaries of high degree. The Lord Mayor of London, rich in his robe of velvet and fur, his gold chain of office hanging from his shoulders and looped across his breast, sits in his position of host, as it is fitting he should as resident of the Mansion House. Near him is M. de Fleuriau, French Ambassador to Britain, his white beard and the thin white edging of his waistcoat in sharp contrast to his flowing black tie and waistcoat and morning coat. Not far away are Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, risen from the ranks to the highest place in Britain's army, Lady Robertson, Viscount FitzAlan, Lord Burnham, Sir Charles and Lady Wakefield, Major F. V. and Mrs. Drake. And amongst these are four women, simply dressed in black, upon whose breasts, in bright relief, shine the Crosses of the Order of the British Empire.

These women have understood nothing of the brave words that have been said by the Lord Mayor; this language is not theirs, for they are from across the channel in France. These four women are as plain and simple as the old oak wardrobe that so incongruously stands upon the platform in company with all this rank and splendor, but which incongruously again, like them seems to be the very heart and soul of this procedure. One of these women of France, an old lady, wrinkled and white, occasionally glances toward a little man who seems just a bit embarrassed, a man whose face tells he came from that part of the empire that is called Ireland.

The Lord Mayor arises, proceeds to the platform's edge and reads from a great sheet of illuminated parchment. "Hear! Hear!" rings out from old men and schoolboys, from girls and women and men in the uniform of the cavalry.

The Lord Mayor continues to read. "Hear! Hear!" rings out again from the throats of those who waited for hours outside the Mansion House so they might find places in this assembly. Then the Honorable Artillery Company band bursts into the strains of the "Marsellaise," the cheering rises to a roar, the band pauses a moment and hurls forth the strains of "God Save the King," the crowd surges forward and up on the platform, and strives to touch the hands of these four French women, to examine with their fingers the old wardrobe, to say a word to the little Irishman trying to stand at military attention through it all. There is a mad milling about, frantic cheering; at least the visitors from France and the little Irishman and the personages on the platform steal away to another chamber.

All but one—one of these women from France. An old man stands before her. He takes her hands. He says a few words in English, then he stops, for he realizes she does not understand him. He holds her hands a moment longer and his old eyes fill with tears. He drops to his knees and kisses her feet.

On the afternoon of January 15, 1915, three men, cutting wood in a forest at the edge of the village of Bertry in Northern France, were come upon by a figure in the uniform of the Eleventh British Hussars. His khaki was dirty and torn, his chapped face bleeding from the incisions of sharp winter twigs; his skin was drawn tight about his jaws with hunger.

The grayish hordes from the north had swept over this territory of France and in so doing had swept all before them except such occasional strays as this fugitive who had slipped between the straws of the powerful German broom. The British army, the "Old Contemptibles," (Concluded on Page 5)

They Called It "Moral Insanity"

Cultured and Well-to-do Doris Trounson Gardiner, Beautiful English Matron, Must Serve Six Months for Shoplifting Despite the Efforts of Famous Alienists and Neurologists to Save Her.

Her actions aroused the suspicions of an old guard who challenged her.

Mrs. Doris Trounson Gardiner.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

LONDON.

SOUTHPORT, that quaint British town and summer resort on the Irish Sea, was startled one June morning in 1915 to learn that Doris Trounson, the village belle, had been arrested for shoplifting.

That the tall, lithe, hazel-eyed beauty who had been reared in luxury by an indulgent and wealthy father and pampered by an idolizing mother could be guilty of theft seemed beyond the comprehension of Southport folk, all of whom loved and admired the magnificent Doris.

Nevertheless, it came out finally that Doris could not resist the strange temptation to take goods belonging to others. And now, after twelve years more of mingled adventurous and luxurious life, the former belle of Southport has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment by a distinguished Magistrate in the famed Old Bailey.

"Moral insanity" was the plea set up by counsel for the still beautiful Doris. Leading neurologists, who had coined the phrase, solemnly testified that Doris really was insane in the matter of theft, for the simple reason that she could not control an irresistible impulse to take what did not belong to her.

But the plea failed to move Sir H. F. Dickens, Common Sergeant of the City of London, occupying the bench in the Old Bailey. He declared that, inasmuch as the peculations of Doris had been so persistent and methodical, notwithstanding it was her first appearance before the bar he could not consider her as a first offender, that she must go to jail.

If the spirit of the illustrious father of the committing Judge had at that moment peered into the eerie recesses of the Old Bailey he would, no doubt, have caught another of those unique angles of British wrongdoers that made Charles Dickens in the flesh as well as in spirit famous. For in the myriad court cases covered and studied by the elder Dickens he found much the same backgrounds for the picturization of his characters that still continue to appeal. And by a strange twist of fate, Dickens' sixth son carries on professionally in the daily sifting of human wreckage, though he wields the gavel instead of the pen.

IN THE 12 short years since the day Doris walked into a china shop in St. Anne's Square, Manchester, and surreptitiously and expertly swept three pieces of Crown Derby chinaware into her spacious muff, until she was caught redhanded a few weeks ago rifling a safe deposit box in St. Alban's Place, London, the former Miss Trounson had led an exciting life, both within and without the law.

In little over a decade since she fled her home town, Doris has been married twice, and in both instances to men of means; she has borne two children; entertained lavishly and moved in good social circles. At all times her extravagance has caused gossip. But her reckless expenditures failed to deplete her purse, and at no time, so far as Scotland Yard has been able to ascertain, was she forced by necessity to steal.

And at no time did the fair and stately Doris stoop to petty larceny. Being lofty in her demeanor, she likewise sought "big game" in her thieving. One of her raids netted her $60,000, the police estimate, and the job in St. Alban's Place would have enriched her by $2000, had she been able to get away.

Trounson's drapery shop in Southport was patronized only by the wealthy and the beaux of the district, and from the time Doris had turned 14 her brunette beauty was the target for eyes in every walk.

When greater fortune smiled upon Pater Trounson and he became a Magistrate and County Squire, Doris made her debut. Plans were under way for her presentation at court when fate stepped in, in the person of Jack Holden, and the program was shattered.

HOLDEN, son of a prosperous manufacturing chemist in the Manchester district, was a youth of promise and wealth, and a sportsman. His salmon-pink racing motor car, a birthday gift from his father, was known in almost every shire in Britain. Doris Trounson was nineteen when Holden espied her on one of her daily walks, and before many days the young couple had become so well acquainted that Doris occupied a seat beside Holden in his car. Their dashes through the quiet countryside soon became the subject of gossip in various towns as the salmon-pink machine daily broke all traffic and speed laws.

The elder Holdens were opposed to the prospective match, simply because they had other plans for son John. But Cupid was in an impetuous mood and persuaded Jack to disregard parental objection.

The fast and furious courtship was at its height when Jack Holden was made the most miserable man in the kingdom. His idol, the magnificent Doris, had been caught shoplifting in Manchester!

The spectacular tours of the salmon-pink racer ceased. Doris managed to extricate herself from the Manchester mess, because the shopkeeper did not wish to prosecute one so young and beautiful. But the countryside lost track of the ardent lovers.

Doris fled Southport and Holden quit Manchester, and they met in London, where Jack had enlisted for service in the World War. Before he left he gave his future wife power of attorney over his funds. While Holden fought on French soil, Doris, with thousands of pounds at her command, kept the coin of the realm in brisk circulation. Then Holden, wounded, was hurried back to Park Lane Hospital in London for an operation. He survived it, and in 1916 friends in Southport were informed that Doris and Jack had married that June.

In the meantime the elder Holdens had died and left Jack a sizable fortune, and the couple took up their residence in the Grange, near Southam in Warwickshire. Two children were born to the couple before Doris again broke into print.

She reported to the police that the Grange had been entered and that thieves had carried off $15,000 worth of jewels. An insurance company, after due investigation, paid Mrs. Holden her loss in full. But when, four months later, another robbery was reported at the Grange the insurance company refused further to reimburse Mrs. Holden. A month later the enamel safe with the jewelry intact was found in the rear of the house.

By 1925 Holden had tired of the continuous round of social events at the Grange and the extravagance of his wife, and he told her so. A divorce suit charging cruelty was Doris' answer. She brought in reputable witnesses to swear her husband was a chronic dipsomaniac. She won her decree and quit the Grange. And then again Doris, according to police report, started on another lapse. By her charm and personality she so ingratiated herself into the home of a wealthy Scotch family that the head of the house intrusted to her his check book for the payment of accounts. It was not for long, but the police say the once wealthy Scotsman is on the verge of bankruptcy.

Back again in London, the young self-made widow was destined for a second matrimonial adventure.

Lesly Gardiner, son of Sir Robert Gardiner, a young lawyer of brilliant promise and wealth, wooed Doris, and in November, 1925, the one-time belle of Southport stepped from the chapel door as Mrs. Gardiner.

Established once more in a magnificent home, with ample funds, Doris resumed her life of luxury and extravagance. The couple seemed superbly happy and moved in the best circles.

YET before a year had elapsed Doris engaged in another adventure, involving the fatal theft that abruptly terminated her spectacular career.

In October, last, Mrs. Gardiner entered the safe deposit room of the Pall Mall Forwarding Company in St. Alban's Place, London, and gathered up a suit case, a dressing bag and other articles valued at $2000. Her actions aroused the suspicions of an old guard, who challenged her.

Doris, trapped, pleaded that she was a married woman and that the disgrace of exposure would ruin her husband. But the clerk retorted that he too was married and that to permit her to leave would place his position in jeopardy. He called in the police.

Scotland Yard then took a hand in the case. Investigation revealed that only a short time before Mrs. Gardiner had made a raid on a safe deposit room in Motcomb Street, and had stolen a case belonging to the Hon. Eileen O'Brien containing gems and other valuables worth $60,000.

The Manchester affair was recalled. With three well-authenticated cases against the prisoner, the past life of pretty Doris Trounson, former belle of Southport, was a well-thumbed story by the time her case was called for trial in the Old Bailey.

Young Gardiner's entire wealth was mobilized for the defense. Every article pawned by Doris was redeemed where tickets could be found, and in other instances the lawyer-husband saw to it that persons who had suffered financial loss through his wife's misdeeds were reimbursed. But he could go no further—except in a medical way.

IN THE eyes of the law, beauty and frailty counted for naught, and unless proven otherwise Mrs. Gardiner was a thief. Britain's most eminent alienists and neurologists were employed by the devoted spouse in an effort to show that his wife was not responsible for her misdeeds.

The experts agreed, after minute investigation and study, that the young woman was a victim of perverse impulses, and testified that Mrs. Gardiner was under the sway of "moral insanity." But the Judge, after commenting on the newest psychiatric phrase, said:

"If I treated this prisoner as a first offender there might be grounds for suspicion that one law existed for the rich and another for the poor. While I pity this woman from the bottom of my heart for the condition she is in, I cannot treat her offense as anything but a bad case of theft. With regret I send her to prison for six months in the second division."

The gay, reckless and still beautiful Doris, former toast of Southport, collapsed as the sentence was imposed. Her sable coat and silken raiment trailed in the dirt and grime of London's underworld, left by the common culprits who had preceded her. And the wardresses carried her unconscious to her cell.

But even if the "moral insanity" plea failed in the case of Doris Trounson Holden Gardiner, it is likely to be heard in future court trials in Britain and in America as well.

THE DO RAC

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

EIGHT glass doo along the front the starting b fly upward a n eight greyhoun hurl themsely forth in a delirfu of speed—one d from each door. Is night, but t glare of electric lights ranged abo the track shows vividly the leapi forms of the animals and their sa colored little blankets.

For half of a tumultuous mome the dogs are bunched—a seethi group of slender, lithe forms whi suggests a billowing wave as they po eagerly onward. Then, in the mad pa set by the leaders, they begin to stri out and the numbers on their blank come into view.

A little way ahead of them a m made rabbit careers wildly along on track, propelled by a motor which concealed behind boarding. The m tor whines, wheels behind the boa ing rumble, anybody can see that it all a clumsy swindle on the dogs. B their chase only grows more furio

The course is shorter than the trac on which horses and their jocke compete, only a quarter of a m around. And because this brings race so much closer to the specta and because he probably loves d anyway, it seems to him just then t there couldn't possibly be anything four legs faster than these whirlw greyhounds.

The torrent of dogs surges arou the track. You must be alert ab keeping your eye on them or the r will be finished before you know Now one of the hounds flashes arou the last turn and into the stretch. perhaps two or three dogs burst i the straightaway about together, some of the races are very close.

Oblivious of the roaring crowd, the winner gleams for a moment before the judges' stand and has passed, to be followed by other swift-moving phantoms. The race is over, officially, but for the dogs it does not end until the rabbit suddenly swerves to the right and di pears behind the boarding. The tr ers are waiting at the "escape," a is called, for most of the greyhou must now be extricated from a pil excited dogflesh at the spot where rabbit was seen last.

IN THE eyes of the law, beauty and frailty counted for naught, and unless proven otherwise Mrs. Gardiner was a thief. Britain's most eminent alienists and neurologists were employed by the devoted spouse in an effort to show that his wife was not responsible for her misdeeds.

The experts agreed, after minute investigation and study, that the young woman was a victim of perverse impulses, and testified that Mrs. Gardiner was under the sway of "moral insanity." But the Judge, after commenting on the newest psychiatric phrase, said:

"If I treated this prisoner as a first offender there might be grounds for suspicion that one law existed for the rich and another for the poor. While I pity this woman from the bottom of my heart for the condition she is in, I cannot treat her offense as anything but a bad case of theft. With regret I send her to prison for six months in the second division."

The gay, reckless and still beautiful Doris, former toast of Southport, collapsed as the sentence was imposed. Her sable coat and silken raiment trailed in the dirt and grime of London's underworld, left by the common culprits who had preceded her. And the wardresses carried her unconscious to her cell.

But even if the "moral insanity" plea failed in the case of Doris Trounson Holden Gardiner, it is likely to be heard in future court trials in Britain and in America as well.

THE LIFE OF A DOG RACER

THE Greyhound Meet Has Become One of the Big Sports, With Many Women Among the Owners —The Toilsome but Exciting Business of Racing Dogs.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

EIGHT glass doors along the front of the starting box fly upward and eight greyhounds hurl themselves forth in a delirium of speed—one dog from each door. It is night, but the glare of electric lights ranged about the track shows vividly the leaping forms of the animals and their gay-colored little blankets.

For half of a tumultuous moment the dogs are bunched—a seething group of slender, lithe forms which suggests a billowing wave as they pour eagerly onward. Then, in the mad pace set by the leaders, they begin to string out and the numbers on their blankets come into view.

A little way ahead of them a man-made rabbit careers wildly along on its track, propelled by a motor which is concealed behind boarding. The motor whines, wheels behind the boarding rumble, anybody can see that it is all a clumsy swindle on the dogs. But their chase only grows more furious.

The course is shorter than the tracks on which horses and their jockeys compete, only a quarter of a mile around. And because this brings the race so much closer to the spectator and because he probably loves dogs anyway, it seems to him just then that there couldn't possibly be anything on four legs faster than these whirlwind greyhounds.

The torrent of dogs surges around the track. You must be alert about keeping your eye on them or the race will be finished before you know it. Now one of the hounds flashes around the last turn and into the stretch. Or perhaps two or three dogs burst into the straightaway about together, for some of the races are very close.

Oblivious of the roaring crowd, the winner gleams for a moment before the judges' stand and has passed, to be followed by other swift-moving phantoms. The race is over, officially, but for the dogs it does not end until the rabbit suddenly swerves to the right and disappears behind the boarding. The trainers are waiting at the "escape," as it is called, for most of the greyhounds must now be extricated from a pile of excited dogflesh at the spot where the rabbit was seen last.

THE thrills of dog racing, which in the last two or three years has risen to the status of a major sport, are shared by the public and the owners of dogs. But the careful preparation for a meet, where perhaps 500 or 600 dogs will be assembled, is a matter not so well known.

The owners include both men and women and some of them have many thousands of dollars invested in their kennels. The life they lead is different from that of any other business in the world. They must buy and train the dogs, move from one meet to another. In some instances by automobile, with the dogs in a trailer, and use daily care about the diet, exercise and housing of the animals upon whose fleetness their livelihood depends. Some owners stay among their dogs in a camp or farmhouse near the track, others take a furnished apartment in town while a trainer stays with the dogs.

The life has some resemblances to that of racehorse owners, but with enough differences to set the dog owners apart and in a class by themselves. One point is the money. There are racing greyhounds which cannot be bought for $5000, it is said, yet promising young dogs may be had for a few hundred dollars and puppies for much smaller sums. The smaller expense of dog racing, in purchase, care and transportation, opens the sport to people of limited means.

An ailing dog, or a special favorite of the owner, may spend the night in his master's bedroom or even on his bed. He may be taken in the auto for an airing, and he probably will clamber about the person of his owner every chance he gets. None of these things occur in the life of a race horse. The dog owners think that they get more real fun out of the sport than the horse owners do. And having, as a rule, more animals, the dog owners enjoy the additional excitement of being in more races. But, like many other kinds of fun, dog racing involves plenty of hard work.

"It is more trouble to get a dog ready to race than it is to train a horse," said Charles R. Sterling, a leading figure in the sport and most successful owner at the spring meet at the Madison Kennel Club, across the river from St. Louis.

STERLING owns the dog Ballyknockin, for which, he says, he has refused $5000, and also Suir Side, Wasteful Girl, winner of the Derby at Madison last year, and Pride of Kerry, each of them valued by Sterling at between $4000 and $5000. He has about 45 other greyhounds, the majority of them now at his breeding kennels at Clay Center, Kansas. He brought 17 dogs to the Madison meet and has three men working for him all the time.

"Dog racing is just getting started, in my opinion," says Sterling, who has been interested in rabbit coursing for 20 years and has been racing dogs for seven years. "The races are held in the evening of week days, when people who are busy during the day can attend. People like to bet on dogs. Nobody is riding a dog. He is going it by himself and the best he can. A dog runs truer to form than a horse. Horses can be pulled and dogs stopped, but it happens only very rarely. I believe that today horse races are on the level, too. I know that the dog tracks wouldn't stand for much reversal of form. The dogs which are to run must be turned over to the track officials at half past 6 o'clock in the evening, and are locked up until they go to the track.

Caretaker, owned by Arch De Geer.

"I like the sport because I'm fond of dogs and like to handle and train them, although I never hunted. I like the excitement of racing and of matching my dog against somebody else's dog. The dog owners have their fat days and their lean days. Without that it would not be a gamble but a sure thing and no fun, like shooting craps for nothing. I like moving about from one part of the country to another. I ship my dogs by rail and drive to the next track.

"YOU have your favorite dogs, of course. Any dog that you take good care of will be fond of you. Greyhounds are high-strung animals and must be handled accordingly or you won't get any results. Will I keep on with racing? Sure. The chief difference between the crowds at the horse races and at the dog races is that the crowd at the dog races is larger."

Sterling is one of the owners who operate on a large scale. Last year he was out of racing for about four months while he went on a trip to Ireland to buy dogs. He brought back 13 of the Irish hounds, which he prefers to all others. During the remainder of the year he took in $28,000, of which approximately half was paid out again. He remarked that an owner of good dogs could get by on the purses won, but that owners usually back their own dogs, if they think the dogs have a good chance to win.

At Madison, for example, the purses for the five-sixteenths of a mile are as follows: First, $105; second, $52.50; third, $17.50, a total of $175 for the race. The total of the purses for all the races is $1310 a night.

Like all the other dog owners, Sterling finds that his worst foes are distemper and pneumonia. Once in five weeks he lost seven dogs, the aggregate value of which he estimated at between $4000 and $5000.

MR. and MRS. ERNEST RHINE, of Miami, Florida, travel about the country in a big automobile, shipping as many of their 20 dogs as they are going to use. They employ three men. Mrs. Rhine owns Lady Splinters and Oakland Cal, and races them under her own name. Their dog, Uproar, won the John E. Miles trophy at Madison on May 7. Rhine formerly was in the taxicab business, but has been racing dogs for three years.

"The expense will average $1 a day for each dog, outside of traveling expenses and the owner's living expenses," said Rhine. "The dollar will include the food for the dog, medicine, eggs, bedding and attendance. With a short meet and a long layover, you can see what happens to the owner.

"I never have made anything which I could call a profit. There are several reasons for it. We get attached to dogs and don't sell them, yet a dog usually is about done when five years old. They should be two years old before they run, and are at their very best when three. You can buy a pretty good young dog for $300 or $350. The last one we bought was two years old and cost $400. The last imported dog cost us $500, including duty and other expenses.

"Most of our good dogs we have lost. Greyhounds are hard dogs to keep in shape. Being so highly bred, they die easily from distemper or pneumonia. I never saved but one dog from distemper. They will be up and running around and the next day be down again. At Miami I imported three dogs from England. They got pneumonia and lived only a week, in spite of the best care of a veterinary. It doubles the worth of a pup if he has had distemper. I spent $10,000 in buying dogs last year.

"GOOD dogs make money for you. A year ago this spring our Red Concern won the $2000 Derby prize at Miami and other purses which made his winnings for the season total $3000.

"The best dogs in England can't be bought. They belong to Lords and Earls, who care nothing about selling any of their dogs and who won't sell their best. G. R. Wohlauf of Tulsa, Oklahoma, offered $5000 for a dog named My Jim, belonging to Lord Mayo, and had even paid 60 guineas to the trainer, but Lord Mayo would not permit the sale."

Rhine told about several dogs which in races have kept ahead of the rabbit, showing how much they are fooled by it. Mrs. Rhine recalled that Lady Splinters at first was even afraid of it. One day at Shreveport Lady Splinters inspected the rabbit as it stood motionless, sniffed carefully and then turned and walked away with a bored look. In a race there she kept half a length ahead of it most of the way.

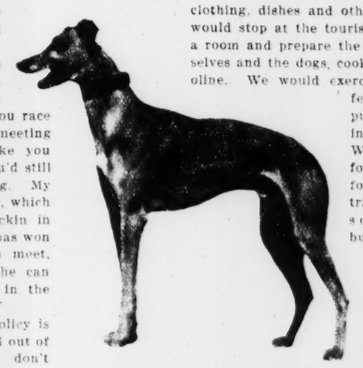
"Dogs have more sense than people give them credit for," said Rhine. "Lots of them learn that they are out there, not to chase the rabbit, but to win. Mary Myall, owned by the Malcolm Dennis kennel of California, and Sunny Concern, owned by F. C. Lawman, never win races by more than a head. They are as shrewd in maneuvering as good jockeys and never have cared anything about the rabbit."

The oldest dog now running on the tracks, said Rhine, is Louie L., belonging to Karl Parrott of Miami. Eight years old this spring, he has been winning races on every track and has beaten many good young dogs.

Arch De Geer of Coffeyville, Kansas, probably has raced more greyhounds than anybody else in the United States. He has been active at coursing meets since 1918 and went into racing at Tulsa in the spring of 1921, where he won the first dog Derby in this country and was high purse man. He said:

"I remember that they posted placards in Tulsa, reading like this: 'Smoky Hill Buck, winner of Tulsa Derby. Behave Yourself, winner of Kentucky Derby.'

"After that meet, racing went better for a while, then got plenty rough, and only in the last two years has it been good. I used to sell a lot of dogs. I'd buy one for $100, train him and sell him for $500. Now it pays better to keep the dog and race him. If you race him for one meeting he might make you $1000, and you'd still have your dog. My dog, Caretaker, which beat Ballyknockin in a match race, has won $1800 at this meet, and I'll bet she can beat any dog in the United States."



Uproar, owned by Ernest Rhine.

De Geer's policy is to keep cleaned out of dogs which don't make money. At present he owns 11 dogs and says that it costs $125 a week for the expenses of himself, trainer and dogs, exclusive of transportation.

"I've had better success with English dogs than with Irish," he remarked. "Yet it's a gamble. I've paid $800 for a dog from Lord Dewar's kennels, and sold that dog for $250. Once at Coffeyville I had 32 dogs, and in about six weeks I lost 28 of them from distemper and pneumonia. In the last five racing seasons I've lost between 35 and 40 dogs—not pups but racing dogs. If you've got a heart for racing such things won't slow you up.

"I'll stay in the sport as long as there are greyhounds. I love the dogs and enjoy the races, and it is a good money-making proposition. I like to be around a racing crowd, for most of them are good, jolly people. St. Louis is the best town on the greyhound circuit, in attendance and in betting. Cincinnati comes next and Miami third."

As one of the most exciting events he ever saw at a race, De Geer told about the exploit of Sunburn, which had been his dog but then belonged to Sterling. At Tulsa, six years ago, Sunburn was knocked down at the first turn, was trampled on by two other dogs and rolled over three times. When he got going again he was 25 lengths behind the others, but at the turn into the stretch he got to the front and won the race. The crowd went crazy over such pluck. Sunburn paid 3 to 1.

"If you are sitting on a chair to which a racing dog is tied and the telephone rings, look out!" warned De Geer. "In the paddock they become trained to the muzzle bell and the post bell, and after that the ringing of any bell will excite them. Your chair will go flying."

HIPPOLYTE DE BERNARD of St. Louis, a Frenchman with a title, went into dog racing after he had been a singer in grand opera, an assistant to Jean de Reszke, the famous tenor, and a successful music teacher in St. Louis. Among his dogs is Reigning Regent, which in 19 times in the Madison meet was out of the money twice and ran third only twice. Other dogs in his kennel include Spalding Bowser, Happy Sweep, Laughing Jack and Spalding Bard. The latter is the only Waterloo purse winner ever imported from England. His time for the quarter-mile is 24 2-5 seconds, while track records vary from 25 1-5 to 25 2-5 seconds.

"With the early rising and the exercise that you get in exercising the dogs, it is a healthy life," said De Bernard. "It has golf whipped. I'm having a good time and making a profit. Why shouldn't I like dog racing?"

Fred Smith used to run a garage at Covington, Kentucky. Because of ill health he wanted to get into some other business, and two years ago he bought some dogs. Now he and Mrs. Smith and the children drive in their sedan from one meet to another—but they ship the dogs. They have done so ever since last fall, when they carried 11 dogs in a trailer from Madison to Miami.

John Smith, then 15, sat inside the trailer with a whip to keep the dogs from fighting. If something went wrong, he pulled a cord which worked a signal on the front of the trailer. The signal could be seen through the rear window of the sedan. Two more dogs were in the sedan.

"It was an awful trip," said Smith. "You've got to carry a whole lot of junk on a trip like that. Besides our three children there was baggage, clothing, dishes and other stuff. We would stop at the tourist camps, rent a room and prepare the food for ourselves and the dogs, cooking with gasoline. We would exercise the dogs, feed them and put them back in the trailer. We spent $270 for gas, oil and food on the trip. We saved some money, but it wasn't enough for the trouble."

The training of a greyhound for the races is begun with coursing live rabbits, most of which get away from the dogs. The prairies of Kansas and Nebraska are favorite places for this work. The dogs are taken out two at a time and can always "kick up a jackrabbit."

THE daily routine includes a four-mile walk in the morning and two miles in the evening, with four or five dogs to a man. Every morning the dogs are rubbed and brushed, their toenails looked after and the feet inspected for sore places. Two or three times a week every dog is "sprinted" for 100 yards; that is, one man walks ahead for that distance and calls to the dog.

Sometimes there is a light breakfast, but as a rule the dogs are fed only once in 24 hours, late enough to be after the races. An average meal includes two pounds of raw hamburger, mixed with bread, barley porridge and dog biscuit, or perhaps some vegetable, to a total of three pounds. Greyhounds are known as "big feeders," and they get practically all they want.

At the track the young dog is taught to "break the box," which means getting out of the starting box quickly. For a greyhound to be a "fast breaker" is highly desirable. Again and again the glass door is yanked upward and the dog praised or scolded, according to his speed. The example of well-trained dogs is helpful. Some dogs take much schooling to come out quickly. Others never learn it.

Scattered from Miami to Chicago and Butte, Montana, and from New Orleans to Toledo and Charleston, West Virginia, are a dozen dog tracks affiliated with the International Greyhound Racing Association and using the mechanical rabbit invented by the late O. P. Smith. Numerous other tracks, including the one which opened recently at Ramona Park, St. Louis County, use a different kind of rabbit.

The "Candy Kid's" Spectacular RISE TO FAME

The Stock Markets Have Been Jesse Livermore's Hunting Grounds Since He Was Seventeen—And He Can Now Afford a $91,000 Jewel Robbery.

By JULIUS KLEIN

THE "Candy Kid" started selling stocks in New York. He never made a mistake. Well, there never should be a mistake, for he was all familiar there are brokers and all complications, and he always watched his ticker and tape in case.

That was in definition. What is first needs were a ticker and ten years a millionaire. He probably knew some brokers, probably not a good one of it. But when a man is a tape-hound or tape-in love with it, it will find ways of immediately to Fourth and Pine streets. Those men he knew of the market things. There were the one and little one, and two of thirteen, a few straightforward. Jesse was a seer of them in Pine directly opposite to Hathaway Brokerage.

There were notable market shops and here were others that didn't—to-day it is impossible to recall. Some of them will run your money when you have a falling others were not a affair. As a be majority of such places you pitted your skill against the house, you bet the market was going up or down, and if you were right you collected a certain amount of money. If you were wrong the house collected your money. Sometimes the bucket shop would "lay off" your bet by placing it with a larger house, but usually it "played it by ear," and if you were right for a time you were paid off, but if you were wrong for long you were cleaned out.

Jesse Livermore's ancestry is in dispute. Some say he was born in Vermont, others in Massachusetts. He himself is authority for the statement that he was born in Shrewsbury, Mass., on July 26, 1877. His father was a farmer, and Jesse was the youngest of seven children. He went to the district school until he was fourteen years old, when he announced that he was going to Boston to get a job in a brokerage office. His parents objected, but he was determined, and finally they gave in.

He got a job as quotation boy with the firm of Paine, Webber & Co., at $5 a week. He was delighted with the job, for he was fascinated by the ticker. He was a quick learner, and it was not long before he was promoted to be a customer's man. He was then getting $10 a week, and he began to speculate on his own account. He was successful from the start, and he was soon making more money than he was getting in salary.

He decided that he could make more money in Wall Street than in Boston, so he went to New York and got a job with the firm of Hornblower & Weeks. He was then seventeen years old, and he was getting $20 a week. He was a quick learner, and he was soon making more money than he was getting in salary.

ber dropped the ring in his pocket. He grabbed Mr. Aronsohn's wrist. On Mr. Aronsohn's wrist was a platinum watch, diamond set, cost, $1000.

"Oh, Harry," Mrs. Aronsohn moaned, "they're going to take your lovely watch."

Aronsohn nodded.

Whereupon the spokesman robber said: "Oh, well, madam, don't cry, Harry can have his watch." And tossed the watch back on the pillow.

THE uninvited guests then informed the Aronsohns it would be necessary to lock them in. The robbers suited the action to the word. Then they made their exit in the manner they arrived; they picked up their ladder and took it around the house to where Mr. and Mrs. Livermore slept. They crawled up to the Livermore room.

Again they talked nicely; again they showed their gallantry. They took a ring from Mrs. Livermore's hand; they returned it to her when she cried. They took a ring from Mr. Livermore's hand; they gave it back to him at his wife's request. They took $200 in cash from the dresser; they took Livermore's $1000 watch and fob; they took a diamond ring. They drew a string of sapphires worth $80,000 out of a dresser drawer. They returned it when Mrs. Livermore told them it was worth to her 10,000 times what they could get for it, the dearest thing her husband ever gave her.

"I just can't bear to lose it," she said.

"Catch," said one of the robbers, and he tossed it to her.

And the aristocrats of the underworld departed down their ladder. They walked across the lawn to the garage of the house next door, got into an automobile—they neglected to ask the owner's permission—and drove away.

A few days later the police arrested one Arthur Barry, alias Gibson, at Ronkonkomma, Long Island. Barry, alias Gibson, is 28. With him, at his country house at Ronkonkomma was a woman 20 years his senior. The pair were living there as Mr. and Mrs. Gibson. They were looked upon as worthy folk. When they were arrested some $15,000 in jewels were found in the lady's possession.

Barry admitted he had robbed the Livermores. He was accompanied, he said, by a gentleman who rejoices in the name of "Boston Billy" Williams. Barry told the police he and his gang had stolen about $1,000,000 in jewels in the last five years.

The police have been making arrests and recovering jewels ever since.

given this area of France to defend, had stayed the enemy attacks as long as they could, then, outnumbered and beaten, they had retreated, leaving their cavalry to cover their rear.

Now this part of France was in the hands of the enemy. German soldiers were billeted in the people's homes. German officers made the law which German troopers enforced. Northern France was part of the Kaiser's domain and the man found wearing the uniform of France or England in those parts was an enemy soldier in enemy country. If he did not surrender, he was regarded as a spy, and the portion of such was death.

The dirty, bleeding creature wearing the uniform of Britain's 11th Hussars was an Irishman named Patrick Fowler, a cavalryman of the regular army who had been in the service for nearly twenty years. When the British retreat began, in late August, 1914, after the battle of Le Cateau, Fowler's troop had been one of the many ordered to hold off the onrushing Germans while the rest of the Army withdrew. This troop of Fowler's had been surrounded by a German cavalry squadron; Lieutenant Drake, commanding the small British unit, had ordered his men to scatter and save themselves as best they could.

With two other Hussars, Fowler made his way across the country. A few nights later, stealing into a town, they found themselves back in Le Cateau. They found succor in the home of a citizen, and there they stayed for a long time. Then their host became frightened with his guests, he was afraid the enemy would discover he was hiding British troopers, and the three men went on their way again. Not long after that these soldiers decided it would be best for each man to make his way alone. For weeks Fowler wandered around the country, striving to get to St. Quentin. By day he hid wherever a relatively safe hiding place offered itself, by night he made his way. So, after months of stealth and exposure and privation, had Trooper Fowler suddenly come upon this little group of Frenchmen gathering wood.

THERE were Germans everywhere, it was not safe for Fowler to be in the open. One of these woodcutters, Louis Basquin, once a French soldier, but now unfit for service, took Fowler to a nearby haystack, hid him in it, and told the Trooper he would return for him after night fall.

Basquin kept his word. Shortly after dark he returned to the haystack. Then the two men made for the edge of the village, and from there, by way of alleys, to the home of Basquin's wife's mother, the Widow Belmont-Gobert. Madame Belmont-Gobert lived in a four-room cottage, small enough, but still larger than Basquin's home, which was too small to provide the soldier hiding. With the widow lived an unmarried daughter, Angele. On the upper floor of their small home 26 Germans were billeted.

That Trooper Fowler was to be taken to the home of Madame had been prearranged. The widow understood the danger, so did her daughter. They realized that were a Britisher found in their home it not only meant a firing squad for him, but the same fate, likely, for them. But they did not falter, and when Fowler was quietly brought into their cottage they caught him as he was about to collapse, gave him a seat, and fed him from a hot bowl of soup.

What were they going to do with him? A German or two, sleeping in the rooms above, might any moment decide that a hot pot of coffee would make this war easier, come down to the fire-place in the room where they all sat, and put the kettle on to boil. The patrol might pass the door and nosily stick his head in. Late at night, early in the morning, perhaps. It might be safe for Fowler to be at large in this room; during the day and the early evening it was unthinkable.

WHAT were they going to do with him? He must be hidden. But where? They looked about. There was only one retreat. The old oak wardrobe.

This piece of furniture was five and a half feet long and about as high. Its width measured not more than twenty inches. It was divided in two parts, each with its own door, the right hand side spaced with shelves, the left hand section for hanging clothes. Within these two divisions were separated by a partition. In the clothes closet of this wardrobe, then, Trooper Fowler was to have his hiding place. A piece of bedding was bundled up and placed in the bottom; on this he must arrange himself as best he could. It was a despicable retreat, cramped and stifled. It was the best they had.

Fowler crawled into the wardrobe. He put his back to the partition and eat himself cautiously down upon the bedding. He wormed his knees and feet about until he got them settled in the least uncomfortable position. Madame Belmont-Gobert and her daughter, Angele, whispered many instructions and much advice to him, but he understood only a few words of all they said. Then they closed the door of his closet, and Patrick Fowler, exhausted, fell asleep in the old oak wardrobe that was to be his prison and his refuge for years to come.

The dangerous, precarious days began to unfold themselves. From early in the morning until late at night the prisoner had to remain in his wardrobe except on such rare occasions as when all the Germans billeted above his head were called out to answer some military command. He found regular surcease from his hunched prison only toward midnight and in the early hours of the morning; attempting to arise, then, he would first have to untangle the ball which Trooper Fowler had become, extricate his tingling legs and sleeping feet, try to bring his body back to life and animation. It was then that the Widow Belmont-Gobert or Angele would steal into the kitchen, prepare a hot broth or a steaming stew for him, perhaps on extremely lucky days he'd have a potato with his fare. And, hunkry and thirsty as he was, with the first portion of food greedily in his mouth, there might come a sharp step outside the house, the butt of a rifle would click on the pavement, a rap would sound upon the door. Then the Trooper would run from these dishes he had been thinking of for hours, run back to his hole like a frightened rabbit. Madame would close the wardrobe door behind him, hurry back to the stove and stick her soldier's dishes in the oven, and, blinking her eyes as though this hammering had wakened her from the sleep she was having in her old arm chair, unlatch her door and ask the German sentry what he wanted.

THE figure in the greenish uniform would stick his head in the room, glance around, sniff hungrily at the odor coming from the kitchen, turn on his heel, shoulder his rifle and go marching down the pavement.

Madame would wait for a moment. Then she would go to the window and holding the curtain ever so little aside, watch until she no longer caught his rifle barrel flinting down the street and until she no longer heard the rhythmic tread of his feet.

Then would Fowler be brought forth again, the stew or the broth or the potato would be gathered from the stove and Patris, as the old lady and Angele made of Patrick, would start his meal again. Before he was through he might again be interrupted by that sentry or another, one of the Germans above them might come down to the fireplace to boil a kettle of coffee or to comfortably smoke a pipe—to be interrupted two or three, or even four times, during the progress of one of his hungry feasts was a not unusual occurrence for Patris.

These meals for Patris were so difficult to obtain. The Germans had put the village on rations. The home of Madame Belmont-Gobert was given an allowance of food for two, for Madame and Angele. So it became necessary, now that there was Patris to feed, for the Widow to divide the rations given her into three parts, a difficult business, for the food was barely enough for herself and her daughter.

Now and then a few extras were presented them by a friend or two in the village. A farmer, who knew Madame's secret, sent them potatoes and milk when he could. Angele, who had worked in the town's weaving mill before the Kaiser's army marched in and confiscated the machinery, got to work on her sewing machine and made pieces of embroidery which she sold. With the little money she got in return for her work she bought bits of food for Madame and Patris and herself. It was impossible to hope for aid from the other villagers, for it was not safe for Madame to entrust her secret with too many.

As the days turned weeks and the weeks turned months, Madame and Angele and Fowler became adept at trickery. A semi-circular hole was cut into the partition between the hiding place of Patris and the drawer section. As the door of this latter section was always left open—to give the old wardrobe an air of innocence and nonchalance—it afforded Fowler ventilation through the semi-circular hole.

Through the long days His Majesty's trooper sat himself on his bundle of bedding. Enough Germans to take a machine-gun nest were often within touching distance of him. A sneeze, a hurriedly stifled cough, would have meant discovery and death. But a friend of Madame's, an apothecary who had been told her secret, kept Patris supplied with such medicines as would tend to ease such disturbances.

Often a German who had nothing better to do than be curious would stick his nose in the wardrobe's open door. Then would Madame, her heart quickening, come gently to the rescue. Taking a picture from the top of the wardrobe, she would show it to the enemy. It was the picture of a pretty girl, Madame's daughter, away in Southern France. And as the girl was in Southern France, in far away safety, Madame would launch into an eulogium and eulogy of this daughter's charms, nor did she stint herself in the doing. By the time the Widow had completed her speech, the German long had forgotten why he came toward the wardrobe and tired, and perhaps a little bored, he would stretch his arms, retire to his chair, and shove it a little closer toward the fire.

Each experience of this sort left Madame's nerves a little weaker. It never lessened her courage.

NOR did such adventures weaken Angele's courage or her gayety. Among Fowler's greater troubles was a minor one that at times seemed to assume major proportions. He had nothing to smoke. One day, when all the Germans billeted at Madame's were off on duty, Angele ran upstairs and when she came down she carried a great German pipe. She presented it to Patris, some tobacco was scraped together, and Patris had an enjoyable smoke near the fireplace. Patris continued to smoke that pipe.

It was not long before Madame brought the news to Patris that another British soldier, Corporal Hull, a man of Fowler's own regiment, also was hidden in this same village of Bertry. A meeting was arranged for the two Britishers at midnight. They planned to make for Belgium and once there, for the Holland frontier. It would be a hazardous and difficult journey, they both knew, but so was their present position hazardous and dangerous and difficult, and it continually endangered those who had befriended them.

But the escape was never attempted. A few days later came the news that Corporal Hull's hiding place had been discovered to the enemy, that Corporal Hull had been taken prisoner and his benefactress, Madame Marie Louise Cardon, had been placed under arrest and taken from her three children, that Monsieur Cardon had escaped and none knew where he was. Then came word of the trial of Corporal Hull and Madame Cardon, of their being sentenced to death before a firing squad. And soon it was learned that Hull had been shot as directed by the court-martial and that Madame Cardon's sentence had been commuted to imprisonment and the enemy had shipped her off to Germany.

A GIRL had given Corporal Hull up to the enemy and this same girl told them that another Englishman was rumored to be hiding in Bertry. When this news came to the home of Madame Belmont-Gobert, the widow and Angele and Patrick decided it would not be safe for the Trooper to stay where he was. Madame and Angele scurried about; before long they had found a hiding place for their soldier. Some friends in the commune had agreed to let Patris live for the time in a hole under their barn.

From the home of Madame Belmont-Gobert to the hole under her friend's barn was but a short journey. But every journey Patris took, every time Patris stuck his nose out of Madame's door, was something to be feared and dreaded. Madame got out a dress and a shawl, and in these Patris was arrayed. But he had grown a beard, a condition which did not tend to help his disguise, so over the beard Madame pulled the shawl. One dark night the old Frenchwoman and Patris stole out of her home and away to the barn where Patrick was to take up his temporary lodging. And there Madame left him in the blackness of the night.

For a month His Majesty's Trooper lay in the filth and horror of that damp hole. At times he would crawl out and lay in the hay, sometimes he was visited by Madame and Angele. But for the most part he kept in his hole, his food brought to him in the dark by the Frenchman on whose property he was hiding. At the end of this month, the furor of Corporal Hull's capture and death having somewhat subsided, Maame Belmont-Gobert came for him again one dark night, helped him into the dress, wrapped the shawl about him, and guided him home.

It was difficult enough for Madame and Angele and Patris when things went along in their usual way; their minds and their nerves suffered the torments of hell at best. But continually some new hazard, some unforeseen and not calculated disturbance came to test their courage. Now came an order for Madame to give up her home so the entire cottage might be used for billeting enemy troops. So the old Frenchwoman was forced to move to a cottage of one room with a loft above. This was going to add to Fowler's chances of discovery. "Are you afraid?" the soldier asked her. And always Madame answered, "No, no," and Angele shook her head. There was no place for fear in the hearts of these women, courage had moved in and taken all the space.

SO MADAME and Angele moved a few things to the cottage which had been assigned to them and that midnight Louis Basquin, and Trooper Fowler followed them with the old wardrobe.

Germans were again billeted in Madame's loft. But the new house afforded one advantage for Patris: it was on the outskirts of Bertry, and when the enemy came to make requisitions, when it seemed as though they might do a little searching to be sure they got all they came after, Patris, hearing of their coming, could run out of the door and into the neighboring fields. But this slight advantage of the cottage's proximity to the fields was more than nullified by the dangers engendered by its smallness.

To stir their hearts again came the story of another Englishman, David Cruickshanks by name. This soldier had been concealed in the home of Madame Julie Baudhuin at Le Cateau not far away. He was betrayed and sentenced to die. Then Madame Baudhuin, whose own eldest son had been killed in the war, pleaded so magnificently for this young Englishman, that his sentence was commuted to imprisonment. She, too, was sent to a German prison, and her second son was sentenced to hard labor.

But Madame Belmont-Gobert, growing old now in a manner abnormal, becoming sick, nervous and at times feeble declared Patris would stay with her until the end, whatever that end might be.

It was now more than three years since that cold January night when Hussar Fowler first took up his abode with the Widow Belmont-Gobert. Madame had become an old woman, what with the strain and terror that the presence of her visitor has added to the fear that she felt for France.

One day Trooper Fowler was in his wardrobe. Madame was puttering about in her one room. Upstairs several Germans were sleeping. Presently the Trooper heard a stumbling, then a heavy fall. He pushed open the door of the wardrobe. Madame was unconscious on the floor. She had fallen there in a nervous collapse. Fowler jumped from his retreat and ran to her. He picked her up and put her on the bed. Then he worked with her until consciousness returned. If a German in the loft above had taken the notion to come down at that time, it would have been bad for Madame and her soldier.

Madame's illness continued. Again and again she fell into these collapses. Fowler had aged, too. His hair had become white, his face told the story of his hard adventure. Confined so much to his wardrobe, unable to gain any exercise except that which he got by swinging a pair of heavy sticks late at night, sickness had come upon him.

The summer of 1918 had turned to autumn. Rumors came to the villagers of Bertry that the enemy was losing ground. One morning Fowler, perched in the loft of Madame's cottage, saw the German Headquarters coming back. He watched, and saw it proceeding through Bertry. It kept going on toward the rear. Trooper Fowler was too old a soldier not to know what that meant.

Then the order came for the townspeople to leave the village. Madame Belmont-Gobert and Angele were among those who refused to go, and Patris stayed with them. It was believed there would be fighting in Bertry, and as Madame's cottage had no cellar, the three of them found refuge in the cellar of a neighboring house. They spent the next two days there.

Suddenly the quiet of Bertry is pierced by shouts and screams and cheers. Everyone in Bertry is in the street. "The English, the English!" The Germans have evacuated Bertry and British cavalry is entering almost on their heels.

Trooper Fowler, sick, bearded, emaciated, his hair turned white, dressed in his khaki rags, runs into the street. He seems to go mad. "Soldats anglais?" he cries, and begs to know where they are. Round the corner of the street swings a troop of cavalry, Canadians. Behind them comes the Sixty-sixth Division of the South African Scottish.

Fowler dashes to the first man, a Sergeant, and shouts, "I'm English! English!" The sergeant looks at him and says "You look like a perfectly good spy to me." He orders his men to arrest Fowler, a file closes about him, they march him off down the road to the new corps headquarters in the next village. Fowler begs his guards to believe him. They keep him marching.

On on they march, their prisoner entreating, the escort paying him no heed. Suddenly Fowler breaks his file, he runs off the road and toward a house where a British Major is standing. Fowler's guard streams after him, but Fowler keeps ahead of them. The Major, who back in August, 1914, as a Lieutenant, commanded a troop of the 11th Hussars in this same district, swings around to see what all this rumpus is about.

Trooper Fowler, panting, runs straight toward him. "Mister Drake, Sorr," this ragamuffin soldier shouts, "Mister Drake, Sorr!" Major Drake gives him one swift glance that pierces beard and emaciation, white hair and tattered khaki. "Fowler!" says the Major, "where have you been?"

IN THE Long Parlour of the Mansion House another speaker delivers his luncheon table eulogy on the heroism of Madame Belmont-Gobert, on her daughter, Angele, now Madame Lesur, on Madame Cardon and Madame Baudhuin.

More than $16,000 has been raised for these women in the past few weeks by popular subscription, and they are each to receive a regular annuity from this sum. Old Madame Belmont-Gobert can well use the money. Lately she has been compelled to live in two rooms a general room and a tiny kitchen. She has been sick and ailing. When word came of her plight the officers of the 11th Hussars raised a purse of $200 for her. Then some genius in the British War Office, striving to find some way Madame might be aided officially, discovered that she was entitled to a mess allowance for having kept a British soldier nearly four years. He calculated the amount would be 2044 francs, and it was duly sent to her.

The brave talk continues. The four French women in their black dresses sit silently by, nodding quietly to the questions of their neighbors. Patrick Fowler, no longer a soldier, but now a gardener in the employ of a British officer, sups of such fare as never was awarded Madame and Angele and himself by the enemy.

These four women and this man have suffered much. But their hearts were strong and now they are reaping a reward which must be all the sweeter for their never having anticipated it. They were brave and generous, not for gain, but for humanity and for country. These women and this man are happy today. And Madame Cardon—her happiness might be enhanced in this glorious hour if the boy who now lies somewhere near the village of Bertry might, too, be at this table, the boy whose sad-eyed old father a few minutes before dropped to his knees and kissed her feet.

University of Michigan Expedition Will Set Up Weather Stations on Greenland Ice Cap to Flash Warnings When Icy Hurricanes Start on Their Way Toward Europe.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

EQUIPPED with a formidable array of scientific devices for laying bare the secrets of the wind gods, an expedition from the University of Michigan, headed by Professor William Hobbs, noted geologist, will journey to the coldest spot on earth this summer to hunt in their lair the great storms of Europe and the North Atlantic.

On the great dome-shaped ice cap of Greenland, where perpetual winds sweep downward toward the sea they will set up a number of weather observation posts to remain in operation for a year. By keeping a close watch on the volume and intensity of cold air currents, they will try to learn to detect storms as these potential hurricanes and blizzards emerge from the great cradle of storms and, having learned to detect them, they will endeavor to work out a system whereby inhabited lands may be warned of their approach. If they find this device of spying on the weather useful and practicable, establishment of permanent observation posts may then be undertaken to keep the world informed by wireless of what sort of atmospheric disturbances are on the way.

This Greenland expedition, which follows a similar reconnoitering venture led by Prof. Hobbs last summer, comes in line with a widespread revival of interest this year in the Arctic. It perhaps is the principal one of some 20 expeditions now being fitted out for exploration of the Northern wastes, with a variety of purposes in view. Several of these have as their main objective the exploration of the world's largest and most inaccessible unexplored area off the coast of Alaska in the direction of the North Pole, an immense unknown which Captain Roald Amundsen and others have tried at various times to penetrate. The presence of this blank area upon the map has nettled scientists exceedingly, and there appears to be a general feeling that efforts should not be relaxed until it has been charted and some of its mysteries solved.

IN THE opinion of Professor Hobbs, however, no bit of knowledge concerning the Arctic would be of more practical value than knowledge, in advance, of what mighty potions the wind gods are brewing in the Greenland mountains. And, he confidently expects, with weather stations functioning—weather stations connected by short-wave-length wireless communication—forecasts of destructive Atlantic and European storms may be made accurately and the exposed regions warned a few days ahead, with a resultant saving of life and property.

For a considerable time it has been known that Northern storms and Northern icebergs, always dangerous to navigation in the North Atlantic, have their breeding ground in the flat-topped dome of ice which, like a gigantic ice cap, covers the entire island of Greenland, an area 1500 miles long and of an average breadth nearly half as great.

Perched on the mountains of Greenland's interior nearly two miles above sea level, this ice cap, constitutes the most perfect desert, with the exception of the Antarctic ice cap, to be found anywhere on the globe, and it also constitutes the world's coldest region. Unlike the sea ice surface, which is a jumbled collection of grinding, buckling ice floes and hummocks, each too small for an airplane landing field, the Greenland ice cap, except for a narrow and steep marginal zone, is as flat as a ballroom floor and stretches away for hundreds of miles. If one travels on it at all, one travels for days and weeks and sees only the level surface of snow, with no trace of life. Not even the most hardy of Arctic animal or plant life could exist there. The winter temperature of the North Pole, commonly accepted as the last word in chilliness, is mild—even warm—compared to the rigors of this lofty refrigerator, where in midsummer the thermometer hovers around 30 degrees below zero. Indeed, it has been found that in the Arctic seas to the north of Greenland, the winds which come from the North Pole are the warm ones. Those which come sliding down from the heights to the south are the most frigid of the entire frozen zone.

Ralph L. Belknap, Prof. Wm. H. Hobbs and Prof. J. E. Church, from a photograph made on the preliminary expedition to Greenland.

"IT IS this intense cold of the interior area of Greenland," says Professor Hobbs, "which is responsible for the havoc-making storms that issue from its margin. Winds are due to differences of temperature at different places on the surface of the earth. Along the belt of the equator there is, so to speak, a great furnace, and, within this belt the heated air rises and passes off at high levels northward and southward toward the poles. The intensely cold ice caps of Greenland and the Antarctic are by contrast the refrigerators of the earth. Above these the high currents of air which have traveled from the equator are sucked down and drained off as though through a gigantic shaft, and from the bottom of this shaft they are poured out in all directions toward the margins of the ice cap to make their return to the furnace on the equator. Thus a complete circuit is made.

"The mechanism by which this polar refrigerator of Greenland operates is in part, at least, quite simple. As the air immediately over the surface of the cold ice cap is cooled, it contracts and becomes heavier and so slides outward upon the surface of the dome, for the simple reason that a dome everywhere slopes toward its margin. Such a draining off of the air from the ice cap with the indraft above and the downdraft about its axis, is called the Greenland glacial anticyclone, and it constitutes the northern wind pole of the earth, as the Antarctic does the southern wind pole."

Thus explains the weather explorer, outside the ice caps of Greenland and the Antarctic, the weather, at any place may be said to be imported through the agency of the migrating whirls in the atmosphere known as "lows" and "highs", but by contrast the weather over the ice caps may be described in terms now familiar to everyone as "home brew."

IT WAS Admiral Peary who discovered the law of the constant downslope winds over the ice cap when he made his sledge journeys across Greenland in 1886, 1892 and 1895. He noticed with some surprise that, independent of the indications of his barometer, the wind nearly always blew in the direction of the ice cap's slope. If he was climbing a slope the wind was sure to be in his face, and if descending the wind came from behind. The flow of the atmosphere was like that of a liquid rolling by gravity off the dome into the sea. Apparently, the wind blew in all directions from one spot—the summit of the dome. In its descent it sometimes gathered force and swept off across the North Atlantic as a frigid hurricane. Sometimes it spent itself almost by the time it reached the ocean. Professor Hobbs explains this singular behavior as follows:

"We are living in an automobile age," he writes, "and from our experience with inflated tires we all know that air is warmed when compressed and cooled when allowed to expand. As the air on the glacier surface slides downward toward the margin it is compressed and warmed under the increased pressure from overlying air, and when this air, in sliding outward, has attained hurricane velocities it is so rapidly warmed as to stop its own motion, which was due entirely to the fact that it was previously being cooled. That small element of the hurricane which finds its way down to the fjords on the borders of Greenland and is there recorded at the Danish weather stations ends in a brief warm and stifling atmosphere like that characteristic of the "chinook" along the east slopes of the Rocky Mountains, and both are due to the same cause. At the higher levels the storm passes outward with its full velocity. The 'lows,' on their way eastward from the United States to the coast of Europe, if they pass Greenland before the storm has developed over the ice cap, reach Europe in a dying condition because they have expended their whirling energy on the long journey across the Atlantic. If, however, they pass into the neighborhood of Greenland when the storm from the ice cap is in full swing, its energy is poured into the 'low' and transforms it into a storm of a violence commensurate with that of the hurricane over Greenland. The storms which a short time ago caused such losses of life and property and brought American seamen into deadly peril of their lives are examples of what the Greenland anticyclone is capable of engendering."

Such knowledge as now is had of the exact dates when storms have passed outward from the margins of Greenland and of dates of arrival of violent storms in Western Europe indicate that several days are consumed in the sweep across the Atlantic. With observation stations watching for the departure of Greenland storms, Professor Hobbs holds, Europe can be warned by wireless in plenty of time to put it on guard.

The expedition which will go this year to the Greenland ice fields is setting out with full knowledge of where it wants to go, what it wants to learn and how it hopes to learn those particular facts. It has had experience in spying on the weather. It comprises the same group which went to the same region last year on a reconnaissance venture, which was planned as a preliminary to the larger effort of this year. Last summer's journey both to and from Greenland was made on the Guy S. Morrissey, with Captain Robert A. Bartlett as skipper. Bartlett, incidentally, was skipper for Admiral Robert E. Peary on his expedition to the North Pole. It sailed from North Sydney, Nova Scotia, on June 27, and reached Holstenborg, a small fishing settlement on the southwestern coast, just above Davis Strait, on July 6. The expedition returned late in September, after making preliminary meteorological and glaciological studies, surveying routes and preparing maps. Seven men made up the party.

In addition to Prof. Hobbs, who, as director, was to make a study of glacial conditions and in a broad way of the meteorological problems, the group comprised Captain Bartlett, Professor Laurence M. Gould of the geology department of the University of Michigan, who acted as assistant director, geologist and photographer; S. P. Ferguson of the United States Weather Bureau, upper air expert and meteorologist; Professor J. E. Church Jr. of the University of Nevada, meteorologist; Ralph L. Belknap, instructor in geology at the University of Michigan, surveyor and geologist, and P. C. Oscanyan Jr. radio expert.

THE equipment was similar to that which will be carried this year. In fact, much of it was taken to the ice fields and cached for use this summer. Besides meteorographs and other weather recording devices, it comprised surveying instruments, camera, wireless apparatus and 150 pilot balloons for investigation of upper air currents. All this paraphernalia, together with food supplies, the air explorers set off across the coastal belt toward the inland ice, which lies back about 75 miles from the coast. Some 20 miles inland, on the shore of Mallglak Fjord, they set up a permanent camp to serve as headquarters. Camp Little, it was named, after President Little of the University of Michigan. It will serve again as headquarters this year.

From this point, then, Hobbs, Church, Gould and Belknap, with four half-breed Eskimos, started out on July 26 to cross the remaining stretch of tundra to the foot of Otto Nordenskjold Glacier.

"HARDLY had we reached the margin of the inland ice, on tenth day out from Camp Little," Professor Hobbs writes, "when the head Greenlander reported that his supply of food was exhausted. (The four Greenlanders had been required to find their own provisions on the trip.) As we were now forced to feed from our own supplies eight men instead of four, it was necessary for us to reduce our stay on and near the inland ice to a period of four days and returned by forced marches, on reduced rations.

"We first established contact with the inland ice on the outlet tongue which lies northeast of Camp Little, about 65 miles as a crow flies and about 75 miles along the course traveled by us. This outlet was visited by Nordenskjold in 1909, and it is with great pleasure that we have given it the name of Otto Nordenskjold Glacier. It had been the expectation that after making the trek across the broad Holstenborg hinterland we should find the inland ice rising on flatter grades than is elsewhere generally the case, and in this we were not disappointed. Camp Cooley, on the southern margin of the outlet, near its front, is at an elevation of nearly a thousand feet."

This elevation marked the lower reaches of the inland ice field. Sloping back gradually from this 1000-foot level, the ice cap attains a height of 10,000 to 12,000 feet a hundred miles farther toward the frigid interior. And at every step of the way the temperature drops lower. The operations of Hobbs and his associates, therefore, were necessarily restricted to the ice at or near the margin, and on the great glacier tongues pushing their way down the fjords toward the sea. Here for brief periods they kept a watch on the changing weather which they found to be an alternation of calms and blizzards.

The upper air work was carried out mainly at the base of Camp Little, where, after routine had been established, three pilot balloon ascensions were made each day. These pilot balloons, of a diameter of about two and a half feet, carried meteorographs to a height in some cases as great as 8000 meters. They were the first balloon ascensions ever made in or near the ice field.

This year, the expedition plans to set up several other stations and maintain communication between them by means of wireless. All will combine forces to keep a check on atmospheric disturbances which start seaward over the area under observation. By September they hope to have established definitely whether or not these weather watchdogs can save Europe and the navigators of the North Atlantic from some of the ravages of those devastating Greenland storms.

A MAN like I that has got a house full of children or kiddies as the case may be can't help from giving a whole lot of thought to the school question and where to send them to school and etc. and the Mrs. keeps after me to put what some call my mind on the subject and come to some decision and we was talking it over the other night and I said you know it will cost hundreds of dollars to send them anywheres and she says yes but we have got to send them somewheres if only to relieve the congestion at home and if you don't send them nowheres it will cost hundreds of dollars just the same because we will half to hire 7 or 8 policemens to regulate traffic right here in the house because the way it is now you can't walk from one room to another without indulging in football tactics and we could send them to school for the same amt. of money which we would otherwise half to pay out for salary for traffic policemens because traffic policemens and in fact policemens of all kinds is a high salary profession.

Well a little wile after this I was talking to one of the kiddies and I asked him what he wanted to be when he growed up and he said he would like to be a policeman and all of a sudden I had a idear namely that if policemens is such a high salary profession and if the boy wanted to be one of them, why not send him to the N. Y. school for policemens which I had read about same in the papers and, this way you would be killing several birds with one and the same stone, namely get him out of the house, send him to school and learn him a profession which was not only his favorite profession but a profession which the rewards of which is wealth and undying notoriety.

BUT come to find out the school referred to don't take in nobody as young as my little ones and in fact it ain't got no kindergarten or primary grades but was organized by ex-Commissioner Enright of the N. Y. police force to train men that is already policemens to be better policemens and learn common patrolmens to be sergeants, lieutenants and finely captains of police.

It seems they's a lot more to advancing in the police profession than just serving a certain number of yrs. in this or that capacity and unless you show ability and get the right kind of education you will be a patrolman all your life and never a officer. The people that runs the school makes a effort to find out which is the most likeliest pupils and then they give them special training to fit them for officers like the officers training schools in the army.

I was not able to get much information in regards to the courses of study but I presume that one of the first things they try to learn them is to not arrest the wrong man though in greater N. Y. you can't hardly make a mistake and a specially in Brooklyn where pretty near anybody can be arrested with reason and they say that when a policeman, or a pillow of the law as some calls them start dashing down the street in Brooklyn like as if he was after somebody they ain't a man, woman or child that don't skurry to the nearest hiding place.

But once in a wile in the more genteel precincts of the metropolis a dumb blue coat gets it into their head to pinch say a total stranger for beating a woman and find out later that it was his wife and he knowed what he was doing and besides that she liked it, so the city gets sewed for false arrest all because the policeman was too dumb to tell the difference between work and play. The school probably learns you how to distinguish between wifes and women, husbands and friends, petty thiefs and bank messengers and etc. and when the pupil gets so as he can make these distinctions at a glance he is promoted to a sergeant with permission to grow a mustache.

PART of the curriculum is no doubt made up of what is known as hypothetical questions like as follows:

"If you was walking on your beat and a little ways off from you they was a beautiful woman strolling along and dangling a purse in her hand and all of a sudden a tough egg jumped out of the alley and grabbed the purse and run as fast as he could run (1) would you diagnose it as justifiable embezzlement or a mild flirtation and (2) which of the 2 would you chase he or she?"

Or

"Suppose you was standing on Riverside drive and they was a woman and a baby in arms and the woman handed you the baby and asked you would you promise to hold it a wile and you promised, and then the woman throwed herself in the river and was drowning, would you break your promise and drop the baby and jump in and save the woman or would you try and sell the baby a ticket to the Policemens field day at Jamaica?"

But of course the most important courses at the policemens school would half to be language and elocution with gestures. A policeman won't never get nowheres if he can't insult private citizens and insult them so loud and in such novel terms that a big crowd will gather round to cheer. When you can talk rough enough so that you can make a old lady cry with one sentence you are ready for promotion to lieutenant at lease.

One of the other main duties of a policeman in N. Y. now days is to know by instinct just the instant that the public has mastered the latest traffic rules so that he can report to headquarters and get them changed.

These and many other tricks of the trade is learned to pupils in the new school and I only wished they would of left my little boy matriculate as he takes after his mamma and would make a great captain of police.

Arresting the Right Guy Many Tricks to Trade

The RIVAL

By STEPHEN FRENCH WHITMAN

One of the Sixteen Best Short Stories of the Year, Selected by a Representative Group of American Editors.

HE TOLD me this story in the smoking room the last night out from New York. It was long after midnight. The stewards had locked the bar, all the other passengers had gone to bed. We two, in a corner under the only light left burning, talked on while the ship rolled heavily and rain lashed against the windows.

I was sorry that he had kept to himself till now that we had become acquainted only when the voyage was ending. He had been everywhere, had seen nearly everything. He possessed an interesting, mocking point of view, a lazy wit, a fund of sophisticated and sometimes Rabelaisian comment. Beneath all this one could see that he had a passion for beauty, both in art and life.

One affection that we had in common was Italy—and in particular Florence.

His appearance had manner were less American than cosmopolitan. His yellowish, aquiline, sensitive face wore a look of restless intelligence and malice. Now and then, from under his dull eyelids he gave me a curious look of speculation. Then he fell into a dreamy state which ended in some monologue replete with interest.

We had on board a celebrated Englishman devoted to spiritism. This circumstance brought us to the subject of mediumship. My companion looked as if he were going to make a devastating remark, but he hesitated, closed his eyes and once more relapsed into a reverie. Presently, with one of his swift, peculiar glances, he asked me:

"What's your idea about that sort of thing?"

"I don't believe in it."

HE CONSIDERED this declaration without stirring a muscle, but with an effect of sudden, profound activity of mind. His slightly jaundiced eyes, all at once alive and keen, darted speculative glances at about me, then veiled themselves again. The ship plunged along with a rhythmic creaking of woodwork, to the rising howl of the wind. "It was blowing up a gale."

My acquaintance with a refreshed and elated expression, as if he had waked from a nap with some more interesting thoughts, informed me:

"I'm going to tell you an experience of mine."

He related the following tale:

I was passing through Florence (he began) after many years of absence. The city was at its worst just then, for the winter rains had set in—and you know what they do to the place. Cold winds rushed through the narrow streets, which were filled with slimy mud. The swollen river foamed high under the bridges. Those antique palace facades, those inspired monuments and fountains which pleasure us so much, gleamed somberly behind patches of early lamplight that seemed to be shrouded in folds of beading gauze. In Via Tornabuoni cabmen were cowering under their hat umbrellas. The beggars had disappeared, and a few pedestrians, hurrying along the footpath, popped into the tearooms.

A lonely business, as you're well aware, returning to a place from which all the old companions have departed. Surely one or two of that little coterie had remained, or else had returned? But how the deuce to find them?

Perhaps, because in another moment I was to encounter him, I thought of Nicholas Tyndale. Did you ever know him? Perhaps it's as well you didn't.

Even in the days of our youth he had been queer, our handsome, unamiable brute of a Nicholas, who could conquer the fencing master in Via della Spada, and then bend horseshoes with those hands that held the foil so lightly. A huge, moody, black-browed fellow was our Nicholas.

Despite his strength, he was always a morbid wretch. His hobby was the occult. It was said that he had dabbled in black magic. He even rejoiced in the friendship of a witch—perhaps you know that there were still witches of a sort in Florence 20 years ago, and that handsome and subtle woman undoubtedly gave him a good deal of peculiar information.

Once, fixing me with his black eyes on a street corner under the feeble light of a shrine, he confessed to me:

"I shall know and do things that no other man has ever known or done—plunge myself into depths of knowledge and experience that would make your flesh creep, old boy."

However, many years were to pass before Nicholas Tyndale was to "make my flesh creep."

All at once for some reason, he had abandoned his pursuit of the occult. His rare books on the magical art were missing from their shelves. He ceased to vanish on mysterious adventures into the alleyways of Florence. Thoughtful and grave, as if something disagreeable had occurred, he attached himself to his friends like a man who can no longer endure solitude. I think he paid no more visits even to his charming witch in Via Santa Reparata. Then his father died, leaving him a fortune, and he disappeared.

"What became of him?" I wondered as I walked up Via Tornabuoni in the rainy dusk, that night of my return.

Before me a tall, emaciated figure loomed up under an umbrella. A ray of light glided over a haggard visage, waxlike in its pallor. It was the black mustache and pointed beard that kept me for an instant from recognition in him.

"Nicholas!" I exclaimed, catching him by the arm as he was passing.

He started violently.

When he realized that it was I he looked a bit dismayed. From his manner, his curt talk, his persistence in that spot amid the downpour, I understood that he did not wish to take me home with him. He had never been a cordial or sympathetic person. I told myself merely that time hadn't improved him. Still, there was something furtive about his manner.

"What's he been up to?" I pondered, narrowly inspecting his chastly face. If I'd thought he possessed the rudiments of a conscience, I should have said that some horrible remorse was riding him to death.

"How's your health?" I hinted.

"You look as if you'd been losing a little sleep."

"I'm quite well," he growled.

I fathered that he had been back in Florence for nearly a year. He admitted at last:

"I'm there, on the third floor. Or, as they say here, the second."

HE POINTED across the street toward a brown Renaissance palace. Possibly you know it—the Palazzo Casanera. It has a bad history, but I doubt that it saw in the past anything as peculiar as what I was to see behind its ruined old walls.

"You must drop in some time," he added with a considerable effort. "Better telephone first, so that I can be sure to be there."

"Thanks," I said rather dryly. "Maybe during my return from Rome. I'm going there tomorrow."

He appeared relieved. We walked a few steps together. Before a shop window I got a still better look at him. His drawn face, his sunken eyes with haunted look, the tautening of the muscles in his cheek, strengthened my suspicions. Yes, Nicholas had "something" that was wrecking him. Of course, I wanted to know it.

We parted in a strained way. I returned to the hotel. To my great surprise, while I was dressing for a lonely dinner downstairs, a chasseur brought me a note from Nicholas—something like this:

"Forgive me, old fellow, for my unintentional rudeness. I was feeling awfully out of sorts when I ran into you. Please drop in for a bit of dinner tonight. Come as early as you like.

"You may be sure I went.

The story itself paused to assure himself. "This doesn't bore you, I hope?"

"Far from it. Hope the ship doesn't sink till you've finished."

To a widespread creaking, the liner slowly lighted herself, then rolled far over in the opposite direction. There was a crash of crockery in the bar. Daylight grew dim for a moment. My companion murmured:

"Lots of green faces on the deck tomorrow. Imagine 'em now, below." He smiled, then looked serious, and took up the thread.

I had never been in that old palace before. Perhaps you haven't? Fine marble staircase, the steps worn down by use, clear up to the top. Interesting name plates over the brass bell sockets. All titles, some of them foreign. An excellent address. A footman in breeches opened the door for me, and a rotund little butler ushered me, with a beatific smile, into a drawing room facing on Via Tornabuoni.

As I looked about, I reflected that Nicholas Tyndale's troubles were certainly not financial.

A BIG chandelier of Venetian glass pendants, furnished with 30 or 40 electric bulbs, illuminated that room, as large as a royal apartment. The predominating color, as the decorators say, was yellow, like goldenrod. There were yellow Persian rugs on the black and white marble floor, yellow hangings spotted with unearthly flowers, at the doors and windows, brocade of faded yellow on the furniture—period of Louis XV, and genuine at that. On the walls I saw a Chardin, a Watteau, a Coypel, and a Boucher, among a number of eighteenth century paintings. Everywhere on the gilded tables and cabinet precious objects were scattered. I discovered later that he had bought everything, standing, in taking over the rooms from their previous occupant. I shan't tell you what he paid. Enormous sum.

While drying my pumps at the fireplace, I heard a rustle behind me. In a corner on a yellow sofa a woman sat looking at me. Her voice, slightly hoarse, she said:

"I am Laura della Faggiuola. Good evening."

I named myself.

"Yes, I know," she answered. Still staring, as if to take my measure, she informed me: "It was I who got him to ask you here tonight."

Possibly from caution, her voice died quickly away, reedy, unstable, a little like the voices of hysterics, but resembling the breath of a sweet, quavering flute. She waved her large fan of white feathers to and fro before her lips, as if to dispel that admission.

I went to her, stirred by her sudden secrecy and intimacy, as though from the first moment we were allies, conspirators.

He didn't want me, eh?"

No, he didn't. But I knew that you had formerly been his friend ——

I was heartily tempted to tell her that nobody had ever been a real friend of his. She read my thought, and amended:

"At least enough of a friend ——"

She could not have been much more than 21. Slender, long-limbed, in that beautifully proportioned, like a tall nymph, she had a dead white skin and magnificent sticky eyes of the deepest violet hue. Her hair was a rusty blonde, like one of Titian's women that had faded. Across her nose and under her long tawny lashes were sprinkled a few freckles. Her lips were pearl-colorless; she, too seemed to be a prey to some insidious illness. One could see at a glance that she was well born, that the men of her family for centuries had probably sported titles. About her there clung an atmosphere of exclusive, like a very special perfume.

Why was such a girl as this alone in Tyndale's drawing room, so much at home, so deep in his affairs?

I NEEDN'T explicate on the admirable sang froid of Donna Laura, who were not even an engagement ring, yet who sat on the yellow sofa as if it were her own. I reminded myself that Europe was filled nowadays with les garconnes—emancipated, reckless, living their lives indifferent to opinion, and trying, perhaps, to help form a new state of morals. I regretted, though, that this fastidious, fine young woman was ignoring convention for the sake of a questionable brute like Nicholas.

"You are not a Florentine, Donna Laura?"

"I am from Lucca," she said. "Because my family built a house there 900 years ago. Now I live here in Borgo San Jacopo, just across the river. The house in which I live in Borgo San Jacopo is only 300 years old. It is an improvement."

She made these remarks without any sign of animation. Closing her eyes, she waved her fan before her small, sculptural bosom. Her evening dress of a modest decolletage, was made of some silvery tissue. Her long, slender feet were encased in slippers to match. Her sole ornament was a grayish orchid pinned against her corsage. Motionless, hardly breathing, she exhaled, despite her appearance of illness, a disturbing charm.

"He ought to be mad about her," I mused, and maybe felt a twinge of that masculine jealousy with which we aren't credited often enough.

Between waves of her fan she inquired almost inaudibly:

"DID you never have the least influence over him? No, I fancy it was he who has always had the influence. Still, I hope you will plead with him. He's so much changed for the worse, is he not?" I mean in appearance.

Possibly she knew that it was only in appearance that he could change for the worse.

"How long has he looked as if he'd been buried and dug up?"

She was startled for a moment, then returned:

"When I met him, 10 months ago, he did not look like that. It has come on gradually."

"All since you have known him?"

She opened her eyes wide and twisted her fan between her long, white fingers blurted out:

"Oh, I assure you, it is not from any longing for me that he has got himself in this state. In a moment, when he comes in, you will see that he does not look at me as a man looks at a woman for whom he is wasting away. No, you mustn't think that Niccolo and I either are or have been anything of that sort to each other. If we had been, I shouldn't hesitate to say so."

"Nevertheless," I said to myself, "she loves him."

The situation was still more interesting.

"In that case," I suggested gently, "do you think it's wise to come here alone like this? Outsiders won't understand. This town is a hotbed of gossip. Some day you may care ——"

"To marry?" she interjected bitterly. "It is most unlikely. There is nobody left except my mother in Lucca; but she and I have hardly enough to live on. One doesn't marry a girl without a dowry, whose home is a shabby old place in a town half dead from poverty and age. It is true," she avowed, raising to me her deep eyes that were full of irony, "a young man in Lucca once told me a dowry didn't matter. But his parents thought otherwise. So I came here to Florence, to forget his cowardice."

For a while she brooded over her memories of the young Italian who, of course, had obeyed his parents.

"And then you met Nicholas?"

"Not at first. He was not yet here. For a while," she said, "I was bitter, indifferent, reckless. I felt that I should never care for another man. They began to pursue me; I met them by the dozen—and they all had the same idea. I tried to hurt them, since one of them had hurt me."

She shrugged her shoulders, leaned back amid the cushions, and took a cigaret from a battered silver case. As I gave her a light, I saw that her fingers were deeply stained from smoking.

"You punished those fellows, did you?"

"Oh! I played with fire, quite thought. And it turned me to this extent—that when I'd laughed at them, they went away and lied. They said ——

"You don't have to tell me. I know what they're like."

"So does everyone, yet the lies are always believed. I think that even Niccolo believes them." Pain stole into her eyes.

I WAS sure that she had told me the truth, poor girl. Those young wolves, to whom she had denied herself, mocking them with her unhappy laughter, had taken their revenge by tearing her name to tatters. It was more than the lack of a dowry now; she was spoiled goods in the market—fair fruit, sound at the core, but spattered over with mud.

Yet it couldn't be for this reason that Nicholas was indifferent to her charm. I had not forgotten his cynicism in affairs of the heart. Indeed, I thought that even if she had merited the scandal, she would still have been infinitely too good for the man who suddenly stalked into the drawing room.

He smiled at me with his lips alone, showing too much of his teeth.

"Here so soon? Splendid!" he exclaimed, flashing a piercing glance of inquiry at Donna Laura. "You've made friends, I see."

"Yes, I am already Donna Laura's friend for life," I answered, returning his stare.

He explained that he had forgotten to dress till the last moment, as he and she had "been talking." I could imagine that talk; my presence here tonight had undoutedly furnished its subject. It was easy to see that a guest—aside from this girl—was unheard of in the house, that only by an effort had she got me here. I also surmised that it was a novelty for her to have her way. For, ignoring the actual moment, I received the impression that he habitually dominated her.

What was the secret of this relationship, if he was indifferent to her seductiveness?

The little butler opened a double door.

We sat down at a brilliant table furnished with Sevres china and Murano glassware, a silver-gilt centerpiece overflowing with hothouse roses. The shaded candlelight did not extend to the walls, which were hung with raveled tapestries depicting forgotten festivals and battles.

"You're very well fixed here," I commented.

"Different from the old days, at any rate. Do you remember the trattoria where we used to dine?"

We engaged in some labored reminiscences.

THE wine that he drank brought no color into his waxy countenance. Quite cadaverous in the candlelight, his haunted eyes averted, he maundered on, as if trying to kill time. I had not realized before how thin he was; there seemed to be little left of him except his big framework of bone.

Donna Laura sat drooping in her gleaming dress, her tawny head leaning forward, her long fingers idly crumbling her roll. Now her expression had become almost meek in its gentleness. She picked up her battered silver case, took out a cigaret.

"She smokes constantly," Nicholas Tyndale remarked to me, in a tone of resentment.

She raised her deep-hued eyes, to brave his look, which seemed to me inordinately angry.

"Yes," she said. "If I were still more ascetic than I am, I'd be more useful to him."

He continued to gaze at her, with his black bearded chin lowered on his cravat, his smouldering black eyes reproving her. Then he must have decided to disregard my presence. He retorted:

"You do it on purpose—deliberately, so that you shan't be so—useful. Since you've used the word!"

Her fine, sad face looked as if it had just borne a blow with fortitude.

"Your guest must be puzzled, Niccolo mio," she breathed, in her flutelike voice. "How is he going to know in what way I am useful to you, unless you go on and explain? Or shall we just wait and show him, later on?"

The muscle in his cheek began to twitch. He looked at her as though he were trying to silence her with his will. Perhaps that will of his, intensely cultivated, long ago, for who knows what dark purposes, had overwhelmed her with more success formerly. But the will is no longer so strong when the physical power is fail-

She stopped playing. Her face became eloquent as if she had cried out. "He has dared to tell you the truth."

"Yes, you shall see."

"No!" Nicholas Tyndale burst ..., striking his fist on the table. "You sha'n't make a damned show ...it. That's been decided."

"You mean that you have de...ded for him, Niccolo. He ought ...decide for himself."

"Where does he come in, any...ay? What has he got to do with ...?"

"I hope he will have this to do ...th it—that he will persuade you ...o stop it." Her pale face soft...ned; she reached across the table, ...t her snowy hand upon his ...arthy hand. "Think, Niccolo; ...e is your friend from the old ...ys."

"I refuse," he muttered.

"But now we are two to one." Turning to me, she inquired, quite simply: "Will you assist after dinner in a little seance? I hap...en to have a knack for material...ing the spirits."

I IMAGINE hearing such an as...ertion, unexpectedly, from that ...sort of a girl! You may be...ieve that I was stupefied.

"Perhaps you don't believe me," Laura della Fagginola observed.

By this time I was able to re...urn:

"I'm not an amateur at that ...ort of thing; but you're certainly ...ot my idea of a medium."

"Why? Because I appear to be ...a little ill? It's true that I'm not ...o effective as formerly. Never...heless, it still happens."

Nicholas Tyndale, growling under his breath, let his big, ema...iated body sink down in the ...hair. Ignoring him, she con...inued:

"You are a skeptic? If one ...can't come in contact with ...the supernatural, one refuses to ...believe in it, of course. Nicholas, working down lower ...in his chair, cast at her:

"No, you won't! Not tonight!"

She didn't dispute with him.

During the rest of the dinner, ...whenever the servants left the ...room, Laura della Fagginola and ...I discussed this strange subject ...with which she was so familiar.

SHE had first exercised her ...talent in Lucca, after the ...death of her only brother.

"Apparently," Donna Laura re...flected, "I was predisposed in ...some way to be a good medium. ...I can't begin to tell you everything ...that happened. In the course of ...three years, different entities pos...sessed me, one after another. Be...cause my mind was innocent, my ...purpose lofty, I wasn't troubled by ...the grosser sort of spirits. As ...time passed, those manifestations ...took a different turn. The spirits ...no longer merely spoke through ...me. They developed from my ...finer essence"—she called it, in ...Italian, "fluid"—"visible forms of ...their own, which separated them...selves from me, moved about in...dependently, spoke, gave evidence ...of thought and feeling."

Nicholas Tyndale threw out ...from the depths of his chair, "He's ...laughing at you now."

"I'm doing no such thing."

"Why should I let you show ...her to him?" he persisted angrily. ...'His ridicule, his mere presence, ...might drive her away forever."

"Oh, no," Donna Laura assured ...him, with a steely flash of her ...eyes. "She'll come back again, ...never fear!"

Their glances crossed like the ...swords of enemies.

Donna Laura, as if he had sud...denly left the room, went on:

"But even before I met Niccolo ...I had given it up, for reasons I ...needn't go into. The news fol...lowed me here from Lucca; Nic...colo heard it. You can imagine ...how he, who has dabbled in all ...sorts of awful experiments, was ...pleased at the idea of a girl who ...could raise the dead for him! But ...I didn't want to. Something—one of them, perhaps—told me I ...should regret it."

"And those seances have been ...going on ever since?" I inquired.

"For nearly nine months. Ah, ...yes—much, much too long!"

Donna Laura took up her cig...arette-case and her feather fan.

I saw her to the door, then came back to Nicholas.

"How," I demanded, "did a ...brute like you manage to get a ...hold on such a girl? You ought ...to be kicked, letting her come here ...alone. I suppose the whole town ...knows it."

"What a champion!" he laughed unpleasantly.

"Indeed, I'd like to pry her loose from you."

He looked startled, then sneered:

"You couldn't do it, my boy."

"Really," I reflected aloud, "I don't see how she can be fond of you unless you've exerted once more your old powers of fascination. I presume that's it?"

He gave me a look of astonishment, hesitated, then decided to reveal the thought:

"Since she is probably the only person in the world who can do the one thing I want done, I'm holding on to her.

"It's not a question of spoiling her reputation. That was done for when I found her."

"Nevertheless," I said, "can't you feel that the girl is decent? She was desperate."

"On account of that fellow in Lucca," he rejoined indifferently.

YES, he was quite indifferent to her charm; yet in some way he had made her love him, because he "needed her." He needed her because of this professed ability of hers for "raising the dead." Very well; accepting her extraordinary claim without argument, why should she be the only medium capable of doing what he wanted? I had an idea that Europe was full of women ready to call up for you the spirits of Charlemagne, Cleopatra, Merlin, or whomever one hankered after.

"Whom does she show you, Nicholas?" I asked. With a gleam of his haggard eyes he drew away from me.

In the drawing room Donna Laura began to play on the piano the "Valse Triste" of Sibelius—more sad, under her fingers, than I had ever heard it.

Probably Nicholas Tyndale didn't hear that music. His elbows on the table, his bearded chin between his hands, he stared before him with an air of dreadful reverie, like a Lucifer brooding over some unbelievable dark aspiration. Of a sudden I had a crazy, atrocious thought. Had I caught a glimpse of the truth? Was this the end of his macabre curiosity, his desire for experiences that nobody else had known?

I ESCAPED to the drawing room. As I entered the mournful and magnificent eyes of Laura della Fagginola questioned me above the gilded piano. She stopped playing. Her face became eloquent, as if she had cried out: "He has dared to tell you the truth?"

I sat down on the piano bench beside her, as Nicholas Tyndale appeared in the doorway, his eyes suspiciously narrowed. Lounging forward, he remarked:

"Just the night for a rubber of dummy bridge."

"Don't you know I hate cards? I want to hear some of Donna Laura's music."

He lowered at me, then wandered away to the other end of the room. Picking up a paper-backed book, he threw himself into a chair. As he cut the pages with a jeweled stiletto, I caught the title on the cover: "Apres la Mort."

It was raining harder than ever. Against the windows, masked with solid wooden shutters, dashed gusts of rain with dull rattles, rising and falling.

"He is determined not to let me do it tonight." She began to play Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Hymn to the Sun." Her voice covered by the music, she muttered: "All the same, I will. And you shall tell me afterward what she is like—this visitor that he makes me produce for him, that he has always, before tonight, had all to himself in this room, while I have sat there unconscious."

She glanced toward an alcove at the end of the drawing room, bare of ornaments and pictures, framed with yellow curtains, containing one gilded armchair placed against the back wall. I noticed at once that the walls and ceiling of the alcove were solid plaster, the floor, like the rest of the drawing room floor, composed of heavy black and white marble slabs.

Lowering her face above the keyboard Donna Laura persisted:

"You shall tell what they say to each other—at least, how they act toward each other. What sort of intimacy is that, built up through these innumerable nights while I've sat there in a deep sleep"——

Her unstable voice broke and was silent. She struck the piano keys hard with her white hands.

Nicholas Tyndale turned his dark countenance toward us balefully, then went on pretending to read.

Her fingers moved more weakly over the keyboard.

"You say this apparition is like a human being? In density, too?"

"So he told me, before he began to be reticent. That is to say, she was not so dense at first; but gradually she took on solidity."

Shaking off my sense of unreality, I whispered:

"This is too monstrous for words! You must get out of it."

Her sad profile drooped over, as she responded:

"Where could I go that he wouldn't follow me? Once I got as far as Livorno. I was at the station with my ticket for Genoa, when he caught up with me. Ah, you don't know the power he exerts! When I saw him coming toward me, I was happy at the thought of these hours of suffering in this room, to which he was going to bring me back again."

"Don't you know that this feeling you have for him is artificial, produced merely by his will?"

"What if I believe it? The feeling still remains. It's true that I can imagine a state of peace in a world that didn't contain him. Well, anyway, it will end when he has no more use for me. Even now, she is growing impalpable, because of my failing health and hostility to her. She is fading away from him! But how can I be glad of it, since, if she ceases altogether to appear, he will tell me that my value to him no longer exists? Then, he will show me the door."

Pain twisted her bloodless lips at the thought of release from his obsession, this torture. That was not logical; but the whole affair was madness.

"You think, then," I asked, "that you produce, so to speak, a really formidable rival?"

"FORMIDABLE? How do I know her impulses? Her principles? Her strength? And yet if she is good, why does she come to him? For you know that Niccolo isn't the sort to attract a saint willingly!" She was lost in her gloomy thoughts for a while, then made the surprising assertion: "I understand their conversations are in English."

"Which you also speak, do you not?"

"Yes, I know what you think—that this shape, formed through my agency, is nothing more than an effigy into which I have somehow put my own personality. You are wrong. She exists and merely uses my fluid—my ectoplasm, say —in order to function in our grosser atmosphere."

NICHOLAS TYNDALE, having cast his book aside, was watching us. Donna Laura left the piano.

"He says he will be delighted to see our show," she said.

"It is perfectly asinine to drag in an unsympathetic spectator," he began; but she cut him short with the words:

"I have made him quite sympathetic. He has my promise to see what I can do. If you won't let me show him here, I shall have to show him over there in Borgo San Jacopo. And if you're so ungracious, we'll not invite you."

This threat gave the precious wretch a nice thrill of alarm. One could see how he liked the idea of her "showing me" his lady-spirit in private! He exclaimed savagely:

"Never mind; it will be a fiasco. The weather, this new influence in the room and your state of health at present"——

Donna Laura calmly returned:

"It will go through tonight. When I feel it, the thing is sure. But I want to begin at once."

She told me to sit anywhere, "as far as possible from the alcove." I chose a place beyond the farthest door, beside which I had observed an electric light switch. In fact, it was to this switch that Donna Laura came in order to shut off the current from the chandelier. The room was plunged into darkness except for the dying fire.

She was moving from one door to another, turning the keys in the locks. By this time I was able to see her pale face and shoulders, her softly shimmering dress, flit to and fro in the black void of the room where nothing else now seemed to exist except the glow from the hearth. As she slowly approached the alcove, she herself appeared like a spirit.

RECEDING, she became abruptly shorter. I realized that she had seated herself, without drawing the portieres, on the chair at the back of the alcove. Now she was barely visible, a grayish spot hardly lighter than the obscurity about her. There was a minute of silence. Her voice made me jump:

"Pull the screen before the fire, Niccolo."

He obeyed.

An interminable hush ensued.

The silence of the drawing room was complete. Even the sound of the rain against the shuttered windows had died away. I heard the faint clop-clop of a cab horse down in Via Tornabuoni. There followed out there a deadened hubbub of voices—from some tourists, no doubt, who had dined late at La Bocca. Those rumors made me think: "What a strange thing we're doing! Are all of us out of our minds?"

Nicholas gave a sigh.

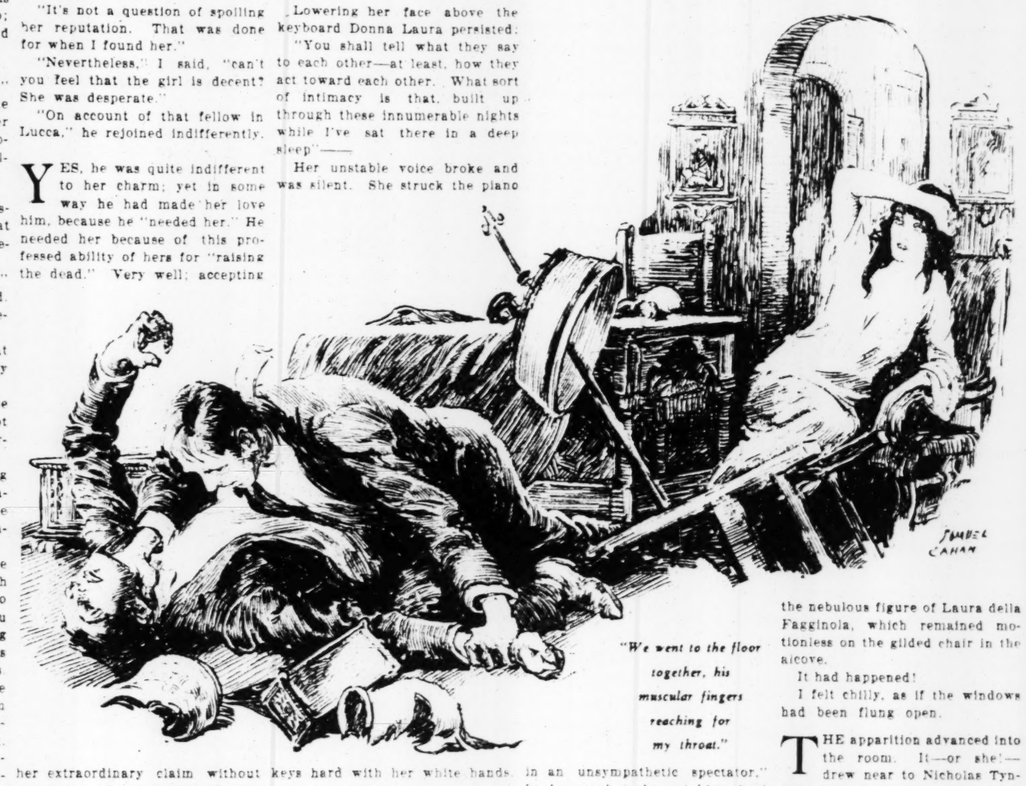
A soft moan issued from the alcove. Was she suffering? I marveled at her mournful obedience to this astounding tyrant.

Beside her dim shape another shape was growing.

And now that other shape began to expand more quickly. It rose above the seated medium. It appeared, as well as I could see, to become less chaotic. Erect, like a woman standing, this second nebulous figure drifted away from the nebulous figure of Laura della Fagginola, which remained motionless on the gilded chair in the alcove.

It had happened!

I felt chilly, as if the windows had been flung open.



"We went to the floor together, his muscular fingers reaching for my throat."

THE apparition advanced into the room. It—or she!—drew near to Nicholas Tyndale, who had risen. She was slightly more distinct. Clothed as though in a whitish robe of simple folds, her face framed in something like a whitish scarf, she disseminated even in the darkness an impression of beauty. Yes, I don't know why this was; but I got from her, without seeing her in the least distinctly, an impression of ethereal loveliness.

Tyndale began to speak in an undertone.

I surmised that he was explaining my presence, apologizing for it. Then they receded into deeper shadows. He, with his back to me, became invisible. The thing with which he talked was a blur amid the darkness.

All the while that other blur, which was Donna Laura, sat motionless in the alcove.

That mistlike blur was moving to and fro. I knew that he was pacing beside it over the thick rug.

A faint cry resounded from the depths of the room, which had swallowed her up. And there came a rush of words, a silvery chattering, so little human that my scalp began to prickle:

"Let me go—From this atmosphere—All I have gained—They will bar the way—What will become of me?"

I heard a sort of plaintive mewing. The apparition was weeping?

WHATEVER was happening, whatever this strange creature was that moved and wept amid the darkness, I was determined to have a look at it. Rising stealthily from my chair, I groped for the light switch, found it, and waited; my heart thumping violently, for the moment when she should stand beneath the chandelier.

She moved; she was there—and I switched on the lights.

For an instant they blinded me. Then just in time, I saw her vividly—erect, like a living woman slightly blurred in outline, seen through an aura of vapor. The beautiful face, overshadowed by its coif, wore a look of terror. And at once, so rapidly that the eye could hardly follow those changes, she began to dissolve, like a figure of wax exposed to the heat of a furnace. Her eyes melted into their sockets; her nose disappeared; her forehead sank in. Her body and her robes, vaporized and confused, swiftly flowed together as if they had been built up of a single profoundly perishable element. And all that swimming and deliquescing substance which had resembled a woman sank down upon the yellow rug in the blaze of the chandelier, boiled together for an instant, and vanished, leaving no trace. For a moment I had a feeling of horror as great as if I had destroyed a human being.

UPSET? Yes, I was; but I had to move fast all the same. I was barely able to spring aside when Nicholas Tyndale made a rush at me, his face unrecognizable. He bellowed: "I'll kill you for that!"

I jumped behind the center-table. He vaulted over it, knocking down with a crash half of the bric-a-brac on it. We went to the floor together, his muscular fingers reaching for my throat. In my twenties, though, I had taken a course in ju-jitsu. A little, scrub-headed fellow named Kobayashi had showed me in Kito precisely the move to make in this position in which I found myself. I remembered it by instinct; for instinct takes charge of us at moments of great danger. Quite without thinking, as though I were twisting on the mat in a short-sleeved canvas kimono, I caught him thus and so, braced my knee against him, and tugged. His sinews stretched; the joints of his shoulders cracked and he turned a bluish white.

But the wretch held on, grinding his teeth together, his eyes shining in a homicidal fury.

"Listen to reason, Nicholas," I panted. "I don't want to hurt you."

With a tremendous heave he tried to free himself. I saw his eyes turn up toward the table, and remembered the jeweled stiletto.

There was nothing for it, apparently, but to put him out. I gave a sharp tug, which disjointed his right arm at the shoulder socket. He rolled over on his back, his black-bearded mouth wide open. He had fainted from the pain.

When I had staggered to my feet, I turned my eyes toward the alcove. Donna Laura had sunk down sidewise in her chair, her head lying on her shoulder, one hand dragging on the floor. But when I set her straight she stirred. It occurred to me:

"I must get her out of here very quickly, and she mustn't see Nicholas."

Taking him by the shoulders, I dragged him into the corner behind the piano. As I was returning to her, she opened her eyes.

"What happened?"

"That thing," I explained with a shudder, "dissolved like ice in a furnace."

DONNA LAURA looked very ill. She was unable to rise till I took her hands. She swayed forward against me. Fortunately, she was too much upset to notice my torn collar and the smear of blood on my cheek where Nicholas had hit me.

She wanted to know where he was. I told her that he had gone out of the room in a rage. Still dazed, she whispered:

"You turned up the lights! He'll think I put you up to it. He'll never forgive me. Never!"

She was willing to go. She had to lean against the outer door while I found her gray, fur-trimmed cloak, and my overcoat and hat. The servants didn't appear, and we got down the public stairs without meeting anybody. Before us we saw the rain descending in sheets. The cabstand across the way was deserted; the street was empty of life.

"It's not far," she murmured. "Let's walk."

Her gray cloak shot with silver threads was soon drenched in that downpour. The wind lashed her face. Her tawny hair turned dark; some strands came unbound and streamed round her pallid cheeks. I didn't care about her getting wet, she could take a hot bath and some cognac—the point was to get away from Nicholas. I now felt that as soon as he came to his senses, he would be after us, his shoulder notwithstanding. With a pistol, no doubt! He had always been pertinacious. I called myself a fool for not having tied him up.

What a fortunate thing that I didn't!

We came out on the Lungarno. Before us the Trinity Bridge stretched over toward the Borgo San Jacopo. At a little distance, its lamps disappeared in the rain. Below it I heard the swollen river whirling along with a continuous roar. We were alone in the sweeping sheets of water that seemed to be falling from all the clouds in the world.

She staggered against me. I put my arm around her, urging her onto the bridge. I had a picture of myself on guard with a poker all night, at the door of her rooms—behind the door of her unknown rooms that ought to be fragrant just from her living in them. It was all settled in my mind that she wasn't to get hold of her again, if I had to fight both of them.

We were nearly halfway across the bridge when, looking over my shoulder, I saw a tall figure dart out of the mouth of Via Tornabuoni into a patch of lamplight. It was Nicholas.

I tried to make her run. She pulled back in bewilderment. Her cloak, slipping from her shoulders, was blown away into the gutter of the bridge. Disregarding that loss, she stammered:

"What are you doing?"

"We'll have to cut for it. Here comes Nicholas."

I managed to drag her a short distance farther. She was struggling against me. I warned her that he was undoubtedly armed, that he mustn't catch us till he had come out of his rage. The distracted girl could think of nothing but going back to him.

"All right!" I shouted at her, beside myself with indignation. "Then it's simply me that he's after. That may not interest you; but it interests me like the devil."

I whipped off my overcoat, with the thought of covering up her silvery dress, too conspicuous, soaked dark though it was, even in the obscurity of the storm. Then, since I couldn't make her go forward, I jerked her into the shadows beside the parapet, hoping that, unless she called out to him, he would pass us by in the rain. I even got ready to clap my hand over her mouth.

HE was on the bridge running toward us, from one ray of light to another. I saw his injured arm hanging down by his side. He was then not more than twenty yards away.

A terrific gust of wind descended the path of the river. It struck the bridge; it snatched up from the gutter Donna Laura's cloak. The cloak rose above the parapet, swelling out its folds in a queer resemblance to life. Then it sailed down to the river. And for a moment, amid the foam of the torrent, one saw it again before it was swept away. A howl of despair came to us.

That tall figure, half lost in the storm, was poised on the parapet. Donna Laura broke away from me—rushed back to him. Her scream of warning was smothered by the roar of the waves and the hissing of the rain. He dived down, and even at that moment I couldn't help wondering which he was trying to save—the girl, or the apparition that the girl knew how to produce. What face was before him at the last, Donna Laura's or the other's? I believe he took that suicidal plunge to rescue the other, in rescuing the body of his patient instrument.

Of course he hadn't a chance. He came up only once, near where the cloak had vanished.

The story-teller was silent. Finding my voice, I asked:

"What became of her?"

"Of Donna Laura della Fagginola?" he said, putting on his cap, and getting out of his corner. "She recovered. That is to say, she was quickly relieved of that obsession which he had produced in her mind. For a while, from force of habit, she continued to love him, if such a false, impelled emotion can be called by the name of love. But it wore away; for it was artificial," he insisted. "I helped to cure her. The task was not unpleasant."

He was letting himself out of the smoking room by way of the leeward door, when I cast after him the question:

"Where is she now?"

"In Paris," he rejoined, with his fine smile. "She doesn't enjoy the sea." He hesitated, before concluding: "Don't think we go in for seances, nowadays! Even though she couldn't produce, from the whole world of spirits, an apparition that I'd prefer to her."

He shut the door behind him.

Japanese Geisha Begins to Look Like American Chorus Girl

New Departures in Ancient Festivals Show Sex Appeal as Much in Favor in the East as the West.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

IS JAPAN on its way to musical comedies and girly-girly shows?

This question, a matter of momentary interest, is being asked again and again in foreign quarters in Tokio and other large cities of the island empire of the East as the result of recent innovations in the festivals staged by the professional dancing girls of Japan, the geisha girls upon whom the tired Japanese business man is so largely dependent for much of his amusement and relaxation.

Until recently there was no thought of Broadway in Japan. But the geisha girls of Tokio and Osaka have, within the last few years, grown tired of the perpetual domination of the geisha of Kyoto whose fame has grown world-wide, and have taken it into their heads to stage festivals of their own wherein they might, if nothing else, be glorified in somewhat the American manner.

The festival at Kyoto, an annual affair, has admittedly little in common with American musical comedy and vaudeville. Performed in a sober, if not solemn spirit, the geishas who participate in it execute movements that have come down to them from their teachers as the result of the decades of training to which the Kyoto geishas have been subjected during the existence of the Miyado Odori or spring festival.

The geishas of Tokio and Osaka have no such advantages—or handicap, depending how you look at it. They may as a consequence stage festivals that are more modern in spirit. And, after all, doesn't the popularity of American dances in Tokio show that what the tired Japanese business man wants is something new? How else could you account for the concern of the Tokio police when the fox-trot was introduced into local restaurants and waitresses who danced were the most favored?

As things turned out, however, the geishas of Tokio staged a festival this year that was thought, in some quarters, to rival the accomplishments of the ancient guild of Kyoto. Not influenced overmuch by the modernizing western influences which are reported to be rampant in the present capital, they produced a dance program which was basically not different from that staged by the Kyoto guild.

Starting with a dance called the Aged Pine, they enacted dance numbers, the beauty and skill of which, though apparent, were thought to be lost upon those fresh from the lights of modern Broadway. Clad in lovely kimonos, they still were too conventional in matters of apparel to warrant the suggestion that New York theatrical influences were at work in their midst. So through the whole program.

WHETHER the scene took place on a warm summer night with bright fire rockets emblazoning the sky or whether the scene depicted a huge cherry tree from which the geishas proceeded during the course of the dance, the same fact was everywhere evident. Based on the amount of clothing Broadway managers insist their choruses wear in current hits, the geishas were overdressed.

Strange as it may seem to the Broadway mind, this did not preclude the possibility of the festival's success. The Azuma Odori lasted for twenty days with two performances daily. The Osaka dancers, on the other hand, departed quite a little from the program that tradition ordinarily expects of them. Perhaps the difference was due largely to the clientele they expected would attend their festival. Osaka is no seat of culture and refinement as Tokio and Kyoto claim to be. It is a manufacturing city, not likely to think long upon its past and more likely to look toward the future.

The geisha girls of Osaka, apparently, had reached the conclusion that their profession would soon be a loss to them. A mild agitation has long prevailed in Japan against the whole system of geisha entertainment. And, apparently, agitation is gaining ground. Not wanting to be numbered among the dead issues, the stand assumed by the girls of Osaka follows as a natural consequence.

Accordingly they engaged a Russian dancing master and, after practicing their ballets for several years in secret before offering them to the public they eventually came forth with productions that were nothing short of sensational, judged by the sort of entertainment the staid citizens of Tokio were accustomed to. Yet their endeavor was a success. Not only did they stage their festival in Osaka, as originally intended, but they hired the Imperial Theater in the former city for five additional performances.

From opening to closing number the production was one that a Japanese Ziegfeld might have staged. Whereas, the dance productions of other geisha guilds were never complete without the characteristic kimono, the Osaka geisha girls abandoned those wide-sleeved affairs for costumes designed with some regard to the clothing worn by dancers in other parts of the world, particularly in those western countries from which so many other ideas have at length penetrated to the far-off island of the Pacific.

Imagine the surprise that greeted the Osaka workmen who attended the festival staged by the local dancing girls on their first night. Previously nothing more daring than tradition afforded was offered them as entertainment. At the Osaka festival, however, they were able to see for the first time living statuary numbers which, having found their way from Paris to America, ultimately proved that sex appeal was as much in favor in this Japanese manufacturing city as in the gayest of New York's white light districts.

Jazz a la Geisha. —Gilliams Service.

Save for the fact that the dancers were costumed in close-fitting tights as many of the New York attractions are recostumed when they take to the road, the Japanese dancers might well have been a featured number of a new Winter Garden production. Even to the appearance of two child dancers, the Osaka dance festival resembled the big revue productions which each year are among the most popular of Broadway's musical offerings. Did the children dance a native Japanese ballet? No, they did not! They appeared as two American Indians!

After the applause had died down in appreciation of this number, regarded by many of the Japanese spectators as the most unique offering they had ever seen, they were invited to cast their glances upon a further offering which might well have come from the repertoire either of American esthetic dancers or from some big Broadway extravaganza.

Like many specialty dances in American revues, this number purported to represent a fisherman casting his net. Through the various movements of the dance, the performer representing the fisherman was able to convey to the audience something of the expectancy and eagerness with which he let out his net. "Hard worker that I am," the rhythms of the dance are made to ask, "what will my luck be today? Watch me."

The spectators in Osaka did watch him and their attention was rewarded, as you might expect, when he found therein not the largest fish that was ever found in all Japan, but a beautiful dancing girl, all festooned in pearls!

There was another number that Broadway producers have attempted to stage time and time again. This was the bird number in which the ensemble dancers, clad in the fine feathers of many birds.

The audience, apparently, liked it, for they applauded long and heartily while the geishas cavorted about the stage in the manner of the American grand finale.

Women Who Never Grow Old

You meet them everywhere you go—women of thirty, forty and fifty who look as young and beautiful as they did ten or twenty years ago.

Learn the secret of their soft, clear unblemished skin — regular and thorough facial cleansing and bathing with Jap Rose, the clear soap that cleanses pores full depth.

Jap Rose is a natural skin beautifier that dissolves completely. In its amber sheen, transparent purity, bounteous, instant lather, and agreeable softness on the skin, you recognize a soap conspicuously different.

Jap Rose Soap is just as delightful and effective for bathing and shampooing as for facial cleansing. Its appeal to dainty women is irresistible.

Now You Can Reduce 2 to 4 Lbs. in a Night

Eat what you please
Wear what you please
Do what you please
Take no risky medicine

Send the coupon for your first three Fayro Baths

Thousands of smart women have found this easy way to take off 2 to 4 pounds once or twice a week. These women take refreshing Fayro baths in the privacy of their own homes.

Fayro is the concentrate of the same natural mineral salts that make effective the waters of twenty-two hot springs of America, England and Continental Europe. For years the spas and hot springs bathing resorts have been the retreat of fair women and well groomed men.

Excess weight has been removed, skins have been made more lovely, bodies more shapely and minds brighter.

The Hot Springs are now Brought to You

Painstaking analyses of the active ingredients of the waters from twenty-two of the most famous springs have taught us the secret of their effectiveness. You can now have all these benefits in your own bath. Merely put Fayro into your hot bath. It dissolves rapidly. You will notice and enjoy the pungent fragrance of its balsam oils and clean salts.

Then, Fayro, by opening your pores and stimulating perspiration forces lazy body cells to sweat out surplus fat and bodily poisons. Add Fayro to your bath at night and immediately you will lose from 2 to 4 pounds in an easy, refreshing and absolutely harmless manner.

Your physician will tell you that Fayro is certain to do the work and that it is absolutely harmless.

Fayro will refresh you and help your body throw off worn-out fat and bodily poisons. Your skin will be clearer and smoother. You will sleep better after your Fayro bath and awaken feeling as though you had enjoyed a week's vacation.

Lose Weight Where You Most Want to

Fayro reduces weight generally but you can also concentrate its effect on abdomen, hips, legs, ankles, chin or any part of the body you may wish.

Results Are Immediate

Weigh yourself before and after your Fayro bath. You will find you have lost from 2 to 4 pounds. And a few nights later when you again add Fayro to your bath, you will once more reduce your weight. Soon you will be the correct weight for your height. No need to deny yourself food you really want. No need for violent exercise. No need for drugs or medicines. Merely a refreshing Fayro bath in the privacy of your own home.

Try Fayro at Our Risk

The regular price of Fayro is $1.00 a package. With the coupon you get 3 full sized packages and an interesting booklet, "Health and Open Pores," for $2.40 plus the necessary postage. Send no money. Pay the postman. Your money refunded instantly if you want it.

HERE'S PROOF
Read what Fayro Baths have done for others

"Three Fayro baths reduced my weight 11 pounds in 8 days. I feel better than I have felt for years."

"I weigh 16 pounds less and feel younger and sleep better. Fayro is wonderful."

"My double chin vanished in the magic of Fayro baths."

"My hips were always too prominent until I commenced Fayro baths. I have lost 12 pounds."

"Thank you for Fayro. I lost 14 pounds in three weeks, feel better and certainly look better."

"Since childhood my thick ankles have always been a source of embarrassment. Fayro baths have reduced them beautifully. Thank you ever so much."

For obvious reasons, names are not quoted, but every letter published has been authorized and names and addresses will be given on request.

FAYRO

If each healthful bath of Fayro does not reduce your weight from 2 to 4 pounds, we will refund your money without a question. You risk nothing. Clip the coupon and mail it today.

Fayro, Inc., 821 Locust St., Pittsburgh, Pa. 2LPD-6-26

Send me 3 full sized packages of Fayro in plain package. I will pay the postman $2.50 plus the necessary postage. It is understood that if I do not get satisfactory results with the first package I use, I am to return the other two and you will refund all of my money at once.

Why Fat
Is Being Fought

Largely because of short skirts. But more because a slender figure suggests health and youth and vitality.

Look about you—note how slenderness prevails. Then ask those people how they get it.

Many will mention Marmola Prescription Tablets. It is the easy, pleasant method which acts by correcting the cause. People have used it for 19 years. The use has grown and grown, until people now are using Marmola in a very extensive way.

This method is easy and pleasant. No abnormal exercise or diet is required. The method is scientific, based on modern research. It is helpful and effective, else it never could have gained the place it holds.

Learn what Marmola means to you, as multitudes have done. Perhaps you have tried strenuous exercise and starvation. Now try the easier, more enduring way. If fat is offensive to you and your friends, do this to end it—now. Then tell others the results, as others will gladly tell you.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist can't supply you get them at once from his jobber.

The Pleasant Way to Reduce

WHEN YOU COME BACK
FOR YOUR NEXT EUGÈNE WAVE

It is pleasant to reflect that re-waving the wave is no longer necessary, thanks to The Eugène Method.

For, the Eugène Two-Sectional Steamers and the Eugèneol Re-wave Sachets make it possible to give a new permanent wave to the newly grown hair, without re-waving the waved portion.

In other methods of permanent waving, the only way to meet the problem of new straight hair, is to wave the entire head all over again. As a result, the new growth takes the wave satisfactorily, but the twice-waved hair assumes a crinkled, kinky appearance, greatly to be avoided.

In Eugène waving, the treatment is strictly confined to the new growth only.

Repeated waves by The Eugène Method leave the hair flawlessly soft and perfectly conditioned. For the Eugène way of waving is gentle. Instead of drenching the hair with chemical solutions and baking it dry, the Eugène Waver winds it dry . . . . Then to each careful curl, he introduces countless tiny pressure-jets of clean, white steam. Result . . . . a gracefully undulating natural wave.

Eugèneol Perforated Sachet

That is why it pays to pay the slightly higher price for a Eugène Permanent. Look for the Eugène trademark on the sachets.

The unique features of the gentle Eugène Method are explained clearly and interestingly in our new brochure . . . . We will be glad to mail you a copy together with the names and addresses of Eugène Wavers in your vicinity.

A COOLING DRINK AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

WHEN the summer sun beats down and you're feeling hot and tired and oh, so thirsty, there is no beverage that will bring such welcome relief as "Canada Dry."

Somehow it seems to make you cooler just to watch it dance and bubble in the dewy glasses. It's so clear and crisp and keen—like the cool of a mountain spring in the depths of the deep green forest.

The delicate piquant flavor of "Canada Dry" is due to the purity of its ingredients and the perfection of its blend. It contains none of the capsicum (red pepper) which is used in so many cheap ginger ales to convey a false "gingery" bite.

Only the highest grade Jamaica ginger is used in "Canada Dry" and that ginger is mildly stimulating, benign, and friendly to the stomach.

You will find it an especially welcome treat at luncheon and dinner on a hot day because of the zest and sparkle it adds to even the simplest meal. It will cool and refresh you in mid-afternoon as you step up to the soda fountain. Night after night you will be glad to discover it snuggling close to the ice as you start foraging in the refrigerator for a bedtime snack.

Best of all, you know that "Canada Dry" is genuinely good for you. It is served in the great hospitals of Canada and this country because of its purity and quality and is prescribed by many physicians for the same reasons.

Here, indeed, is one beverage that you can drink freely in summer without regrets.

A Delicious Fruit Lemonade

Combine juice of one-half lemon and one orange, one tablespoon powdered sugar and one bottle of "Canada Dry." Pour in glass half-filled with cracked ice. Garnish each glass with slice of orange and a cherry.

"For three years I was a slave to cathartics"

"PILLS, TONICS, OILS—I spent many dollars on them with no results. After I had given a dozen of these remedies a fair chance I wasn't any better.

"I was actually taking a laxative every night—that was the state I had reached as a result of chronic constipation, indigestion and biliousness. I often wished that I never had to eat, I felt such distress after every meal.

"Then I started in with Fleischmann's Yeast—more to please a couple of my friends than for any other reason. They argued that Yeast had helped many others—that it wouldn't do me any harm. I followed their advice three months ago and ate my three cakes regularly every day.

"Today I can honestly and truthfully say that my whole constitution has been marvelously helped. I absolutely forgot about laxatives after seven weeks! I once more really enjoy my meals."

John L. Porter, San Francisco, Calif.

THIS is the way yeast works—gently but surely overcoming constipation and its attendant ills. Almost before you know it you really feel like a new person!

Mysterious?—not at all. Yeast is simply a corrective food. Each cake consists of millions upon millions of living plants, grown in a nutritious extract of malt and grain.

Unlike drugs, which merely stimulate the body into temporary, abnormal activity, yeast keeps the whole system clean—and active. It purifies the digestive and intestinal tract, checking the absorption of dangerous poisons by the blood. It gradually strengthens the sluggish intestinal muscles, aiding the processes of elimination.

One person in every third American family is a user of this truly amazing food! Start today: make Fleischmann's Yeast a part of your regular diet. See how your constipation gradually disappears and with it that constant discouraging feeling of weariness. You can again enjoy a normal digestion, a fresh healthy skin.

All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Buy two or three days' supply at a time and keep in a cool dry place. Write for a free copy of the latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. N-936, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York City.

RIGHT

"MINE should be a convincing story, as it is written by one who for twenty years had suffered from what was considered incurable constipation. Not to mention its attendant ills—depression, pains, headaches, sleepless nights. I tried everything, even Fleischmann's Yeast—but in an unsystematic way. . . After reading many published letters of Yeast enthusiasts I decided to give Yeast another and a real trial. Today I am a living example of the real cure for constipation. I have grown to like Yeast as a food. At night, in milk, it makes a 'nightcap' fit for a king. I am a writer and can heartily recommend Yeast to all whose work requires rested nerves."

MRS. CHAMBERS WRITES: "For two or three years my two little girls, aged seven and nine, had severe stomach trouble and boils. Certain things they ate invariably upset them. I tried medicines, I tried dieting—but nothing seemed to help, except temporarily.

"I had noticed Fleischmann's Yeast advertised for such troubles as these and finally I decided to try it. I gave them two cakes a day, and in three weeks the boils had entirely disappeared—and neither of them has had a recurrence of them since.

"As to their stomachs, they can now eat anything short of nails. I still feed them a cake of Yeast a day just to be safe. I certainly owe a vote of thanks to Fleischmann's Yeast."

HOWARD CHANDLER CHRISTY, noted American painter, in his beautiful New York City studio

"I AM PROMPTED to write you this letter of appreciation for the benefit which I have received from using your fresh Yeast. In painting portraits all day long a great expenditure of vitality is required. I find the use of your Yeast is a great benefit in restoring my energy, and in keeping me fresh for work, and a-plenty left over for enjoyment of The Social Life."

Howard Chandler Christy, New York City

One person in every third American family keeps well this new easy way:

Eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly every day, one cake before each meal. Eat it plain in small pieces, or on crackers, in fruit juice, milk or water. For constipation physicians say it is best to dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before meals and before going to bed. Be sure that a regular time for evacuation is made habitual. Dangerous cathartics will gradually become unnecessary.

KEPT LIKE NEW

THERE'S nothing else so quickly thorough — so clean and white as cake Sapolio. It seems made especially for modern bathrooms, to clean metal and enamel fixtures, fine glaze fittings, tiled floors and walls. It quickly removes the brown stain in basin and tub. Sapolio polishes as it cleans. Just a light going over with a damp cloth and Sapolio, and all grime instantly disappears. There is no disagreeable dust or odor. Sapolio is safe and thorough—quicker for dishes, aluminum, kitchen ware and cutlery, linoleum and oilcloth, cement floors and painted woodwork.

Three long 'rays for Mother!

Enthusiastic approval for rootbeer made of Hires Household Extract

"THREE long 'rays for Mother!" shouted Mary Richardson.

"You said it—that time," came from long-legged John Allen. With happy mumblings from Nancy, Jack and all the rest.

Twelve boys and girls were dancing around on little, hopping feet.

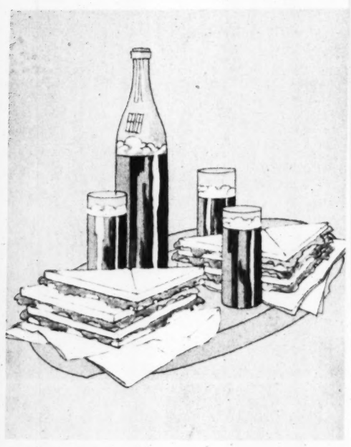
"When it comes to drinks . . . rootbeer's the best. And when it comes to rootbeer . . . ask Mother!"

Mary Richardson's party was certainly in full swing. The refreshments were lettuce sandwiches and long, cool drinks of rootbeer. It was the warmest, sultriest evening the summer had yet seen. But what a happy crowd!

Mrs. Richardson, motherlike, was going over it all in her mind. "Twenty-four cool, sparkling glasses of rootbeer. I made them myself. Less than a cent a glass. And twelve delighted children. Oh, what a perfect party drink!"



Make it yourself—this perfect drink

Delicious, sparkling rootbeer from Hires Household Extract—at a cost of less than a cent a glass

THERE'S a bottle of home-made rootbeer on ice! Ready to serve your family any time they want a cooling drink as a relief from this hot, sultry weather. Ready for the youngsters when they troop in from play. Tired with romping. Clamoring for some of the rootbeer that Mother made. Ready as a delicious refreshment whenever guests drop in unexpectedly.

You will be proud to say you made it yourself

Folks always respond to the appeal of "home-made" things. From Hires Household Extract you can make as fine rootbeer as you ever tasted. And it's no trouble. The directions are simple, quick and easy to follow.

There is a secret in the goodness of this sparkling beverage. It is a drink of nature's own making. The juice of cool birch bark. Pure vanilla beans from Mexico. Wintergreen. Sassafras. Sugar cane. Sixteen of the rarest fruits of nature, blended with the utmost skill. With no artificial color or flavoring.

Costs little and goes far

Home-made rootbeer is the most delicious drink you can serve. But it is also the most economical. From one 30c package of Hires Household Extract you can make 80 glasses—5 gallons—of perfect rootbeer. Less than a cent a glass! There were over 30 million gallons of rootbeer made from Hires Household Extract last year.

Don't delay in giving your family the pleasures of this thirst-quenching, soul-satisfying beverage. Get a package of Hires Household Extract at your dealer's today. Full directions in every package. The Charles E. Hires Company, 208 South 24th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Shall we send you a bottle of Hires Household Extract?

ROOTBEER BUTTER ICING: Cream ⅓ cup butter and gradually cream in 1 cup powdered sugar. Add ½ teaspoonful rootbeer extract, and enough cream to make thin enough to spread. Chopped nuts could be sprinkled over the icing. Or small cakes could be topped with halved nuts.

ROOTBEER CANDY KISSES: Cook 3 cups brown sugar, ¼ cup water and pinch of salt until it spins thread when dropped from spoon. Add 1½ teaspoons rootbeer extract and pour over stiffly beaten white of an egg. Beat while pouring and until mixture is quite stiff. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper.

Hires Household Extract—for making delicious rootbeer at home, easily and inexpensively, and for use as a tasty flavoring in cooking. This is the familiar package seen in thousands of homes throughout the country. Always keep an extra package on your kitchen shelf.
